

ACTS TO ROUT FARM PICKETS

INDUSTRY REIN NOT LOOSENED BY SWOPE PLAN

'Must Learn Ways of the New Deal.'

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., Nov. 3.—(Special.)—While continuing to weigh price fixing for farmers, President Roosevelt gave fresh evidence today of his determination to drive full steam ahead on the reorganization of industry under government control.

At his conference with the press this afternoon the President in response to questions threw cold water on the Swope plan to supplant the NRA with a self-governed national organization of industry divested of all semblance of government control.

Mr. Roosevelt doubts that industry is yet capable of governing itself. In time it will be, he is confident, but until that time arrives industry must be content to learn the ways of the new deal in leading strings stretching from Washington.

Swope Plan Theory.

The Swope plan appeals to the President as an exceedingly interesting theoretical suggestion of what may well be the ultimate development of the NRA. In the near future he expects fully 499 other such interesting theoretical suggestions to be made of what the NRA should evolve into. That the NRA is a temporary mechanism the President does not deny. He regards it as an institution set up to bridge the gap between the old order of laissez faire and the new order of a planned economy.

In time the temporary will be replaced by permanent machinery designed to prevent recurrence of the swings of the economic pendulum from prosperity to depression and to provide a real instead of a pseudo prosperity such as that of the decade of the twenties when there was an enormous surplus of wealth for some and either a scanty living or poverty for others.

Has Much Yet to Learn.

The permanent form of the NRA in the President's conception must carry into full effect the new deal's collectivistic organization and management of industry and redistribution of the national income whereby employees will receive a smaller, employer a larger, share of the returns of industry than hitherto.

But this is all a vision of the ultimate evolution of the NRA. There is to be no change at present or in the immediate future, the President emphasized. In fact, he questions very seriously that industry is yet qualified to govern itself as envisaged by the Swope plan.

The new deal is something that cannot be mastered by either industry or the government in a few months, the President suggested. There is too much to be learned and unlearned. Industry, as Mr. Roosevelt views it, must develop along a myriad of new lines before it can be expected to rule itself.

Gites Shoe Overexpansion.

To illustrate, the President cited the shoe industry, which went into the depression with a capacity for turning out 900 million pairs of shoes a year, while the demand was only 300 million pairs. There was an overexpansion of industry which, according to the President's view, was wholly unjustified. Mr. Roosevelt raised the question whether the shoe industry at present is capable of so managing itself as to prevent such overexpansion without interfering with the constant improvement of manufacturing facilities.

This is a difficult problem which has not been solved yet, but which is being attacked under the NRA. Much has to be learned by both industrialists and by the government. Everybody is going to school to the new deal right now, the President suggested, intimating broadly that it will be some time before school will be out. When that time comes the Swope or similar plans of industrial self-government will be in order.

A Growing Revolt.

The symptomatic aspect of the move by industry to divest itself of government control is causing the President little, if any, anxiety. It is well recognized as a symptom of the spreading spirit of revolt of industry against a system which industrialists feel is being dominated by organized labor and, furthermore, a newly manifested symptom of the lack of confidence on the part of capital in business prospects under the NRA.

The government has created an enormous volume of credit to finance the recovery of business. But business

GOVERNOR SAYS 'OPEN UP ROADS' IN WISCONSIN

BULLETIN.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 3.—(R)—One hundred and fifty special deputy sheriffs were mobilized at Appleton tonight when word was received that strikers would attempt to shut the city off from produce shipments tomorrow. A posse of 30 men was sworn in by Sheriff Olson when he learned of a plan to deliver strikers held in the Clark county jail at Neillsville. About 50 men soon came into the city, but left without making a disturbance.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 3.—(Special.)—Gov. A. G. Schmiedeman in a message from Washington, D. C., tonight directed all law enforcement agencies of Wisconsin to keep highways cleared of farm strike pickets, prevent destruction of property, and suppress violence "at all costs."

The governor's drastic action followed a meeting held in Madison today in the capitol, at which the Wisconsin branch of the National Farm Holiday association, the Wisconsin milk cooperative pool, and the National Farmers' union voted to ignore the truce agreed upon in Des Moines this week at a conference of governors and to prolong the strike.

Through Theodore G. Lewis, the governor's executive secretary, the governor sent a wire to each sheriff, district attorney, and police chief in the state informing them they must control the strike situation.

The message read as follows: "Farm meeting at Madison makes it evident that strike will continue. Indications are that violence and closing of highways will follow. The governor directs that you immediately prepare to control situation. Keep highways open at all costs."

In a crisp public statement Gov. Schmiedeman declared the situation has ceased to be an opportunity for the humiliation of Wisconsin's population. Although the governor did not specifically mention the National Guard the militia is included in the blanket order and will be ready for instant service.

While bordering states have taken advantage of the situation in Wisconsin, and already there has been a severe loss of markets to Wisconsin farmers, Walter M. Singler, without regard to action in other states, proposes that under his leadership further losses shall be incurred and word has come to me here in Washington that a strike will continue even pending definite efforts on the part of the President to effect relief," Gov. Schmiedeman said.

Attacks Milk Pool Chief.

"I do not propose to permit the farmer who desires to hold his market now and for the future to be out-promoted for the personal glory of Walter M. Singler. This has ceased to be a movement in the interest of the farmer when it is considered that Mr. Singler offers to allow milk to pass at 80 cents in spite of the strike if 90 cents of the established rate of $1.70 be paid to his milk pool.

"The dairy industry in this state is not built up to be the first in the Union to be destroyed overnight by the selfish interests of Walter M. Singler.

"In addition to having ceased to be an opportunity for the personal glorification of Walter M. Singler the situation has ceased to be an opportunity for the humiliation of our citizenship on our free and public highways as far as I am concerned.

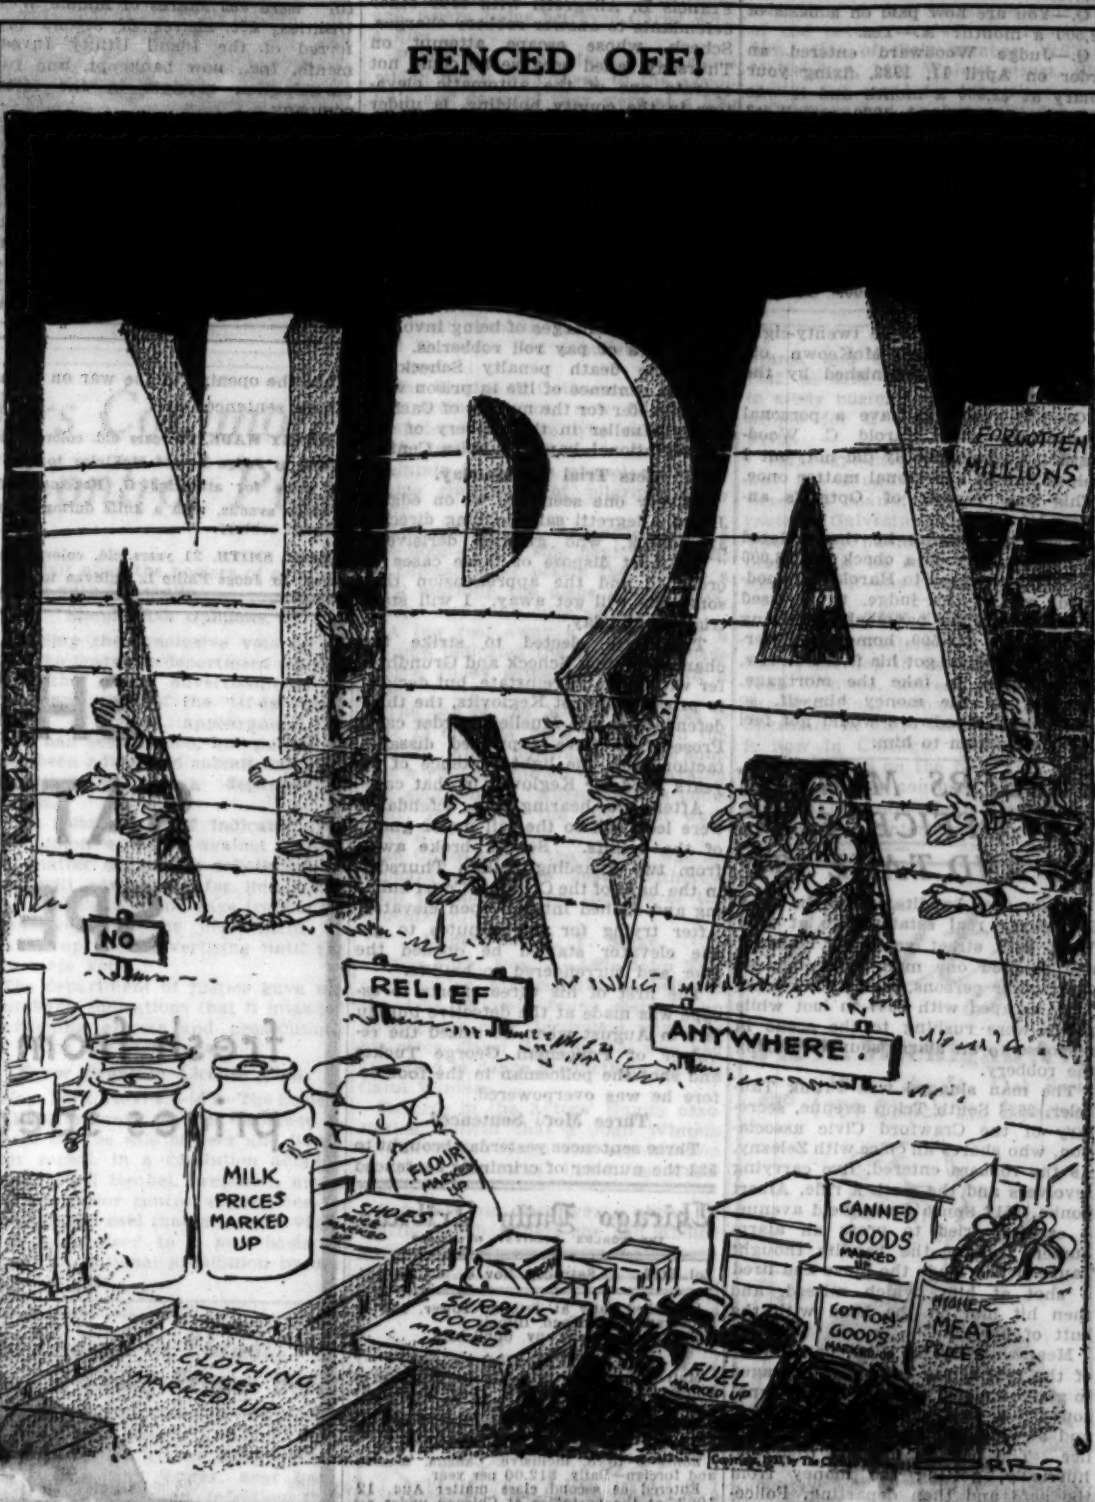

Must Suppress Violence.

"I am therefore directing every sheriff, district attorney, and police officer in this state to keep the highways open at all costs and to suppress violence and property destruction with all the powers granted by the law.

"I call upon the entire citizenship, including the farmers who understand the situation and who still have faith in American institutions and our government, to support to the limit local and state authority.

"I already have declared my sympathy with the purposes motivating a farm holiday, if national in scope, having reasonable assurance it would be conducted in a dignified and orderly withholding of products. I am in sympathy as well with the jobless and those engaged in business and com-

Illness Brings Nizie Down to Thin 800 Lbs.

Nizie, frank "baby" elephant whose seeming perpetual youth has baffled animal experts, is now providing them with a new riddle. He is a victim of rheumatism, believed unknown in the elephant world, and, with sunken cheeks and stiff, twisted joints, only rises with the aid of a 3-ton chain tackle and a sling.

Throughout the summer children have been asking attendants at the Lincoln park zoo where the "baby" elephant was. Nizie is not owned by the zoo, but was on exhibit there for several summers until he became ill. Then zoo officials refused to keep him, but he was too sick to be moved. A warm corner in the electrical department building of the park was found for Nizie, and there he remains.

Call Bone Specialist.

A famous bone specialist was called by Nizie's owner, a magician who in winter seasons used Nizie in a theater act. The bone specialist was mystified. The best known veterinarians in the region were sent for, but they admitted they could do little.

Although faint hope is held for his recovery by any save his nurse, Harvey Carlisle, described by zoo officials as "the man who knows more about elephants than any one in this part of the country," Nizie is in no pain now and has regained his appetite.

Supported by a huge sling, which encircles his abdomen, suspended from the chain tackle, Nizie moves his feet, bearing part of his weight, and even becomes playful with strangers who come to offer sympathy and give them an occasional spank with his trunk.

Nizie is Fine Patient.

"He's a fine patient," said Harvey. "He likes the violet-ray and sun-ray treatments I give him. He takes a whineless full of cod liver oil, which I shoot down his mouth with a syringe, every day.

"Nizie never complains, but he can't stand visitors who gush over him and tell him he looks badly, particularly women. He has no use for women anyway. Saw too much of them in the show business."

Nizie's story is a sequel of the footlights. Like any good trouper, he never fussed when he left overheated theaters for overheated barns.

Unable to Use Legs.

He kept up his appearance of youth and vigor until shortly after his owner had brought him to the zoo. For some time he could not use his legs at all, and was in pain constantly. His owner had spent much money on him

Nizie was bought as a baby elephant in Bombay, and for several years has traveled around the world with "the great Nicola," the magician, said the zoo official. Neighbor Fires Shots at Coal Office Bombers

A black powder bomb exploded this morning in front of the Webster Coal company offices, 1900 Webster avenue, aroused neighbors and caused about $150 damage. Abe Goldstein, 4211 North Paulina street, part owner of the coal company, said the company employees labor and had no trouble. Steve Swander, 1481 Webster avenue, a neighbor, who saw the bombers drive away in a car, fired several shots at them.

Cabinet Quits in Cuba After Day of Bombs

BY GUSTAVO RENO.

HAVANA, Nov. 3.—The Cuban cabinet resigned tonight, subject to President Ramon Grau San Martin's acceptance. Reliable information from the presidential palace indicated that Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, who the junta of five and then Grau succeeded, is willing to return to the presidency.

The reputed peace formula concocted in by all oppositionists except the student directorate, which still supports Grau, is that Col. Carlos Mandata, head of the Nationalist movement, become president within twenty-four hours, naming De Cespedes secretary of state. This would be followed by Mandata resigning and De Cespedes automatically becoming president.

U. S. Recognizes De Cespedes.

De Cespedes is looked on favorably because he had United States recognition in his last government. De Cespedes is expected to call at once on American Ambassador Sumner Welles for support, even to the extent of asking marines to disembark from the ring of American warships around Cuba.

A bomb rocked the city at 11:30 tonight, considerably damaging a downtown hardware store. Three persons were seriously wounded. This was the eleventh bombing of the day.

The most serious of the bombings killed a youth and wounded five others. The bomb was thrown into the doorway of the bakery at San Miguel and Gervasio streets.

21 Bombs in Two Days.

Other bombs damaged radio station CMCA, the home of Dr. Jose Cabrera, a dentist, and furniture store. Employees of the public works department housed in the ancient Santa Clara convent quit work today after a ten pound bomb was found in the patio. Most of the twenty-one bombs set off in the last two days were of the same type—an iron pipe filled with explosives and metal scraps and capped at both ends.

Hawaii Laughs as U. S. Asks How Much Coal It Needs

HONOLULU, Nov. 3.—(R)—Members of the Hawaiian senate, whose Christmas is little different in temperature from their Fourth of July, got a laugh today at the expense of Washington. They were informed by the local unemployment relief commission that it had received a message from the federal administration asking the amount of coal needed for re-lighting this winter in Hawaii. The members suggest a reply: "Guess again."

Seize Man for Threat Note to Reynolds Heir

Winston-Salem, N. C., Nov. 3.—(Special.)—John Lanier, 35, was arrested early this morning by Forsyth county authorities on a charge of extortion by threats to kidnap Mrs. Richard J. Reynolds Jr., wife of the 27 year old heir to the R. J. Reynolds tobacco millions.

After repeated questioning he admitted the charge.

Mrs. Reynolds is a sister-in-law of Libby Holman Reynolds, widow of Smith Reynolds, whose mysterious death from a bullet wound was a sensation here last year.

Lanier's arrest followed two threatening letters received by Reynolds, the first on Oct. 28 and the second a few days later. The letters demanded that Reynolds put $10,000 in a package and place the package about 15 feet from the sidewalk at the corner of Dunleith and East Third streets at 1 o'clock this morning. Failure to do this, the letters stated, would result in the kidnapping of Mrs. Reynolds.

Notify Federal Authorities.

After receiving the letters Mr. Reynolds communicated with his attorney, Stratton Coyner, and Sheriff J. Trammell Scott. Mr. Coyner and Sheriff Scott stopped in Washington Tuesday after making a trip to New York and conveyed the information to J. Edgar Hoover, head of the bureau of criminal investigation of the department of justice. Two federal detectives from Charlotte immediately went to work on the case in cooperation with Forsyth officers.

The decoy package was placed at the designated spot about 1 o'clock this morning and members of Sheriff Scott's staff hid near by and awaited developments.

Around 6 o'clock Lanier showed up and walked back and forth past the spot several times, finally pausing and taking up the parcel, the sheriff said.

The letters in the case threatened only Mrs. Reynolds, according to information released by Stratton Coyner, attorney for Mr. Reynolds. Mrs. Reynolds has been apprised of the letters and their nature.

Mrs. Reynolds, formerly Elizabeth Dillard, was married to young Reynolds last January. The marriage united two of the outstanding tobacco families of North Carolina.

Recalls Shooting of Brother.

The attempt at extortion directed against Reynolds and his wife recalls the sensational events of July 6, 1932. Z. Smith Reynolds, younger brother of Dick Reynolds, was shot to death at the Reynolds estate following a wild party given by Smith Reynolds and his stage singer wife, Libby Holman Reynolds, in honor of Blanche Turkia, dramatic star, who at the time was a guest in the Reynolds home.

About 1 o'clock that morning, after most of the members of the party had departed from the estate, the mysterious shooting occurred. A suicide theory was discarded.

Indictments for murder were returned against Libby Holman Reynolds and "Ab" Walker, lifelong friend of the younger of the two Reynolds boys. But the cases were not pressed when they came to trial.

Germany Bans Professor's Book as 'Too Militaristic'

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

BERLIN, Nov. 3.—Following suppression of Prof. Ewald Banse's manual, "Military Science," another book, "Space and People in the World War," by the same author, was banned today because of its militaristic tendencies.

Official comment brands Prof. Banse, who was appointed by the Hitler regime to the chair of military science at the Brunswick Technical university, as an "irresponsible theorist whose absurd strategic theories are not to be taken seriously by the German public."

"I might tell you how I happened to appoint a personal receiver. I went into a large department store one cold day to buy some underwear. While I was there I met Mr. Dickinson. ASK WOODWARD TO TESTIFY AT U. S. QUIZ TODAY

Seek Judge's Story of Appointments.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward will be given an opportunity to take the witness stand and tell his own story of the receivership appointments in his court when the congressional inquiry in the United States court-house is resumed this morning.

The judiciary subcommittee of the house of representatives, headed by Congressman Tom D. McKeown of Oklahoma, decided to invite Judge Woodward to appear at a conference yesterday, following another stormy hearing, which kept an overflow crowd straining to catch the testimony of the witnesses.

The invitation was left in Judge Woodward's chambers. He remained in chambers through the day and left at about 7 p. m. without giving any indication whether he would or would not accept.

At yesterday's hearing there were further intimations of favoring to the law firm of Loucks, Eckert & Peterson, which employed Judge Woodward's son, Harold, and bitter clashes between counsel and witnesses.

Judge Carpenter Testifies.

Outstanding developments were: 1. Testimony of former Federal Judge George A. Carpenter, who retired July 1, that Fred Hummel, Jr., D. Busch and Frank McKee, receivers whom Judge Woodward directed in the Prince & Whitely bankruptcy case, were "very able men."

2. Testimony of Judge Carpenter that in his twenty-three years on the federal bench he always rotated receivership appointments, tried to equalize their compensation and never had anything to do with the selection of receiver's counsel.

3. Testimony of Gen. Abel Davis, chairman of the Chicago Title and Trust company, tending to show that Judge Woodward forced the employment of Loucks, Eckert & Peterson as receiver's counsel in the Albert Pick-Bath receivership case.

4. Testimony of Saul B. Optner, receiver under Judge Woodward of the Medinah Athletic club, that prior to his first appointment from Judge Woodward he never employed the firm of Loucks, Eckert & Peterson.

5. Testimony of Attorney Irving Herriott, who filed the bill in the Medinah Athletic club case, that he suggested the Chicago Title and Trust company as receiver, but that Judge Woodward appointed Optner instead.

Mr. Herriott also testified that a committee from the club urged Judge Woodward to remove Optner because he is a Jew, but Judge Woodward refused to do so. Loucks, Eckert & Peterson were counsel for Optner in this case.

Tells of Fee for Taft.

Judge Carpenter testified to the administration of the Rock Island, Chicago and Alton, and Chicago and Eastern Illinois railway receiverships in his court and gave his idea of a moderate bill for attorney's services. The bill was rendered by the late William Howard Taft, President of the United States and later chief justice of the United States Supreme court.

He also amused the committee and observers with a story of how he came to appoint Jacob M. Dickinson, secretary of war under President Taft, as receiver of the Rock Island. When asked by Examiner Marshall Solberg to tell how he had administered the estate he replied that the question was a difficult one, but continued:

"I might tell you how I happened to appoint a personal receiver. I went into a large department store one cold day to buy some underwear. While I was there I met Mr. Dickinson. When I returned to the courtroom there was a petition before me for the appointment of a receiver for the Rock Island. I then sent for Mr. Dickinson."

Reorganizes the Property.

Judge Carpenter said the estate was reorganized without a sale of the property.

Q.—[By Examiner Solberg.]—And there was a great saving, wasn't there? A.—The great saving in that case was due to the fact that everybody agreed what should be done. The final decree had the approval of 33 per cent of those interested.

Q.—Was William H. Taft in the case? A.—He was asked to

Don't A—Twenty-five thousand dollars.
Q—And it resulted in the return of $3,000,000? A—You mustn't overlook the work the receiver did. He considered the bill too small, however, and I told Mr. Dickinson to write to Mr. Taft and tell him so. Mr. Taft wrote back that that was his bill and he would not change it. How Receivers Were Chosen.

Q—During your experience on the bench you handled a great many receiverships? A—I suppose the average number.
Q—What was your practice in the appointment of receivers? A—When I had the bankruptcy business I rotated the appointments and tried to equalize the compensation among the various receivers.

Q—The same was true in the selection of receiver's counsel? A—I never had anything to do with that. Those things always get through the underground railroad.
Q—Do you know Fred Hummel? A—Yes, a long time, ever since I went on the bench. He's a very able man.

Q—Do you know E. D. Buehl and Frank McKee? A—Yes, I think they were all doing business when I went on the bench.
Q—And there is no question about their ability? A—O no!

Q—What had been brought out in previous testimony that Judge Woodward refused to appoint Hummel individually or jointly with Buehl and McKee as receivers in the Prince & Whitley case, asserting that Hummel was not known to him? A—That was the Chicago Title and Trust company as receiver and suggested the employment of Loucks, Eckert & Peterson as counsel.

Brig. Gen. Davis Testifies.
Brig. Gen. Davis yesterday told the story of the appointment of Loucks, Eckert & Peterson as counsel for the Chicago Title and Trust company in the Albert Pick-Baker receivership case.

Edwin Sims [former United States attorney] came to me and said the Albert Pick-Baker company was in serious difficulty," Gen. Davis testified. "He asked me if the Chicago Title and Trust company was in a position to act as receiver. I told him we were and from his conversation I ascertained that he was familiar with the matter. I asked if he would serve as counsel and he said he would.

"Judge Woodward called me to his chambers and asked whether I had given consideration to the employment of counsel, and I told him of Mr. Sims. The judge told me that he had great confidence in Walter Eckert, and we talked the matter over. I thought I had a solution in the suggestion that Mr. Eckert and Mr. Sims act as co-counsel. It was agreeable to all, but Mr. Eckert suggested that Mr. Sims might be in a difficult position because he had represented the Manufacturers' Trust company of New York, creditors of the company.

Reports Back to Judge.
"I reported this to the judge and he said he thought it would be best to employ Mr. Eckert."

A. G. Manning of Kokomo, Ind., who filed the petition against the Davis Industries case, testified that he suggested the appointment of Ollie Buck of Kokomo as receiver for that company because four-fifths of the business was in Kokomo.

Judge Woodward appointed Saul Optner, said Mr. Manning. "We again urged the appointment of Mr. Buck and they were made co-receivers. Most of the administration of the estate was handled in Indianapolis, before Federal Judge Baitzell. We had some trouble getting Optner to sign the necessary papers, so finally we cited him to appear before Judge Baitzell. Harold Woodward accompanied us to Indianapolis as the representative of Loucks, Eckert & Peterson, who had been named counsel for the receivers.

Harold Woodward walked up before the bench and said: 'I am the son of Judge Woodward of Chicago.' Judge Baitzell replied: 'That makes no difference in this court.' After that we had no trouble getting the papers signed."

Q—What did Walter Eckert do in Indiana in this case? A—He presented no petitions and made no record there.

Q—What fees were paid in Indiana? A—Judge Baitzell allowed Buck $1,500 and our law firm $1,500.

$9,000 Fee for Optner.

Q—What did Judge Woodward allow Optner? A—I only know from hearsay that he got $9,500. [Previous testimony had shown that Eckert's firm received $3,000 in this case].

When Optner took the stand Examiner Solberg asked him how he came to be appointed in the Davis Industries case.

"All the attorneys, including Mr. Manning, representing the creditors, appeared in court and asked that I be named co-receiver with Mr. Buck," Optner said.

Attorney Harriott, representing the second mortgage holders in the Medinah Athletic club case, testified that he originally asked Judge Woodward to appoint the Chicago Title and Trust company as receiver.

"Judge Woodward said the property involved was a club and that he did not believe a corporate receiver should be appointed for that reason. He said he had a man recommended to him by Judge Wilkerson. His name was Saul Optner."

"Shortly after Mr. Optner was appointed a delegation of lawyers, officers, and members of the club went to Judge Woodward and demanded that Optner be removed because he was a Jew and Jews were not eligible for membership in the club.

Insist Optner Be Removed.
"The members insisted that Optner be removed, that if he wasn't they would wreck the club and urge members not to pay their dues. I stayed in chambers after they left and Judge Woodward told me he didn't know at the time that Mr. Optner was a Jew or that his appointment would cause trouble. He said he would not have appointed him if he had known this. But the judge added: 'I'll be damned if I'll remove him now.'"

Herriott precipitated a row with Examiner Solberg when he testified that early in the Medinah Athletic club receivership proceedings Solberg suggested that if Optner could not be removed as receiver he [Solberg] should be appointed counsel. Mr. Solberg heatedly challenged the statement.

"I recall you saying that you were going to get Judge Woodward," said Herriott.
Q—[By Solberg]—Did I say that? Did I say anything about favoritism or nepotism? A—I don't recall that you did.

Try to Stop Examination.
Chairman McKewon asked that this line of examination be stopped, but Solberg continued, asking Herriott whether he had not been quite bitter in the proceeding.
"No, I've been amused," said Herriott.

Mr. Solberg then took the stand and

FLEET TO RETURN TO ATLANTIC IN SPRING AFTER FOUR YEARS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 3.—The United States fleet will be concentrated in the Atlantic next spring for the first time in almost four years.

President Roosevelt today authorized the fleet to start steaming from the Pacific to the east coast after the winter months. It will return to the Pacific in the fall.

The last time the two forces were together in the Atlantic was in May, 1930. During the last 18 months the navy has explained that the Pacific fleet was kept in the Pacific for economy. The situation in the far east was understood, however, to have played a part. Japan several times asserted that the Pacific concentration contributed to tensions in American-Japanese relations.

The move will permit the men of the fleet whose homes are on the east coast to visit them. The personnel to return will total 50,000 enlisted men and 4,500 officers.

ACTION PLEASES JAPAN.
[Copyright 1933: By the New York Times, TOKIO, Nov. 3.—The recall of the United States fleet to the Atlantic comes as a welcome surprise to the Japanese people. The news was received with open pleasure by all except the chauvinists, whose theories of a permanent crisis were further debunked by the President's action. The fleet's presence in the Pacific furnished a standing text for the pro-Jingo and armament agitators.

testified under oath that he had never appeared before Judge Woodward in the Medinah case and had not made the statement that he intended to "get Judge Woodward."

"I did say, however, that I thought Judge Woodward should resign from the bench," Mr. Solberg continued, "because he had been guilty of favoritism in appointing his son's employer as attorney for the receiver in the Medinah Athletic club case. I learned of Judge Woodward's misconduct—and that's what I said it, misconduct—when I met Optner, three weeks after the appointment, and I told him [Optner] that I thought it was improper."

Avoids Direct Answers.
The examination of Optner was frequently delayed by arguments between him and Mr. Solberg over the manner in which questions should be answered. Optner seldom gave a direct answer, but attempted to make speeches of no apparent bearing on the inquiry. Members of the committee often admonished him to answer the questions asked. At one time it appeared that Solberg and Optner would come to blows, but Chairman McKewon rebuked the witness and Mr. Solberg apologized.

After Optner had repeatedly given explanations instead of answers Mr. Solberg warned him: "Mr. Optner, this is a congressional committee with some dignity. Answer my questions or it might not be well for you."

"And it might not be well for you, either," Optner snapped with rage gleaming in his eyes.

Later Optner charged that the whole purpose of the investigation was personal and Chairman McKewon rebuked him again.

"This inquiry," Congressman McKewon said, "is based upon a resolution of congress and a report of the

SCHECK IN COURT AGAIN AFTER HIS ESCAPE IS FOILED

Chicago Bar association. Your remark is uncalled for. Answer the questions that are asked you and when counsel has finished you may make whatever statement you desire."

Optner said he was appointed receiver for the Medinah Athletic club by Judge Woodward on June 20, 1931, and that he retained Loucks, Eckert & Peterson as counsel. Following an argument between Solberg and the witness over the present management of the club Optner said: "When you [referring to Examiner Solberg] were there [as a member of the club's legal committee] you had your ideas about how it should be run, didn't you?"

"Certainly I did. That's why I resigned after you came there," replied Solberg.

Let's find out how much Optner got out of this thing," said Chairman McKewon.

Q—[By Solberg]—Mr. Optner, what fees have you received? A—About $30,000.

Q—You are now paid on a basis of $2,500 a month? A—Yes.

Q—Judge Woodward entered an order on April 11, 1933, fixing your salary at $7,500 a month and it was retroactive to Sept. 1, 1932, is that right? A—That's right.

Q—So you've been there twenty-eight months? A—That's right.

Q—Did you ever have a personal transaction with Harold C. Woodward? A—I personally did not, but I helped him in a personal matter once. [This was typical of Optner's answers.]

Under questioning he then related how he had drawn a check for $6,000 and given the cash to Harold C. Woodward, son of the judge, to be used in completing the payments on River Woodward's $17,500 home in Riverside. He said he got his father-in-law, Louis Levin, to take the mortgage, but put up the money himself, so that young Woodward would not feel under obligation to him.

ROBBERS MENACE 9 IN OFFICE; SLUG 1 AND TAKE $347

Six masked bandits raided the John G. Zelevy real estate office at 2856 West 28th street yesterday, shot at and slugged one man, and menaced eight other persons, men and women. They escaped with $347 in loot while police were rushing to the scene in response to an alarm sounded during the robbery.

The man slugged was Frank Taubler, 2626 South Tripp avenue, secretary of the Crawford Civic association, who shares an office with Zelevy. As the robbers entered, five carrying revolvers and the sixth a rifle, Albert Sonka, 2517 South Springfield avenue, a cashier, tried to press an alarm buzzer. One of the bandits thought Taubler had made the move and fired a shot at him, which missed, and then hit him on the head with the butt of his gun.

Meanwhile Frank Riha, part owner of the real estate company, managed to give an alarm unnoticed. The signal sounded a loud bell inside the office, and also flashed an alarm to the police. The bandits finished their job hurriedly, getting the money from the safe and then departing. Policemen arrived a couple of minutes later.

8 Bailiffs Guard Killer and Companions.

John Schneck, who made his third unsuccessful dash for freedom on Thursday in the Criminal Court building, appeared yesterday before Judge Francis B. Allegretti with four other defendants to answer robbery charges. Schneck, whose escape attempt on Thursday failed because he could not operate one of the automatic elevators in the county building, is under sentence of death for the murder of Policeman John G. Sevik during a previous effort to escape from the courtroom of Judge Charles P. Mohr.

Eight bailiffs marshaled the procession yesterday as Schneck, Carl Grundhoefer, Frank Keglitz, George and Charles Soder appeared in the courtroom manacled together. They were arraigned on charges of being involved in a series of pay roll robberies. Besides the death penalty Schneck is under a sentence of life in prison with Grundhoefer for the murder of Cashier Harry Mueller in the robbery of the First National bank of Milwaukee Center.

Sets Trial for Monday.
"Every one seems to be on edge," Judge Allegretti said, looking directly at Schneck, who grinned derisively. "We must dispose of these cases in order to and the apprehension that some one will get away. I will start trial on Monday."

The state elected to strike the charges against Schneck and Grundhoefer with leave to reinstate, but decided to proceed against Keglitz, the third defendant in the Mueller murder case. Prosecutors have expressed dissatisfaction with the light sentence of 34 years fixed for Keglitz in that case.

After the hearing the defendants were led back to the jail under guard of the bailiffs. Schneck broke away from two guarding bailiffs Thursday in the hall of the Criminal Court building and dashed into an open elevator. After trying for ten minutes to get the elevator started he opened the door and surrendered to bailiffs.

The first of his three efforts to escape was made at the detective bureau late in August when he seized the revolver of Policeman George Tucker and shot the policeman in the foot before he was overpowered.

Inventory Places $545,378 Valuation on Cermak Estate

Anton J. Cermak, late mayor of Chicago, who died of an assassin's bullet on March 6, left an estate which was given an estimated value of $545,378 in an inventory filed yesterday in the Probate court.

His son-in-law, State Senator Richey V. Graham, filed the inventory on behalf of the executors, who are the Lawndale National bank and Mayor Cermak's three daughters. It was approved by John F. Kenney, assistant to Probate Judge John F. O'Connell.

The inventory disclosed that in common with many other Chicagoans, the late mayor lost heavily in the collapse of Samuel Insull's utility empire. Among the stocks listed as "doubtful" were 465 shares of Middle West Utilities, $90 shares of second preferred of the Insull Utility Investments, Inc., now bankrupt, and two participation receipts in the latter company.

19 Stock Items "Doubtful."
Altogether, the inventory listed 19 stock items as doubtful, against four which are deemed good. These four, which at present prices are worth $17,050, are 721 shares in the Lawndale National bank, 11 shares of Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, shares in the Homan Building and Loan association with a withdrawal value of $9,450, and 10 shares of Stewart-Warner corporation.

The other items in the inventory were personal effects valued at $1,000, cash of $36,330, real estate appraised at $42,250, bonds and tax warrants of a face value of $99,400, notes deemed good of $85,500, mortgages, some now in foreclosure, of $100,800; an interest in the real estate partnership of Cermak & Serhanth valued at $163,779, and money due from that partnership amounting to $23,300.

Held State and City Paper.
Mayor Cermak was the owner of $25,000 worth of city tax warrants, of $40,000 in Illinois highway bonds and $21,000 in forest preserve and sanitary district bonds, the latter in default on interest.

The real estate which he owned included the home at 2348 South Millard avenue, the country home at Antioch in Lake county, and some subdivision lots nearby, the office of Cermak & Serhanth and a Chicago corner occupied by a filling station.

He also owned memberships in the Club Zebek, Ciska Benda, the Press club, the Medinah and Lake Shore Athletic clubs and the Piquette Heights, Medinah, Cedar Crest and Mohawk Country clubs.

SLAIN GAMBLER IS LINKED WITH WINKLER QUIZ

Still a Mystery.

Harry Teuber, small fry gambler who was shot to death on Thursday as his nails were being manicured in a barber shop at 1031 North Clark street, was definitely linked yesterday with the closed 225 night club at 225 East Superior street, and by implication with the much investigated plot to dispose of bonds taken in mail robberies.

The 225 club was operated by Edgar B. Leberberger, who committed suicide or was slain on Oct. 6 after he had been indicted with others for participation in the bond disposal. The club was a favorite hangout of Gus Winkler, north side gang chief who was slain three days after Leberberger's death, probably because he was suspected of acting as an intermediary in the mail robbery investigation.

Scaglione Supplies Link.

Teuber's connection with the 225 club was established by Vincent Scaglione, an elderly waiter who is the father of Annette Scaglione, with whom Teuber lived at 4915 Drexel boulevard although he had a wife and three children in a north side home. Scaglione was a member of the Drexel boulevard household.

"Annette and I lived in New Orleans," said Scaglione. "We met Teuber there, under the name of Wheeler. At the time I was out of work and he told me that if I would come to Chicago he would see that I got a job in the 225 club; that he knew the management well and it would be no trouble to care for him as a patron. I went to the club and the next day he wrote me, when he heard my name: 'It's all right; we know all about you. I want to work and stayed there till the club was closed.'"

Winkler Pointed Out as Patron.

While on this job, Scaglione added, another waiter had pointed out Gus Winkler to him as a patron. The police, after hearing Scaglione's story and that of Annette, released both. Father and daughter said they would return to New Orleans.

The police admitted, however, that they had found nothing further to indicate that Teuber was in the bond plot. They were at a loss for a motive to explain the killing.

Teuber was a cheap hoodlum," said Lieut. Otto Branson of the detective bureau's homicide squad. He double-crossed his wife and went to live with Annette. Probably he double-crossed some of his hoodlum friends and they got even. He was supporting two households and it probably was necessary for him to do things to get money that were not ethical even in hoodlum circles."

Widow Meets Other Woman.

At the inquest into Teuber's death Mrs. Elsie Teuber, the widow, and Annette met for the first time. Each declared she had not been aware of the existence of the other. Mrs. Teuber said she believed her husband was a job lot salesman of merchandise. She said she knew nothing of any gang connections he may have had.

Annette declared that Teuber had never told her he was married and that he promised, some time in the future, to marry her. She fell in love with him, she added, after a brief acquaintance that began two years ago.

The inquest left the mystery of the killing as dense as it was before. The two barbers and the manicure girl who were in the shop when the killer fired from behind a door continued to insist that they knew nothing of the slayer's identity. Annette, whose hair was being cut when the shots were fired, was equally ignorant. She vanished after the shooting and eluded the police until yesterday morning when she appeared at the inquest.

Capt. Charles McGurn of the Chicago avenue police station asserted there had been no evidence discovered to show that Teuber ever handled any stolen bonds.

BANKER BINGA IS SENTENCED TO 1 TO 10 YEARS

Embezzler Is Denied a New Trial.

Jesse Binga, 68 years old, south side Negro banker, was denied a new trial yesterday by Judge James F. Fardy in the Criminal court and sentenced to one to ten years in the penitentiary for the embezzlement of $32,500 from the defunct Binga State bank. Binga was allowed 60 days in which to perfect an appeal to a higher court.

The sentence yesterday ended a case in which there had been 40 continuances since the indictment was returned more than 30 months ago. Binga was first tried on the embezzlement charge in July, 1932, before Judge John F. Ryals. The jury was dismissed when the members failed to reach a verdict after deliberating for 24 hours.

Found Guilty on June 3. The second trial of the banker was opened on May 19, 1933, in the court of Judge Fardy. On June 3 a jury returned a verdict of guilty after eight hours' deliberation. The motion for a new trial was continued five times before action was taken yesterday.

Binga, who was president of the closed Binga bank, was charged with embezzling money entrusted to him by depositors for purchase of stock in a national bank. The bank was never formed and the prosecution asserted that the money was not accounted for when the Binga bank closed on July 31, 1930.

Contention of Defense.

Defense attorneys contended in the two trials that under the law funds to be used for the purchase of national bank stock cannot be placed on deposit in a state bank. No evidence existed, the defense contended, to show that Binga had embezzled the funds. Binga, who had sobbed out a denial of the charges against him during the first trial, accepted the guilty verdict at the second trial and the sentence imposed yesterday without a show of emotion.

Roosevelt Ponders Common Sense Liquor Control Plan

Washington, D. C., Nov. 3.—[Special.]—The administration is striving to complete a "common sense" formula for dealing with the changed liquor situation in the expectation that the prohibition era will come to a practical end on Tuesday.

It is then that the required thirty-sixth state is expected to vote for repeal of the 18th amendment. With only three states to make up the necessary number, six will be voting—Kentucky, South Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Utah and North Carolina.

President Roosevelt was understood today to be near reaching a general administrative policy to govern enforcement agencies between Tuesday and Dec. 5, the day on which ratification of repeal probably will have been carried out in state conventions. So far the President has been reluctant to discuss the subject in the interim.

Rules as to Advertising.

Indications have multiplied, however, that the government will diminish dry enforcement as rapidly as is consistent with good order. Today the postoffice department made known its new policy regarding liquor advertising. As soon as the 36th state has voted for repeal, regardless of the state convention process, all postal regulations promulgated under the 18th amendment will be considered at an end.

After Tuesday liquor advertisements will be admitted to the mails except where intended for dry states and liquor after repeal, in a resolution adopted today. Paul Benkel, president, urged that the liquor control regulations be observed and said that otherwise violations might lead to a new basis of appeal for national prohibition by dry organizations.

FIND U. S. DANCER SLAIN AT FOOT OF MOUNT OF OLIVES

Body of Indian Moslem at Her Side.

JERUSALEM, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The bodies of Joan Winters, described as an American professional dancer, and an Indian Moslem were found outside the city wall today. The bodies were lying at the foot of the Mount of Olives, near the Garden of Gethsemane, where Judas betrayed Christ with a kiss.

Police said they found no clues which might lead them to the assassin and declared they were at a loss to account for a motive.

The slain man was identified tentatively as Mohamed Karaman, an Indian civil servant from Madras.

Girl Beaten About Head.

Reports of authorities indicated that Miss Winters and the Moslem had been killed 48 hours or more before their bodies were found.

Miss Winters had severe injuries to her head, probably the cause of death, and Karaman had a bullet wound in his back.

The Garden of Gethsemane, a quiet and secluded spot, now belongs to Franciscan Fathers who care for it with devotion and zeal. In it they maintain a modern chapel which attracts thousands of pilgrims every year.

The entrance to the garden is by a low door on the side next the Mount of Olives. Just beside the door is a rock marking the place where Peter, James and John once slept.

A few feet away a fragment of a column indicated the traditional place where Judas betrayed Jesus with a kiss.

The top of the Mount of Olives is just 15 minutes' walk away from the summit. About halfway up to the summit a ruin is pointed out as marking the spot where "when He was come near, He beheld the city, and wept over it."

In Christ's time the garden was an orchard and there Jesus withdrew with his disciples on the eve of the crucifixion.

Danced on N. Y. Stage.

New York, Nov. 3.—(AP)—John Taft of Brooklyn said tonight he believed the Joan Winters found slain in an olive grove near Jerusalem might be his niece, Carol Godfrey, 25, who had appeared in dance productions here as Carol Winters.

Records of the Actors' Equity association showed that a Joan Winters who withdrew from the organization in 1930 also was listed as Carol Godfrey.

Taft said his niece was a native of Seattle, Wash., where she had studied

GOLDBERG'S DEAD AND BATTERY B WILL STUFF HIM

Goldberg, the world war mascot of Battery B, 128th field artillery, will never occupy a hero's grave. He's going to be stuffed.

Goldberg, whose father was a Yorkshire and mother a Irish terrier, or vice versa, died yesterday in an Evanston animal hospital. He was 18½ years old. He is believed to have been the last living dog war mascot.

Battery adopted him when he was two weeks old, in 1917, and smuggled him aboard the transport which took its members to France. He was named once in the Argonne. Near Rambouillet he went A. W. O. L. and did not return to his outfit for a month.

Smuggled back to the United States after the war, Goldberg was consigned to the care of a faithless cook, who sold him. A few years ago members of the battery traced and recovered him. One of their number, William McKelghan, 1615 Walnut street, Wilmette, had cared for him since then.

Goldberg had an honorary dog tag issued for him by the Wilmette village board, and the Illinois Pet Memorial cemetery at Hinsdale set aside a burial plot for him. He will never occupy it, however. Mr. McKelghan said last night that the boys of B Battery are going to have him stuffed.

Smuggled back to the United States after the war, Goldberg was consigned to the care of a faithless cook, who sold him. A few years ago members of the battery traced and recovered him. One of their number, William McKelghan, 1615 Walnut street, Wilmette, had cared for him since then.

Goldberg had an honorary dog tag issued for him by the Wilmette village board, and the Illinois Pet Memorial cemetery at Hinsdale set aside a burial plot for him. He will never occupy it, however. Mr. McKelghan said last night that the boys of B Battery are going to have him stuffed.

Battery adopted him when he was two weeks old, in 1917, and smuggled him aboard the transport which took its members to France. He was named once in the Argonne. Near Rambouillet he went A. W. O. L. and did not return to his outfit for a month.

FAIR FOUNDERS CLEAR WAY FOR 1934 REOPENING

Legislation and Support Are Next Steps.

BY EARL MULLIN.
The first formal move toward the reopening of the Fair in 1934 was made yesterday when the members of the World's Fair association, meeting in the directors' room of the Administration building, unanimously voted to amend the constitution of A Century of Progress Exposition to permit the Exposition to run during the summer of 1934.

The question of actual reopening was not even broached at the meeting. The action of the directors and association members was taken with the understanding that the Fair would reopen if all other requirements were met. The next move in the reopening program will be the passage of certain legislation now pending in the Illinois legislature. While the bills will not come up for consideration for another two weeks, legislative leaders believe they will pass with little opposition.

More Support Required.
Major Lenox R. Lohr, general manager of the Fair, made it clear, however, that even passage of the legislation does not necessarily mean that the Fair will be reopened. Fair officials said that before a definite decision to reopen is made much more support than has been forthcoming will be demanded from Chicago business that derived the greatest benefit from the last season. Hotel and transportation agencies have indicated their willingness to cooperate, and have even purchased large blocks of admission tickets, but in general the business interests have been somewhat cold, it was said.

A statement by President Rufus C. Dawes on yesterday's action pointed out that adverse action would have terminated all consideration of holding the Fair next year.

Statement of Mr. Dawes.
"The question as to whether the Fair shall be continued in 1934 was not passed upon," said Mr. Dawes. "The action of the members of the association makes it possible to continue the Fair, but does not commit the Fair management to a continuation. The decision as to the continuation, to be made by the trustees, depends primarily on tangible evidence of a demand and financial support by the business interests and the people of Chicago, and on necessary legislation by the Illinois legislature and the south park commission."

The members of the World's Fair association who voted at yesterday's meeting are persons who made early contributions so that the Fair might get under way. There are two types of membership—founder, in which a $1,000 fee is paid, and sustaining, which represents a payment of a $50 fee. Originally there were 33 members of the association, 267 founder and 56 sustaining members. Since the organization was established 26 members have died. At the meeting votes were cast by 33 founder members and 9 sustaining members, the others voting by proxy. Not a dissenting voice was raised at the meeting, all speakers being emphatic in their approval that the Fair reopen next year.

Mrs. Baur for Reopening.
Mrs. Bertha Baur was one who argued that the Fair should reopen. She brought out, in a colloquy with President Dawes, that the Fair had reduced a $12,500,000 indebtedness to $5,000,000 and at the present time operates a plant worth approximately $21,000,000. Mr. Dawes said that if the Fair were not reopened next year this plant would be practically lost. He said also that in another year's operation the present indebtedness would be wiped out.

Other speakers at the meeting included Frank G. Logan, a founder member; Berger Oslund, an investment broker; Charles G. Vopicka, president of a brewing company; and Fair officials. Also present were Arthur Syer, Francis X. Busch, David H. Burnham, George Woodruff, Patrick Byrne, and Dr. Herman N. Bunden.

"The people of Chicago and surrounding states feel that there is a demand that the Fair reopen next year," said Mr. Oslund. "But I don't think that a small body such as this should take on the burden of the un-

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

A World's Fair carnival, as a gesture of farewell to A Century of Progress, will be staged tonight in the Bal Tabarin in the Hotel Sherman. Many entertainers known to night life patrons at the Fair will take part in the show. Out Mount's peep show, "Olympia," with Peggy, the Barker for this show, will be presented, as well as such performers as Faith Bacon, Princess Ahl, the Paul Sisters, Miss America, and Grant Withers.

Today's program at the Fair includes a concert in the Court of Honor at 12:30 p. m. by the Lane Technical High school band, and a concert in the court of the Hall of Science at 8 p. m. by the Salvation Army band.

St. Louis day will be celebrated at the Fair today by some 5,000 residents of that city who are expected to arrive in Chicago this morning. The program will begin at 2 p. m. in the Court of States and will include addresses by Mayor Dickman of St. Louis, President Rufus C. Dawes of the Exposition, and Mayor Kelly. The St. Louis city council and 75 policemen of that city will be in the party. Music will be furnished by A Century of Progress Guide band.

TRADE ASSOCIATION PROMISES SUPPORT FOR A FAIR IN 1934

The executive committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce yesterday pledged to A Century of Progress Exposition the association's support in the advance sale of tickets for a 1934 Fair.

Rufus C. Dawes, president, and other officials of the Exposition were praised in a set of resolutions adopted by the committee and made public by the association president, George W. Rossett.

"In a period of extreme discouragement, with all conditions unfavorable to your project, and without recourse to the usual federal and local subsidies, you have carried to completion a great creative work," the resolutions said. "Your success has enriched Chicago in wealth and spirit, enhanced its prestige and promoted national ties of faith and friendship."

certainty of profit. The business men of the city should pitch in and guarantee their help."

Mr. Lohr did not attend the meeting. He is now in Detroit conferring with automobile executives as to what their position would be if the Fair is reopened. A majority have signified their intention of participating.

Yesterday's attendance at the Fair was one of the smallest since the Exposition opened on May 27. At 11:30 p. m. 28,458 persons had entered the gates. This brought the grand total of attendance to 21,852,782.

MAN SENTENCED TO DIE GIVEN SOMETHING TO WORRY ABOUT—TAXES

(Copyright 1933: By the New York Times.)
PARIS, Nov. 3.—Because he has not paid the license tax on his motorcycle, Edmund Eganase has been served in due and proper form by a process server to appear in court. When he appears he will come manacled and escorted by two policemen, for Eganase is under sentence of death for murder.

It took the process server's utmost diligence to find Eganase. He searched for the culprit at his home, then at a hospital, then in prison and finally ran him to earth in a death cell, where, with due legal procedure, he notified Eganase that he must appear in court and pay his tax.

If the tax is paid, it will be with money stolen from the murdered man by Eganase, but at least the tax collector will be satisfied.

RICHARD GIVES 3 POLICE SQUADS SOME BUSINESS

Three police squads roared through Oak Park streets last night, all headed for 534 Wisconsin avenue. Only a minute before an alert telephone operator had called them.

"Some one from 534 Wisconsin avenue lifted up the receiver and whispered: 'Police, come quick,' she had said.

In record time the police arrived at the designated address, the home of Roy Frazier. The policemen drew guns and surrounded the house. Policemen James Skala and Clarence C. Simmons rushed to the front and pounded on the door. Mr. Frazier opened the door, somewhat startled.

"Who called the police? What's the trouble?" asked Skala.

For a moment Mr. Frazier seemed nonplussed. Then a smile broke over his face and he called his 5-year-old son, Richard, to the door.

"Little Richard and I were playing," explained Mr. Frazier. "We were playing firemen, soldiers, sailors, and police, and while we were playing police Richard left the room saying he was going to call the police."

"And I did," confessed Richard.

STRATOSPHERE FLIGHT PUT OFF ON EVE OF START

Winds Cause Change in Settle's Plans.

Strong winds, which gave no indication of diminishing, last night caused Lieutenant Commander T. G. W. Settle to abandon temporarily his second attempt to ascend to the stratosphere in a balloon.

At the time the decision was made some 150 persons were gathered on the Goodyear air field at 35th street in the World's Fair grounds, making preparations for the inflation of the balloon and installing the scientific equipment with which Commander Settle and Maj. Chester L. Fordney of the marine corps were to record scientific findings in the region beyond the atmosphere.

Settle Calls Off Flight.
The commander meanwhile had been in conference with Forecaster C. A. Donnel and W. P. Day at the weather bureau. After the evening weather reports from all parts of the continent had been gathered and studied the forecasters held that there was no chance of betterment. Commander Settle then announced the calling off of the ascent at this time.

"The wind velocity at the field is now between 15 and 20 miles an hour," he said. "There is no possibility it will get less, rather that it will increase. We should like to have winds of less than 6 miles an hour for perfect safety."

In the morning the meteorological indications were promising, but through the day unfavorable tendencies developed. We are not, however, giving up for good. We shall stand fast with the ground crew and will leave the scientific apparatus in the gondola. We may try again in a few days, perhaps Sunday night."

Snow Predicted for Tomorrow.
The official forecast showed little likelihood of fine balloon weather even then. Today is expected to be increasingly cloudy, with rain probable in the evening. Tomorrow, the forecast stated, would be colder, with the rain turning to snow. Shippers in the Chicago region were warned to protect their goods against temperatures of 25 to 32 degrees.

When Commander Settle's message was received the crew, which was laying out the canvas on which the balloon was to be placed for inflation with 127,000 cubic feet of hydrogen gas, halted its labors. The canvas was rolled up. Prof. Arthur H. Compton, who was installing apparatus in the gondola for the study of cosmic rays in the stratosphere, discontinued his work also.

Former Attempt Recalled.
In contrast to the morning of Aug. 5, when Commander Settle took off from Soldiers' field in his first attempt to reach the stratospheric level, there was no crowd of eager spectators last night. That morning many thousands

Wife of President Reports a 'Grand' Time in Chicago

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., Nov. 3.—[Special.]—Chicago, you gave Mrs. Roosevelt a "perfectly grand" time.

She said so this morning at her press conference. And went into enthusiastic details of her recent two day visit with you.

What did she like best?
A tall young man with "blue eyes that looked miles away," who he'd driven his dog team here from Alaska. She liked him a lot, loved his dogs.

Though she was careful to be "extremely polite" to the huskies, since they are part wolf. Two of them she petted; one she touched gently as the young man held him firmly in his arms.

Stays to Talk to Him.
Defying, I take it, a number of official ladies and gentlemen who wanted her to be off to some meeting or reception, she stayed and talked to the man and his dogs until somebody in charge told him quite pointedly, "Slim, they'll hang you if you don't let Mrs. Roosevelt go."

Whereupon the wife of the President slipped over a fence and went obediently to luncheon.

Another thing that gave her pleasure was the special exhibit at the Art Institute. She's congratulating herself that she got in just under the wire, before the exhibit closed.

Third, in her memoirs, is the Lincoln exhibit at the Illinois Hotel house. Business and professional women of Illinois, the President's wife thinks you are wonderful to have run your banquet so perfectly. You kept your word and started on the dot of six and finished in time to let her catch her train in case. She's grateful.

She's repeating the story Judge

Kelly, the lady judge from Memphis told at one of your meetings—how, "In a woman curiosity's always merely curiosity; in a man, it's scientific research."

She enjoyed Mayor Kelly's speech; she admired the vigor and vitality of Mrs. Henry Hardy, women's club chairman, she—well, there is a long list of women—and men, too—to whom she sends an enthusiastic thank you.

Aids on Housing Project.
At this morning's conference Mrs. Roosevelt revealed that she is to be largely responsible for the model housing project about to be worked out at Arthurdale, the subsistence farm-plus factory experiment in West Virginia. She is supervising the erection of "cheap but artistic" homes, not identical, in which will live the miners, long out of work, who will be sent there to work in a government factory and to farm for their needs.

The project itself, she likewise revealed, is a derivative of President Roosevelt's theory of a small factory in a rural community, with the work being farming, not to sell, but to eat. The general of this idea, the furniture factory in Hyde Park, New York.

Later Mrs. Roosevelt went to the mining communities near Morgantown, W. Va., and found the "Friends were operating a somewhat similar project. Out of the two experiments has grown the Arthurdale federal project.

EX-BANKER GETS ONE TO 10 YEARS AS EMBEZZLER

Charles J. Wolf, 36 years old, former president of the Citizens' State Bank of Melrose Park, was denied a new trial yesterday by Judge Walter E. Staften and sentenced to serve one to ten years for embezzlement of $38,000 from the funds of the Veterans' Park district.

Wolf was allowed a stay of sentence of 60 days in order to perfect an appeal. It was the second time that Wolf had been convicted on the embezzlement charge. In the first trial he was charged with embezzling the money from the bank.

The Supreme court reversed the conviction on the ground that the money was the property of the Veterans' Park district, of which Wolf was treasurer, instead of the bank as charged in the indictment. A new indictment was returned correcting this error.

CHRISTIAN JEWS FIGHT FOR PLACE IN HITLERLAND

Remain Germans.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

BERLIN, Nov. 3.—The German heroes, Baron Manfred von Richthofen, the "Red Knight," and Gen. Alexander von Linsingen of world war fame, and Baron Ehrenfried Guenther von Huenfeldt, the transatlantic flyer, as Germans with Jewish blood in their veins, would now rank as outcasts in Nazi Germany. The Association of German Christian Citizens of Non-Aryan Blood was told this at a meeting today at which pleas were raised for the toleration of the Christian Jews. Branded as renegades by the Jews and spurned by the Nazis, the fate of Christian Jews in Germany, who number between 4,000,000 and 6,000,000, is most tragic of all.

The newly formed association will negotiate with the government for measures to safeguard the rights of Christian Jews, obtain jobs for them and extend legal advice.

The Hitler government's extreme Nazism and anti-Semitism was denounced at the meeting by a Catholic priest, a Protestant pastor, and two Christian lawyers, of partly Jewish blood.

Lawyer Describes Tragedy.
Attorney Gunther Alexander-Katz, a war veteran whose father held a high position under the Hohenzollerns, described the tragedy among Germans who have discovered that Jewish blood existed somewhere in their family tree.

"We are Germans and we want to remain Germans," he said. "We hold that, besides the community of blood, there is a community of German nationalism born of common faith, a common experience and a common feeling."

"Something must be done to make it possible for those millions of non-Aryans in Germany, who for the most part have been Germans for generations, again to serve our dearly beloved fatherland as Germans together with our Aryan fellow citizens. The non-Aryan Christians are even in a worse plight than pure Jews because the latter have Jewish charities or similar organizations to assist them."

Catholic Prelate Speaks.
Mgr. Leichtenberg, a Catholic prelate, said his church regarded every baptized person, irrespective of race, as "a full fledged member of Christ's mystic body."

"Christian love demands just treatment of the Jew," said the Rev. Mr. Dräger, a Protestant pastor. "A boycott continues even against those non-Aryans who under the civil service law are permitted to continue their duties because of war service."

Attorney Wedell of Dueseldorf exclaimed:
Other religious elements also figured in the day's news. Leaders of the German Evangelical church assembled in Berlin under the chairmanship of the national bishop.

"It is self-evident that the church must see to it that on Nov. 12 the whole nation stands behind the leader Adolf Hitler in the election and referendum on his foreign policy," the bishop ordered.

Then, almost in the same breath, he told the churchmen they must abstain from politics.

New Religious Movement.
An organization of "Non-Christians" is seeking legal recognition of the "German Faith." The organization contends that the Christian religion has hampered the full development of the Germanic soul. Count Reventlow, a Nazi leader, belongs to this movement.

The "Non-Christians" also assert Christianity has deprived woman of the high position she held in Germanic society. They are requesting the government to recognize their movement as a third religion.

The Hitler creed was given 100 per cent support in the Protestant church in Brunswick. All pastors under 35 years have been ordered to join the Nazi storm troopers.

GERMAN KULTUR PLACED UNDER NAZI DICTATOR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
BERLIN, Nov. 3.—Chancellor Hitler's dictatorship was extended today to include the cultural life of the nation.

Under the direction of Dr. Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda and public enlightenment, the organization of the National Kultur association was completed. Dr. Goebbels will act as its president after the association is inaugurated Nov. 15.

The association embraces seven arts, namely, plastic arts, music, drama, letters, journalism, broadcasting, and film making. Membership is compulsory. The organization may reject or exclude members for lack of efficiency or moral deficiency.

ROBBERY VICTIM

MISS HELEN FULTON.

Miss Helen Fulton, daughter of the Frank D. Fultons of 884 Hill road, Winnetka, yesterday was the victim of a thief who took three dresses which she intended to wear to parties in Chicago. On their way downtown, Miss Fulton and her mother stopped. Miss Fulton, who is to make her debut Dec. 2, was to have her hair dressed. While this was in process Mrs. Fulton went into a restaurant and left the three frocks in her car. When she returned the car door had been broken and the dresses taken. Miss Fulton, however, did not miss the parties. Her mother made a speedy shopping tour and purchased new ones for her.

PEACE RESTORED IN HOLY LAND AS ARAB STRIKE ENDS

JERUSALEM, Nov. 3.—Peace was believed restored in the Holy Land today. The Arab executive, sponsor of the Arab demonstrations against increasing Jewish immigration, ordered all Arab establishments to reopen for normal business.

Since the strike was called a week ago outbreaks in many parts of Palestine resulted in the deaths of at least 30 persons. Hundreds were injured. Authorities expressed confidence the situation was well in hand for the present, but continued to maintain a close watch.

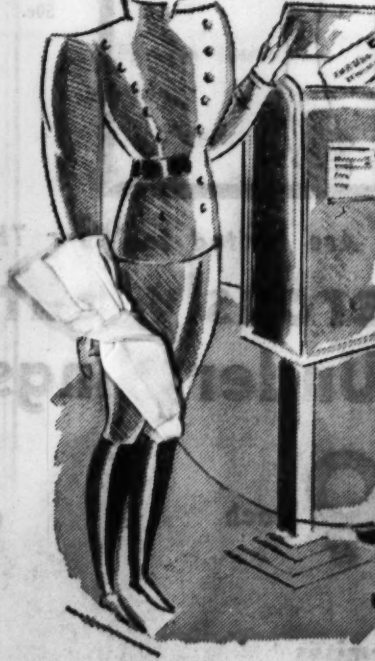

Absorb German Jews, in Plan.
The German government is urged to do everything in its power to enable the extensive settlement of Jews from Germany in Palestine in a report issued today by the London conference for the relief of German Jewry. The report states the conference recorded the belief Palestine occupies a preeminent position among the countries for the permanent settlement and absorption of the Jewish refugees from Germany.

ANTI-NAZI RIOT

PRETORIA, Union of South Africa, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The German consul at Johannesburg lodged a protest today with union authorities against "anti-Nazi riots" following a mob attack last night on a German newspaper office.

The mob damaged the Deutsche Afrika Post following a meeting under the auspices of "the relief committee for victims of German Fascism." Police were forced to intervene to quell the disturbance.

The secretary of external affairs expressed his regret at the incident and asked the police to investigate the circumstances.

GOERING TO TAKE STAND TODAY IN REICHSTAG TRIAL

About "Red Menace."

BERLIN, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Hermann Goering, Prussian premier and national minister without portfolio, will testify tomorrow before the Supreme court hearing the case of five alleged communists accused of firing the reichstag building last February.

An announcement today said "the Prussian premier will testify about the communist menace at the time of the trial." It was anticipated that the temperamental Nazi leader will not let slip the chance to hurl defiance at what the court has often referred to as "the monstrous foreign allegations against our leaders."

Goering Accused Abroad.
It was recalled that Goering has been accused abroad of having supervised the parliament incendiarism from his official residence, which is connected by a subterranean tunnel with the reichstag.

The statement that Goering would appear had an electric effect on the courtroom audience, bored by 30 days of testimony about the underground passage through which it was suggested the incendiaries might have escaped and the steadfast avowals of Marinus Van der Lubbe that he alone set the blaze.

Another of the accused, Georgi Dimitroff, returned to the hearing today after being ejected Wednesday, but was sent out once more, this time for three days, because his questions to the prosecutor were "insulting."

Makes Sarcastic Comment.
Dimitroff, one of three Bulgarian defendants, had threatened to eclipse everybody and everything else in the trial by his impulsive, pointed sallies. Today he got no further than this sarcastic comment, "Mr. Prosecutor, you have got to learn about soviet Russia."

Wilhelm Buenger, the presiding judge, did not hear this jibe, but Friedrich Werner, the prosecutor, directed the president's attention to it. The court ordered Dimitroff back to his cell.

GERMAN PRINCE

[Copyright, 1933, By the New York Times.]
BUDAPEST, Nov. 3.—In Hungary, as in Austria, German princes have begun to play a prominent part in Nazi agitation.

Prince Egon Karl von Hohenlohe has begun a movement to obtain the signatures of 300,000 Hungarians who will declare themselves friends of Germany and supporters of her recent action in leaving the disarmament conference. His idea is to present the document with its 300,000 signatures to President Von Hindenburg.

The Hungarian National Socialist party, led by Deputy Mesko, has arranged country-wide meetings for next Sunday. To advertise these they have stuck announcements bearing huge swastikas on the walls of many Budapest houses. As they had not obtained permission from the authorities, those distributing the placards were arrested and compelled to remove them.

Spanish Tobacco King Flees Prison with Aid of Guard

MADRID, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Juan March, Spanish millionaire who escaped from prison last night because a prison guard chief was "sorry for him," was learned tonight to have slipped past the customs into Gibraltar.

Despite frontiers crowded with reinforced guards to prevent his leaving the country, March got through, and was considered safe from pursuit in British territory. He had been in jail for two years since banishment from the Spanish chamber of deputies on a charge of irregularities in connection with his great tobacco monopoly in Morocco.

Cannot Be Extradited.
According to available expert opinion, March cannot be extradited from Gibraltar because no indictment ever was returned on charges against him. These charges include bribery of dictatorship officials for Moroccan concessions in the tobacco industry. The accusations were made by the incompatibilities commission of the defunct congress.

It is known March has a host of powerful friends in Gibraltar. He made many valuable contacts there during the war, as he had a contract for supplying provisions to the British submarine base.

Officials at the impregnable Alcala de Huelva prison told authorities today that Martinez Hernandez, the guard chief, permitted March to drive away from the prison in a fast car filled with friends after he had complained he was ill.

Leaves Friend Behind.
When he ended his incarceration March left behind him a letter addressed to a friend, Thomas Perle, which read:

"When you receive this I will be in a foreign country. Stay good-by to my health would collapse. I am returning after the election, when I believe Spain will be a livable country."

A government minister said it was his opinion that March's flight had annulled politically his membership in the national tribunal, his constitutional guarantees, and his candidacy for congress.

Visits Spanish Monarchist.
GIBRALTAR, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Juan March, Spanish millionaire fugitive from prison, arrived here tonight. He visited with several Spanish monarchists who are refugees here. Spanish police considered his arrival of great importance in view of the fact that it synchronizes with the return of President Niceto Alcalá Zamora of Spain from Morocco. The president is expected at Algeciras tomorrow.

March was accompanied on his arrival by a prison warder who was on duty in the Madrid prison last night. Also with him were a friend and a physician.

March was weak and indisposed, but this did not interfere with his receiving the monarchist visitors.

SEEK U. S. FUNDS TO CREATE JOBS FOR TEACHERS

May Give Work to All Laid Off by School Board.

Many and perhaps all of the 1,500 Chicago teachers temporarily laid off because of the school board's economy program will find jobs under a public education plan, to be financed by federal relief funds, which Francis G. Blair, state superintendent of public instruction, will submit to federal authorities early next week.

Under the federal relief legislation the government has power to pay salaries not exceeding $61 a month to otherwise unemployed teachers to conduct classes in a wide variety of subjects, ranging from collegiate training for jobless high school graduates to kindergartens and nursery schools.

A. L. Wittenberg, assistant state superintendent of public instruction, who is drafting the plan for Mr. Blair, was highly optimistic concerning the chance of an immediate federal grant for such purposes in Illinois. He will submit the plan to Mr. Blair on Monday and, if his superior approves it, will be forwarded at once to Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator.

Must Approve Teachers.

Under the terms of the federal statute the state school superintendent and the state relief commission must be coordinating administrators of the education plan in any state. The relief authorities must approve all teachers employed under the federal funds, and the school authorities must also pass on their qualifications as teachers.

The Illinois authorities are hopeful that employment will not be confined to teachers actually on relief rolls. They pointed out that, while hundreds of teachers are suffering actual want, all but a handful of them, by the use of savings, the charity of friends, or because of simple pride, have avoided applications for public charity.

Under Mr. Wittenberg's plan, still subject to revision as to details, local administration of the education plan would be delegated to city superintendents of schools in cities of 10,000 or more and to the county superintendents for the smaller towns and rural districts. Supt. William J. Hogan already has been consulted regarding the Chicago situation.

Classes of Instruction.

The federal statute gives authority for a wide variety of classes, divided into five classifications, as follows:

1. Instruction of unemployed adults, both in subjects directly designed to assist them in earning a better livelihood, such as shop work and commercial subjects, and in general academic subjects.
 2. Rehabilitation classes for the maimed and crippled.
 3. Collegiate instruction for unemployed high school graduates.
 4. Pre-school instruction for children of kindergartens and nursery schools.
 5. Instruction in English for illiterates, and in that subject and civics for applicants for naturalization.
- The federal relief administration will pay only the salaries of teachers whose need is attested by local relief authorities and whose qualifications as instructors are vouched for by educational officers. Local authorities must furnish the classrooms and heat and light them and provide supplies.

School Buildings Available.

This requirement, it was pointed out, might be met in Chicago without any large increase in public expenditures. In addition to the public schools, available for evening classes, the "people's university" envisioned by the plan might hold its sessions in park neighborhoods and recreation centers, in churches, and in otherwise vacant quarters provided by private individuals.

In addition to the 1,500 school teachers who have been laid off, there are several hundred recent graduates of the Chicago Normal college from whom the teachers of the classes might be recruited. These normal school graduates hold certificates to teach, but because of reductions in the public school faculty have been unable to get employment.

WIDEN SHERIDAN TO BREAK FOSTER AVE. BOTTLE NECK

Kendrick Harger, district state highway engineer, announced yesterday that the east side of Sheridan road is to be widened ten feet from Foster avenue north several hundred feet to break the bottle neck at this north limit of the new outer drive extension. The Saddle and Cycle club has granted an easement so that the curb on the northeast corner of Sheridan and Foster can be cut back to facilitate turning. After the widening is completed west bound cars will be permitted to turn north into Sheridan on either the red or the green light. Yesterday underground utilities were being moved to make ready for the new pavement.

HUTCHINS SEES NEED OF FEDERAL HELP FOR SCHOOLS OF NATION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 3.—(Special.)—Education today exists in an attitude of hostility and indifference, Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, stated today in an address before the Wisconsin Teachers' association, convening here in the Civic auditorium.

"This is something new," he said. His explanation for this "bitterness toward education" was:

"When everything is going upward and onward the individual is filled with optimism, generosity and patriotism. But in periods of economic hardship his thoughts necessarily turn inward."

"Broad considerations of social policy are not so important to the individual then as how he is to pay his bills. The object of taxes is not so interesting as their amount. Then the community recedes, and the next generation is of slight concern. What is the chief concern of the citizen?"

"Disappearance of the 'community spirit,' caused by the growth of great cities, is one of the reasons for a lack of benevolent interest in education, he asserted. Further, he said:

"It may be that the present administration will go down in history as the one in which the United States became a nation. It now has undertaken to distribute the people's money where it is most needed, irrespective of its geographic source."

Then he added:

"I have come reluctantly, even painfully, to the conclusion that the federal government must enter actively into the business of public education. No one can watch the progress of education in this country without being at length convinced that the federal government must equalize educational opportunity among the states."

"I never have heard any argument advanced which can justify condemning one child to illiteracy because he was born in one part of the country, whereas another child in another part may at public expense proceed from the nursery school to the highest scholarly degrees."

BRITAIN SEIZES STATE OF RULING PRINCE IN INDIA

INDORE, India, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The government of the central provinces is taking over the administration of the senior state of Dewas. It was learned today, because the maharajah, Sir Tukel Rao Puar, has disregarded an ultimatum that he return to the state.

The political agent of the governor general sent the demand that the maharajah return to the state on Oct. 10, or the government would be taken over. The maharajah now is at Pondicherry, the French-Indian colony.

Dewas is a neighbor of the great state of Indore, where, in 1925, the wealthy and powerful maharajah, then in power, was the center of a fierce scandal involving the murder of a merchant friend of his favorite dancer, the beautiful Mumtaz Begum, and the mutilation of the girl. The maharajah finally abdicated in favor of his son. Later he created another scandal by marrying Miss Nancy Ann Miller of Seattle.

CONVICT LAWYER OF LARCENY OF WIDOW'S MONEY

Attorney William Franey was found guilty yesterday by a jury in the court of Judge Walter P. Steffen of larceny of $7,500 from Mrs. Katherine Kehoe, 2583 Leland avenue. Motion for a new trial was set for hearing on Nov. 16, and Franey was jailed on his inability to make bond of $10,000. Franey had been at liberty on bond of $5,000 during the trial.

The attorney offered no defense and did not take the stand. Mrs. Kehoe, invalid widow of a policeman slain in line of duty in 1927, was carried into court Thursday and gave the convicting testimony from a stretcher.

She charged that the attorney turned to his own use money she entrusted to him after the death of her husband, Sergt. Thomas Kehoe, who was shot to death by a bandit. Given power of attorney to her by her affairs, Mrs. Kehoe testified, the attorney depleted her bank account until there was only $3.19 left.

Razor in Pocket Stops Bandit's Shotgun Slug

A safety razor carried in his vest pocket yesterday saved William Flynn, 42 years old, from a shotgun slug wound during a robbery of the Templeton Trucking corporation at 1037 West Adams street. Flynn, an employee of the company, walked into the office as four bandits were backing out after taking $500 from the company cash box. The bandit leader fired a blast from a shotgun he carried. One slug struck the razor in Flynn's pocket. Four women and three men employees, including Vice President James Kennedy, were menaced by the bandit guns.

U. S. MONEY EASY EXCEPT TO CITY, G. O. P. CRITICISM

Wayland Brooks Points to Big Railway Loan.

The new deal has not reached Chicago, asserted C. Wayland Brooks, Republican leader and former candidate for state treasurer, in commenting yesterday upon the 135 million dollar easy money grant by the federal public works administration to the Pennsylvania lines and a group of other eastern railroads.

"The PWA authorities apparently see no virtue in the four big projects for which Chicagoans have pleaded for loans," said Brooks. "I refer to the limited elevated highway, the completion of the link bridge which would weld the Lincoln park and the south park outer drives, the lake front airport, and the sanitary district sewage disposal program."

Democratic Factions Clash.

"As a partisan Republican I suppose I ought to applaud the action of the Democrats as one calculated to bring about their ruin. But as a good citizen of Chicago I can only deplore the short sighted attitude which permits the continuance of the internal struggle between the Democrats in power and the Democrats in Washington."

"The clashes between these Democrats are preventing the grants which would put men to work within two weeks or so. I am told that on the link bridge and the airport projects men could be working within a fortnight after grants are made. It is for such projects that the 3 billion 800 million public works money was to be spent."

"The administration and Administrator Harold Ickes quickly granted the railroad loans on securities which no one can say were any better than the collateral offered by Cook county government units."

A Federal Mandate.

The largest of the proposed local federal loan projects is the 120 million dollar sanitary district sewage system. Attorney Brooks pointed out that the citizens of Cook county are required to spend this money under a mandate of the United States Supreme court.

"It is merely justice," said Mr. Brooks, "that the public works administration should furnish the money to carry out the mandate. Requests for the whole sum have been frowned upon by Administrator Ickes. He has, however, drawn up a contract under terms of which the PWA will advance $8,000,000 to the district."

The second project, the completion of the link bridge at the mouth of the Chicago river, would cost $6,000,000. The north approach to the bridge was completed and other work was done prior to January, 1932, when the job was halted by a lack of funds.

Economy at Airport.

The harbor airport also would cost $6,000,000 and would be a 10 minute ride from the loop. The present municipal airport is a 45 minute ride from the loop. The island port, to be constructed on "made land" 500 feet off the Adler planetarium, would put 1,500 men to work. Postal authorities said there would be a saving of $10,000 a year in the handling of air mail and express.

Construction of the limited highway which has the approval of the Chicago plan commission and of civic and business leaders, would require an expenditure of approximately 25 million dollars. It would supply thousands of men with work for more than two years. When completed it would bind suburban developments to the west of the city with the loop in the same manner that the outer drive serves communities to the north and south.

Hoodlum Arrested After Dispute with Policeman

Walter Guida, alleged hoodlum, was booked for disorderly conduct at the Sheffield avenue station last night as the result of a dispute with Lincoln Park Policeman John Enzle at Diversey parkway and Sheridan road. Police said Guida has been bodyguard for Charles Conrad, partner with County Commissioner Charles H. Weber in the beer distributing company bearing Weber's name on the north side. Guida is now appealing a six months' sentence to the Bridgeway by Judge Green on a vagrancy charge.

ALL IS HARMONY, DEMOCRATS AVER, AND OFFER PROOF

Leaders of All Sizes to Have Powwow.

BY PARKE BROWN.

As the first chapter in a demonstration of party harmony and loyalty, the Cook County Democratic central committee yesterday united in a formal declaration that all is well.

At an executive meeting in the Morrison hotel, the Chicago ward committeemen and the district leaders from the country towns approved a public statement rejoicing in the accomplishments of Democratic administration, pledging faith in the present leadership and denying reports of dissension.

To make the action more impressive upon the rank and file of the party, the party leaders authorized the calling of a meeting of all precinct workers in the county within a week or two. This is to be a demonstration of party unity made visible by the presence of the leaders of all elements in the party.

Awail Word From Lewis.

The date of the gathering will depend upon the plans of Senator James Hamilton Lewis who was compelled to postpone his long expected visit to his home town until next week. He is anxious, it is said, to join in presenting public proof that there is no tendency toward a split in the party organization, either by the formation of an exclusive Rooseveltian wing or through dissatisfaction over patronage distribution.

The statement authorized at the meeting went into this subject thoroughly and it was adopted only after two hours of discussion participated in by a number of ward committeemen who have felt their constituents have not been getting all that was coming to them in the way of jobs. That talk occurred behind closed doors but it was said these grievances had been ironed out.

Statement Fractions Leaders.

"Never within the history of Cook county," read the opening paragraph of the statement, "has there been such unanimity of aim, purpose and action as our party now enjoys."

Then followed successive expressions of confidence in President Roosevelt, Senators Lewis and Dieterich, Speaker Rainey, Gov. Horner, Mayor Kelly, and State's Attorney Courtney accompanied by warm praise for records of each of them in office.

Thereafter came the declaration of mandate to patronage.

"These high officials," it read, "recognize their responsibility not only to the respective public offices they hold but to the party as well, to serve so as to insure public confidence in that party."

"It is expected in a general way that the choice of men for positions in the public service when all things are equal should fall upon members of our party, but we do not expect the selection of any appointees who will not render the highest possible service to the positions appointed."

Responsibility on Leaders.

"We recognize the right and responsibility of the senior senator of this state, James Hamilton Lewis, in consultation and cooperation with William H. Dieterich, the junior senator, and P. A. Nash, Democratic national committeeman of this state, to determine for our party all matters connected with the federal service in which the party has any interest."

"Likewise we recognize the right and responsibility of Gov. Henry Horner, in consultation and cooperation with the chairman of the Democratic state central committee, Lieut. Gov. Thomas F. Donovan, to pass ultimately upon all matters affecting the city service."

"All we ask of these high officials is that they continue rendering the type of service they have in the past, which is reflecting honor upon them and great credit to the party responsible for their election."

"We further pledge to them the harmonious support of our party in all these matters and thereby set at rest all the ill founded rumors and conjectures about lack of harmony within our party."

Home Rule on Liquor.

Upon motion of Edward J. Kalndt, the committee also adopted a resolution favoring home rule in liquor regulation.

"We believe it is impossible for the state," read this declaration, "to promulgate regulations which will be equitable in all sections and communities."

TAMMANY IS ON SPOT IN BATTLE TO ELECT MAYOR

McKee Forces Cheered by Farley Backing.

Roosevelt Hands Off!

Washington, D. C., Nov. 3.—(AP)—It was reiterated today at the White House that President Roosevelt was not taking part in any municipal election. The statement was made in response to inquiries whether the stand by President Roosevelt was a signal to Mayor Joseph V. McKee in the New York mayoralty contest had any bearing on the President's attitude.

New York, Nov. 3.—[Special.]—New York is in the midst of its most turbulent mayoralty campaign in decades, and the Tammany Tiger seems to be on the spot and set for a ride in Tuesday's polls. Behind the madhouse of the campaign is a wide range of national politics and the battling is far more intense than in presidential struggles of recent years.

Straw votes and other surface signs indicate that Mayor John P. O'Brien, Tammany candidate, is running a poor third, with Joseph V. McKee, Recovery party, and Fiorello La Guardia, Fusion candidate, racing for the lead.

The Tiger is filling Gotham with its yowling and screechings, and insists that the "women's vote" and the pay roll brigade will suffice to put O'Brien across "on his record." But with Tammany's ranks ripped wide open with internal strife, smart observers seem almost unanimously of the opinion that the wigwag is headed for a defeat, the first since 1914, when John Purroy Mitchell was elected as a reform mayor.

50,000 Greet La Guardia.

Crowds of prize fight and football game proportions are packing political meetings. More than 50,000 greeted La Guardia at Madison Square Garden last night, and McKee has been drawing huge audiences. Morning, noon, and night the battling continues, and at noon today Times square was packed with throngs, ankle deep in discarded campaign literature, listening to rival orators spouting from trucks equipped with amplifiers.

National politics cut in stronger than ever today, following the avowal of James A. Farley, postmaster general, Democratic national chairman and patronage dispenser at Washington, that he is for McKee. President Roosevelt has been keeping out of it, but the Farley announcement in the public mind seems to link the administration definitely into the mayoralty struggle.

Coupled with this was the editorial declaration of Prof. Raymond Moley, former brain trust and former assistant secretary of state, that a McKee victory would be accepted nationally as an endorsement of President Roosevelt and his policies.

Farley's announcement brought howls from Tammany. It was denounced by John H. McCooey, Brooklyn boss and national committeeman, as "presidential interference" in the mayoralty fight. McCooey, who, by the way, was against Roosevelt at Chicago, as was the rest of Tammany, remarked, "It was no secret that McKee could not have done anything to increase O'Brien's vote more."

The McKee camp, on the other hand, viewed the Farley pronouncement as the high spot in the campaign. Mr. Farley's expression of confidence, said McKee, "shows he places me in the same class as President Roosevelt and Gov. Lehman."

With Farley "the king maker" behind him, leaders in the Recovery party camp at once claimed that McKee would carry the Bronx, Brooklyn, Queens, and Richmond boroughs, with Manhattan, where La Guardia particularly is strong, as doubtful.

Point to Lead in Poll.

The La Guardia camp, after scanning the probable effect of the Farley avowal, reiterated its claims that their candidate was the one who really has the Tiger by the tail and that it indicates the McKee forces are desperately afraid of the La Guardia vote, shown in the lead by the Digest poll.

Possible shiftings by Tammany in the final three days now are regarded by the politicians as the key to Tuesday's outcome. A strong undercurrent movement is reported, following the open desertions of several Democratic leaders, including Edward J. Flynn, secretary of state and former Tammany boss of the Bronx, one of the chief supporters of McKee.

It is surmised that the reaction of Tammany Democrats, if convinced O'Brien cannot win, would be to turn to the other Democrat, McKee. But such a source might meet with interference from Boss Curry, head of Tammany, and his Brooklyn ally, Boss McCooey, who may consider La Guardia less of a bitter pill than McKee.

If a fusion mayor is elected Tammany might be held together under its old leaders with hopes of a comeback four years hence, while if McKee wins it would mean reorganization of the New York Democracy. It's a battle not only to elect a mayor but also for the retention of party power by the old bosses.

Al Smith Not in Campaign.

Al Smith is on the sidelines, his first absence in a campaign in seventeen years, and he has declined to make a single address in favor of Mayor O'Brien. The McKee camp is appealing to Democrats on the argument that a vote for O'Brien is half a vote for La Guardia.

The disruption that may lead Tammany to its defeat is a sequel of the Seabury investigation, the retirement of Jimmie Walker, "Playboy Mayor," and the array of indictments of "tin-box" politicians. Judge Samuel Seabury, a Democrat, is backing La Guardia, a former congressman of the Republican left wing, who was a thorn in the flesh for Hoover at Washington. With him O'Brien Mills of the Hoover cabinet and Republican State Chairman Macy have espoused La Guardia, although a year or so ago Hoover leaders were denouncing La Guardia as a radical. In the immediate background of it all are the con-

New York, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Martha Griebel, who testified in a federal inquiry into activities of Heinz Spanknobel, reputed Nazi agent, sent a message to President Roosevelt tonight asking the removal of Representative Samuel Dickstein "as chairman of the investigating committee of the immigration department in congress."

Mrs. Griebel, whose husband, Dr. Ignatz T. Griebel, was formerly president of the Friends of New Germany, petitioned the President to remove Representative Dickstein "on behalf of the millions of German-Americans and descendants of German ancestry."

"We believe that Congressman Dickstein, as a Jew, cannot under existing conditions, be tolerant and just in his conclusions, and therefore ask you for his removal as chairman in favor of a neutral congressman, preferably an American gentile."

gressional elections next year and the next presidential campaign in 1936.

Never has New York witnessed a more turbulent campaign. Groups of partisans have raided meetings of other groups with scenes of violence. In some districts, factionalists have gone in for orgies of window smashing. The speechmaking has been vitriolic. All sides are raising the shout of "bossism."

Called Creature of Tammany.

McKee is being styled the "Man Friday of Jim Farley and Boss Flynn" by his opponents. La Guardia is being accused of "having Seabury and Ogden Mills for his bosses," while as to O'Brien, he is being styled "the creature of Tammany."

In Times square, which is noisier than a Havana riot minus the shooting, gigantic political signs blare messages to the public. Tammany has one huge one declaring that O'Brien will not sling epithets. It gives samples of what McKee and La Guardia are calling each other; it says "McKee says La Guardia is a demagogue, a communist, a liar and irresponsible and reckless. La Guardia says McKee is a party hack, extravagant, a graft." Against this the Tammany signboard says its candidate stands on his record of "I serve you."

ORDERS PICKETS OFF HIGHWAYS IN WISCONSIN

Governor Acts to Halt Milk Strike.

merce in this state who suffer from this depression equally with the farmer.

Says Property Is Stolen.
However, instead of a holiday and general withholding of products, several dairy plants have been dynamited, free travel has been interrupted, and vehicles on the public highways stopped, unlawfully searched, and cargoes, whether farm products or otherwise, stolen and appropriated to the wrongdoers' use.

"Elements of farmers and others not farmers have become marauders and are threatening the orderly functions of local government. There can be no license for such conduct on the part of farmers or any other class of citizens."

Vote to Continue Strike.
Madison, Wis., Nov. 3.—(AP)—Seven hundred and fifty farmers, meeting in the general assembly room at the state capitol, voted unanimously today to continue the Wisconsin farm strike. Their vote ratified the action taken a short time earlier by a committee of 27 county leaders.

The committee included the executive board members of both the Wisconsin cooperative milk pool and the state unit of the National Farmers' Holiday association.

The farmers were unanimous in declaring they would continue their non-marketing campaign until the demands made by the holiday association, when it went on strike Oct. 21 are met.

The strike, they agreed, can be terminated only by the joint action of the two organizations' executive boards.

31 Strikers Arrested.
Neillsville, Wis., Nov. 3.—(AP)—Sheriff Herman Olson and 40 deputies, swinging clubs freely and hurling tear gas bombs, arrested 31 farm strikers after a running engagement this afternoon.

The sheriff and his deputies charged 100 pickets besieging the John Wuehrich cheese factory near Greenwood. A road to the factory was cleared, but when pickets refused to disperse they were scattered by tear gas.

The strikers then retreated in trucks. After a seven mile chase an officer's car headed off one of the trucks. Sheriff Olson got aboard, smashed the windshield and overpowered the driver, Harvey Witt. The picketers were brought to jail here.

Two Creameries Dynamited.
Shawano, Wis., Nov. 3.—(AP)—Bombings continued today in the farm strike in Wisconsin, dynamite explosions wrecking creameries at the villages of Krakow and Zachow near here.

The blasts, fifth and sixth since the beginning of the strike, did extensive damage to machinery, smashed windows down, and ripped up the floors.

At Krakow dynamite was tossed into a window of the Brzinski Brothers creamery. It ripped open a tank containing 5,000 gallons of milk. Creamery employees told Sheriff Otto Drucker they had been warned there would be "serious trouble" if the plant continued to operate.

At Zachow the A. H. Graf creamery was dynamited and there, too, the explosive was tossed into a window.

Deputies Fire Shotguns.
Racine, Wis., Nov. 3.—(AP)—In a clash with 150 farm strikers in the barnyard of Charles Meyer, near Watertown, deputy sheriffs today fired shotguns and scattered pickets with tear gas bombs.

RED CROSS GETS OFFERS OF HELP FOR ROLL CALL

James B. Forgan, chairman of the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross, said yesterday that offers of help in the annual roll call, which opens on Armistice day, have been received in large numbers than at any time since the world war.

"The help of business firms and women's organizations has made it possible for the chapter to distribute, through conversion farm board wheat and cotton, food and clothing and other forms of relief, amounting to $4,000,000 in Cook, Du Page and southern Lake counties," Mr. Forgan said. "These commodities lightened the burden of the accredited relief agencies and the communities. The Chicago chapter had less than $175,000 to carry on this largest relief program in peace times."

The Red Cross must have 250,000 members this year to continue its work, Mr. Forgan said. He will head the men's division in the roll call which continues to Thanksgiving day, and Mrs. Joseph L. Cudahy, the women's division. Among the divisions organized and their chairmen are George E. Scott, American Steel foundries, the iron and steel division; Albert P. Snite, Illinois Association of Personal Finance, licensed lenders division; William Slespeck, Helman Slespeck Printing company, printing division; Myron T. Monsen, printing industries, and E. R. Shaw, Power Plane engineering, trade journals.

Roosevelt Experts Oppose Farm Price Fixing Scheme

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Washington, D. C., Nov. 3.—(Special.)—Experts of the agricultural adjustment administration today turned down the farm price fixing program brought to the capital by five midwestern governors and tentatively approved by President Roosevelt yesterday.

But the exact status of the governors' program—which proved perhaps the most drastic ever to come so near to federal approval—remained clouded in uncertainty.

The governors, at the end of an all-day conference with Farm Administrator George Peek and other AAA officials, declared their proposals had been flatly rejected.

The AAA, on the other hand, insisted that this was not so. The government's position, officials insisted, could be more accurately presented by stating that the government did "not assent" to the governors' plan.

See Roosevelt Today.
Tomorrow the governors, who represent ten states of the midwest where the current farm strike centers, are to return to the White House for another conference with the President. They will inform him, they said, that they were unable to convince the AAA of the feasibility of their price fixing plan and will ask that Mr. Roosevelt take some other steps at once to boost farm prices.

The governors' program, as outlined following today's session at the administration, calls for the complete regulation of all agriculture under a license and quota system, the licensing of all processors and handlers of is not borrowing. There is no capital investment market because business is extremely doubtful of making any profit at all under the increased costs of production and governmental restrictions involved in the NRA.

While taking this firm stand against the proposals of industry the President shows signs of yielding to the demands of agriculture represented by the price fixing scheme of the farm strikers of the central states. Mr. Roosevelt promised the five midwestern governors whom he received yesterday to give serious consideration to any price fixing plan for wheat and other farm commodities they might agree upon and he expects to have their proposition in hand tomorrow.

It is well known that the attitude of the farmers worries the President more than that of any other class. The administration theory is that the modified price fixing plans applied to southern farm products have been helpful and the extension of the program depends on regional and crop conditions elsewhere.

In the case of a year ago cotton was selling at 4 1/2 and 5 1/2 cents. This year it was a pretty good crop which left the farmers better off, even though they plowed under a part of their fields. They got 9 and 10 cents for cotton or double last year.

Results Seen in South.
It increased purchasing power; sales to farmers of industrial products have already jumped up as a result. In Georgia, for one small order house, sales last month increased 120 per cent over the previous October.

In the case of wheat, the farmers are getting twice what they got last year in price but they have had a short crop. If they had only half the amount of wheat they were not better off by getting a higher price. They are worse off than tobacco or cotton farmers.

In the case of corn-hogs, the administration admittedly faces its most difficult problems. There is a two-headed program calling for the reduction of hogs, payment through a processing tax and the purchase of hogs for relief. The hope is that the price of hogs will go up, but it is not an immediate guarantee of price. Corn-hog prices are less than one-half of parity price.

In the case of dairying the prices are 25 per cent below parity. The actual prices are much nearer parity than in the case of corn, hogs, or wheat. Relief in this industry presents various complex problems, particularly regional problems.

VIOLENCE GROWS IN FARM STRIKE AREA; 2 BEATEN

Pickets Tighten Grip; Halt Truck; Try to Burn It.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
LONDON, Nov. 3.—The British aristocracy was able to claim a discharged bankrupt—subject to three months' suspension—after today's sitting in the London bankruptcy court, where Lord Richard Plantagenet Nevill, 71, was declared insolvent nearly five months ago.

Lord Nevill stated that until the death of his father, the first marquess of Abergavenny, in 1915, he received an allowance of $1,500 to $2,000 annually. Since then, he said, he had been in continual financial difficulties. As a matter of fact, his lordship said, he had not been free from claims of money lenders in this country, where usury is permitted, for 40 years.

In 1927, Lord Nevill said, he received $40,000 when his brother died, but all this went to money lenders and to repay relatives who had loaned him $15,000. Since 1925 there have been 18 bankruptcy petitions against him. Nevill now owes money lenders $4,450, but all his other debts have been paid in full at interest rates ranging from 50 to 100 per cent.

Clubs and Fists Fly in Battle.
Plattsmouth, Neb., Nov. 3.—(AP)—After engaging in a pitched battle last night with a large picket force, members of a newly organized law and order league today guarded the Iowa end of the Missouri river bridge here, determined to keep traffic moving.

Clubs and fists were swung freely in the skirmish last night at the Nebraska end of the bridge after the pickets, most of them Iowans, had retreated across the interstate span.

One man suffered a broken jaw and several received cracked heads. Picketing was reported also in South Dakota, the eastern border of Nebraska, and Minnesota. Members of the Alabama dairy league at Birmingham today joined the strike, vowing to hold their milk until the price is increased 17 cents to $3.35 per hundredweight.

Scots at Wallace's Plan.
Advised of press reports that Secretary Wallace was considering a "parity price" program for farm products, John Chalmers, president of the Iowa Farmers' Holiday association, warned: "If this is all Henry Wallace and his 'brain trust' have to offer the farmer I propose to send the call to the members of the Iowa Farmers' Holiday association to strike with every weapon at their command Monday morning."

"So-called parity prices," Chalmers asserted, "based on pre-war levels, are an insult to any thinking farmer. Such prices have never taken into account the tremendously increased overhead of the farmers since that time."

"We are demanding cost of production for the products of our farms and the right to sell these products on the nearest basis whenever the people of this country need food. The government at the conference in Des Moines pledged themselves to cost of production. We are going to hold them to that pledge."

REHN IS ILLINOIS HUSKER CHAMP; SEILER IN A JAM

Crowd Interferes with the Southpaw Expert.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Granville, Ill., Nov. 3.—(Special.)—A new corn husking champion for Illinois was named today as a crowd of 30,000 spectators watched Ernest Rehn, 40 year old Magnolia farmer, defeat the national champion, Carl Seiler of Knox county.

Rehn will be pitted against the state champions of eight cornbelt states in the national "corn belt derby" at West Point, Neb., Nov. 9. Seiler by being unable to qualify for first or second place here today is retired from competition for the national crown.

William Rose of Henry county was a close second to Rehn in today's husking. Rehn's official record was 31.78 bushels in 30 minutes, and Rose husked 31.74 bushels. Rose had the largest total load of corn in the field of twelve contestants, a total of 2,232 pounds, and will be entered in the national contest with Rehn.

Crowd Handicaps Seiler.
Seiler, only left handed husker in the race, was handicapped by crowds which overran the field and interfered with his husking in spite of efforts of friends to form a human chain around him. He won third place with 31.51 bushels. Seiler still holds the world's record of 36.914 bushels.

Both Seiler and Rehn proved to be the cleanest huskers in the contest. Rehn's victory today was a surprise to all but his admirers from Marshall and Putnam counties. He husked but 28.3 bushels in the county contest, and was allowed to compete today because the corn field in the county contest was low in yield.

The complete list of contestants and their scores follow: Ernest Rehn, 31.78; William Rose, 31.74; Carl Seiler, 31.51; Clyde Switzer, Edgar county, 31.08; Harold Winesbrecht, Warren county, 29.71; Tom Murphy, Rock Island, 29.08; Hartwick Olson, Knox county, 28.96; John R. Copelin, Sangamon, 28.82; Dean Brown, Mercer, 27.56; Robert Moore, Menard, 27.25; Bennett Filcher, Fulton, 26.82; David Engstrom, De Kalb, 25.50.

Bockes Wins in Iowa.
Audubon, Ia., Nov. 3.—(AP)—Clarence Bockes of Grundy Center today became the new state corn husking champion at the annual husking held near here. He had a net weight of 3,563 pounds.

House Is Kansas Winner.
Horton, Kas., Nov. 3.—(AP)—Lawrence House of Goodland husked 23 bushels and 42 pounds of corn in 20 minutes to win the state title.

Anderson Represents Ohio.
Norwalk, O., Nov. 3.—(AP)—William Anderson of Ross county will toss corn for Ohio in the national corn husking championships Nov. 9. His 1,844.35 pounds in 30 minutes was 454 pounds better today than the nearest competitor, Everett Ford of DeKalb county, who smashed 1,488.75 pounds against the bang board.

Clubs and Fists Fly in Battle.
Plattsmouth, Neb., Nov. 3.—(AP)—After engaging in a pitched battle last night with a large picket force, members of a newly organized law and order league today guarded the Iowa end of the Missouri river bridge here, determined to keep traffic moving.

Clubs and fists were swung freely in the skirmish last night at the Nebraska end of the bridge after the pickets, most of them Iowans, had retreated across the interstate span.

One man suffered a broken jaw and several received cracked heads. Picketing was reported also in South Dakota, the eastern border of Nebraska, and Minnesota. Members of the Alabama dairy league at Birmingham today joined the strike, vowing to hold their milk until the price is increased 17 cents to $3.35 per hundredweight.

Scots at Wallace's Plan.
Advised of press reports that Secretary Wallace was considering a "parity price" program for farm products, John Chalmers, president of the Iowa Farmers' Holiday association, warned: "If this is all Henry Wallace and his 'brain trust' have to offer the farmer I propose to send the call to the members of the Iowa Farmers' Holiday association to strike with every weapon at their command Monday morning."

"So-called parity prices," Chalmers asserted, "based on pre-war levels, are an insult to any thinking farmer. Such prices have never taken into account the tremendously increased overhead of the farmers since that time."

Woman Emerges from Coma After 127 Days
Richmond, Cal., Nov. 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Georgea Pardini emerged today from the coma that has held her for 127 days. Since June 29, when Mrs. Pardini suffered a brain injury in a motor car accident in which her husband died, she has been in a coma at the Hospital Richmond. Today she surprised nurses by answering in monosyllables a question addressed her about her food.

SANITARY BOARD GETS U. S. TERMS FOR $8,000,000

Money to Be Available in Several Weeks.

A lengthy contract setting forth the requirements of the federal public works administration for the allocation of $8,000,000 to the Chicago sanitary district arrived in the city yesterday. The document was given to Thomas J. Bowler, president of the district, by Lloyd H. Landau, solicitor for the F.W.A. Attorneys immediately began an analysis of its terms.

The $8,000,000 allotment of easy money will reduce to $12,000,000 the amount required for completion of the sewage disposal program in Chicago made necessary by the mandate of the United States Supreme court in the long standing litigation over Lake diversion. The high tribunal has decided that the diversion of water from Lake Michigan must be cut to 1,500 cubic feet per second by the end of 1933.

30 Per Cent an Outright Gift.

A request for the full loan of $15,000,000 to complete the entire project is still pending. Of the $8,000,000 the government will lend $5,750,000 to the district by a purchase of its bonds and the rest, $2,250,000, will be an outright government grant for 30 per cent of the cost of labor and materials. The cash will be used to complete projects already contracted for and started by the district, but which were halted in February, 1932, when funds became exhausted.

Trustees of the district, Mr. Landau, and his assistant, Frederick Z. Marx, will hold a conference Monday to iron out any differences over the $8,000,000 contract.

After the trustees and F.W.A. representatives have agreed on the contract, Mr. Bowler stated, the next step will be to obtain assurances from the contractors that they will comply with the requirements laid down by the F.W.A. Then will follow the passage of an ordinance by the trustees formally accepting the contract.

"It is hard to tell just when these things will be accomplished," said Mr. Bowler, "and when the work will actually begin. It may be a matter of several weeks."

U. S. to Buy District Bonds.

According to the contract, as it now stands, the federal government agrees to buy $10,000,000 worth of sanitary district bonds, bearing 4 1/2 per cent interest and maturing in 20 years. As the money is needed for construction work the district will turn over the bonds to the government in varying amounts.

The cash will be placed in a bank which is a member of the federal reserve system. The vouchers to be given to contractors for work done will be approved by officers of the district and also a resident works engineer and auditor, who will be on hand to supervise the work for the F.W.A.

The contract, which was 32 pages long, also provides that the federal government will not be liable for claims that might arise from increased costs above the amounts set up in the original contracts, or any payment for work already completed.

Lawrence Penion, senior assistant attorney for the district, said that it was the plan of the government to set aside bonds in the amount of the grant and when the 70 per cent loan had been repaid by the district these bonds would be canceled.

Provides Work for 3,000.

More than 3,000 men in the Chicago area will be reemployed through direct or indirect labor within a week after the cash has become available, according to Philip Harrington, chief engineer for the district.

The projects and the amounts needed to complete each one are as follows:

1. Pumper blower house at the Calumet sewage treatment works at 126th street and Cottage Grove avenue, $1,402,000.
 2. Aeration tanks, final settling tanks, and operation galleries at the Calumet plant, $2,214,000.
 3. West side intercepting sewer, contract No. 3, $1,348,000.
 4. West side intercepting sewer, contract No. 4, $1,722,000.
 5. Imhoff tanks at the west side sewage treatment works in Stickney, at 39th street and 52d avenue, $1,314,000.
- Plans for four more sections of the Chicago sewer system on the near northwest side, costing $7,000,000, have been completed by the engineering staff of the district.

Fire Chief Is Injured While Fighting Flames

Fire Chief Daniel Ahern of the 25d battalion was injured yesterday while fighting a fire in a two story building at 5417 Madison street. At St. Anthony's hospital, where he was taken, examination showed that several of his ribs were fractured and that his back was injured. Ahern was hurt when he slipped on steps leading to the basement of the building. The fire damage was about $2,000.

40,000 Miners Are Ordered Back to Pits in Pennsylvania

Washington, D. C., Nov. 3.—(Special.)—Leaders of 40,000 miners employed in the "captive" pits of the steel corporations in Pennsylvania agreed to order their men back to work at once after conferring with President Roosevelt today and receiving his personal assurance that the power of the government would be used to guarantee them a fair election of their spokesmen for collective bargaining with their employers.

The committee of eight local union leaders led by William Hines, President of District No. 4, United Mine Workers of America, today placed their grievance before Recovery Administrator Hugh Johnson, who made an appointment for them to see the President.

Johnson issued a statement after being closed with the President for half an hour, the committee returned with Gen. Johnson to his office and the administrator gave out the following statement:

"Representatives of the United Mine Workers, employees of the captive pits, called on the President and discussed the conditions of elections under the terms of the agreement reached with the captive mine operators on Oct. 21.

"Upon the estimate by these representatives that the men would be practically all back at work by Wednesday, and that no more violence is expected, the President said he would ask Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the national labor board, to send representatives of the board at once to prepare an election and to pass upon the qualifications of the voters in the future. One representative each to Carmichael for Green county, Uniontown for Fayette county, California for Washington county, and Pittsburgh for Allegheny county."

Explain Their Grievances.

Before seeing Gen. Johnson, the mine leaders told reporters that the settlement announced on Oct. 31 had been vague in some particulars and was not perfectly understood by the men.

On one provision they alleged the employers would be able to "ring in" members of company unions now being formed. According to Mr. Hines, the H. C. Frick Coke company has formed a company union, enrolling superintendents, managers, bookkeepers, clerks, and their children between 12 and 16 years of age in order to show a voting majority favoring the company union as against the United Mine Workers.

Virtual encouragement for such tactics, he said, could be found in a section of the Oct. 31 agreement, and the formation of the company union by the Frick company has led to turmoil. So long as the company held company union meetings and set the miners against each other, Mr. Hines said, "orderly conditions" would not be restored.

CHICAGO STRIKE COST SINCE NRA SET AT $5,000,000

Estimate 6,500,000 Days Lost in U. S.

Industrial disturbances in Chicago since the inception of the NRA were estimated yesterday to have resulted in a loss of approximately $5,000,000 in business to employers and wages of strikers.

Over the entire country 1,000 strikes have occurred during the first 90 days of the recovery act's existence with a resultant loss of 6,500,000 working days and a minimum of $22,000,000 in wages alone, according to Noel Sargent, secretary of the National Association of Manufacturers which has headquarters in Washington, D. C.

Local picketing has increased until it is prevalent in almost every section of Chicago. Approximately 250 stores, factories and other business establishments are now being picketed. While some of this is the result of strikes, a majority of the picketing is reported as the result of conflicts over the rights of individuals or small groups of employees in instances in which unions have not taken cognizance of the situation to the extent of calling a strike that would interfere with the operation of the business concerned.

Three Strikes Cost $3,000,000.

Three major strikes here last summer were estimated to have cost a total of more than $3,000,000. Nearly 11,000 employees participated in these walkouts, which were in the millinery, dressmaking, and leather goods industries.

The three weeks' strike of 4,800 milliners was believed to have caused a loss of more than half a million dollars to workers and more than $2,000,000 in business to employers. Inasmuch as it took place during the peak of that industry's season. About $750,000 was estimated as the cost of the two weeks' strike of more than 5,000 dressmakers, and upwards of $100,000 for the strike of 1,000 leather goods workers, which lasted eight days.

"The success of the recovery program is gravely threatened by these industrial disturbances," said Mr. Sargent, "and unless they are vastly reduced, business recovery upon which greater employment is dependent, may be delayed and the advances thus far made may be lost. The ability of industry to assist in the NRA's objectives is seriously curtailed when in-undulation and strikes are threatened on every hand."

1,000 Strikes in 3 Months.

"The enormous strike increase since the recovery act went into effect cannot be described as a normal phase of industrial recovery. More working days were lost in the first quarter of the year of 1933 than in the entire year of 1932, or 1931. In the three months preceding the NRA there were only 339 strikes as compared to 1,000 in the first three months under the program."

"This increase of strikes is directly related to labor union misinterpretations of the labor provisions of the recovery act and to efforts to coerce industry into granting generally unreasonable demands. Contrary to the statement of agitators throughout the country, the act does not give the American Federation of Labor a monopoly upon all collective relationships between employers and workers nor state that workers cannot bargain individually with their employers."

PRINTERS END LIFE WITH GEN.

Bart Siegler, 36 years old, a printer employed by the Cuneo Press in Chicago, shot and killed himself early yesterday in the garage at the rear of his home at 1434th street and School street, Glenwood.

STRIKERS REJECT FORD REPLY AND INSIST ON UNION

1,500 Refuse to Return to Their Jobs.

Edgewater, N. J., Nov. 3.—(AP)—Striking Ford workers of the 1,500 strong, dispatched a statement to their employer in Detroit today and turned again toward Washington for the solution of their problems.

The statement was released through their attorney, who was authorized to "prosecute vigorously the charges against the company filed by him in our behalf with the President of the United States."

Referring to their employer as "lacking in social intelligence" and to their place of employment as a "mechanized beehive," the workers declared the company failed to meet any of their demands in its unsigned statement received from Detroit Wednesday.

Picketing continued today at the plant, where production was going forward on a greatly curtailed schedule. The workers, who seek the right of collective bargaining and a minimum of 35 for a 35 hour workweek, have lodged a formal complaint against the company with the NRA.

Dissatisfied With Wage Plan.

"The Ford Motor company makes a terse and enigmatic statement relative to collective bargaining," the workers said in their statement today, "stating that 'the right of collective bargaining is already required by the national industrial recovery act.'"

"The company," they state, "has never subscribed to this principle, nor has it accepted any code under this act. Therefore we, as workers and employees of the Ford Motor company have no assurance that collective bargaining or straightforward dealings with our union will be practiced by it."

The company's statement regarding hours and wages, in which it expressed the hope it would be able to restore the 35 minimum "if conditions permit," also was met with dissatisfaction.

Complies with NRA Hours.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 3.—(AP)—Officials of the Ford Motor company announced tonight that, in order to comply with the provisions of the NRA automotive code, weekly layoffs would be instituted in the Rouge plant at Dearborn to bring all workers within the maximum 35 hour average workweek specified in the code.

"The company is taking this mandatory step in compliance with the new prohibition against work in this country," a Ford company spokesman said.

Recovery Officials Amazed.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 3.—(AP)—Recovery officials tonight were amazed to hear that Henry Ford intended laying off all his men seven days to come within the 35 hour average workweek permitted by the automobile code and indicated that the action was regarded as a definite violation of the spirit of the industrial law if not of the letter of the code.

Pending more complete information as to the Ford plans Administrator Hugh S. Johnson and his aids declined to comment.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Stolen, 79; recovered, 75; stripped, 31 (from police records for twenty-four hours ending at midnight Thursday).

COWEN MURDER STILL MYSTERY TO CICERO POLICE

Cicero police yesterday said they had discovered no clues to the identity of the slayers of Louis ("Diamond Louie") Cowen, wealthy gambling operator, and the inquest into his death was closed with the usual verdict of murder by persons unknown.

Cowen, chief bondsman and money handler for the Capone syndicate, was shot and fatally wounded Oct. 20 in his expensive coupe as he was waiting to keep an appointment. The scene was a business district in Roosevelt road near Austin avenue, but no witnesses were found who admitted having seen the assassin.

Mrs. Mildred Cowen, second wife of Cowen, provided a dramatic finish for the inquest by her collapse as she was asked how she had heard of the slaying. "By radio," was her answer. Previously she testified that she didn't know her husband had enemies and that the only business he mentioned to her was the weekly suburban newspaper he published as a sideline.

Deputy Coroner Jacob Schewel announced that he did not suspect the police in the supposed disappearance of $5,000 reported to have been in Cowen's pockets or his car before he was shot. He said police had not touched the body until after the clothing had been removed.

LADY BALFOUR FREED IN TITHE REBELLION TRIAL

Says She Was There to Eat Cheese.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Lady Evelyn Balfour, daughter of the second earl, was released in the Chelmsford assizes today on a charge of participating in an unlawful assembly. She asserted that she went to the farm of Mrs. Margaret Gardiner, where she alleged demonstration took place, only to eat bread and cheese.

The prosecution contended that more than 100 farmers had gathered at the Widow Gardiner's farm to prevent the attachment of farm machinery which a Welsh auctioneer was attempting to sell in settlement of an overdue tithe.

Of the participants 35 were arrested. Five defendants were dismissed yesterday. After the case against Lady Balfour was quashed today, seven other farmers were released, so the crown's action already has received a considerable dent.

Lady Balfour Testifies.

The case hinges on a scene in a barn, where, it is alleged, the bailiff, John Ross, the Welsh auctioneer, Meurig L. James, and his solicitor, G. H. Gibson, were imprisoned. The prosecution charges that the three men were intimidated and in the presence of a hostile crowd were urged to make a lower settlement in order to obtain their escape. Gibson and James were targets for rotten eggs and the three men finally were led off the Gardiner premises under police guard.

The tithe owed was $240 and James had a bid of $300 for some of Mrs. Gardiner's implements.

Lady Balfour testified that after she had seen Mrs. Gardiner inside the farmhouse she went to the barn, where she planned to have bread and cheese with the farmers assembled to see the distraint warrants on the machinery served. Lady Balfour is sometimes characterized as a Joan of Arc, leading the British farmers in their fight against the "Queen Anne's bounty," as the tithe is called. She admitted that she is a strong proponent against the levy.

Disappointed Egg Throwing.

Lady Balfour said she stood inside the barn merely as a spectator and later took up a position on a baler while the three men inside, argued with the farmers. She asserted she believed the distraint illegal, but disapproved of the bad language and bad eggs.

She testified that she addressed the crowd, asserting that if Ross and James were given safe conduct to the highway they would not come back. Police urged the farmers to listen to her.

Questioned by the judge, Lady Balfour asserted that had there been an attempt to remove the machinery she would have remained a spectator. She denied having a camera or taking snapshots.

TAXI COMPANY IS UPHELD IN FIGHT WITH DRIVERS

The Checker Taxi company won a victory in its fight with an insurgent group of drivers yesterday. A report given to Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward by Edgar Eldredge, special master in chancery, upheld the company's contention. Attorney Samuel A. Eitelson, counsel for the cab company, will ask that the recommendations be followed.

Special Master Eldredge recommended that the drivers be forced to pay the service charges to the company which have been in dispute. The original rate was $55 monthly for single shift cabs and $75 for double shift cabs. The company voluntarily reduced these to $40 for single and $60 for double shift. The master's report would allow either rate to be charged.

Another recommendation would allow an inspection forcing drivers delinquent in their service charges to turn over their cabs to the company immediately and giving the company the right to sell the vehicles at public auction to satisfy the charges.

OFFICIALS NOTE TO ASK U. S. LOAN FOR AUTO ROADS

Elevated Highway Plan Is Given Support.

BY HAL FOUST.

A meeting of state, county and city officials yesterday adopted a resolution calling upon the federal government for a loan of "easy money" to launch construction of an elevated highway system in Chicago. A formal petition to the NRA administration is to follow.

The meeting, a luncheon in the La Salle hotel under Chicago Motor club auspices, heard representatives of these three local political units announce their support to the superhighway plans evolved by the Masson-McClintock traffic survey of Chicago. "I can pledge the support of my department to cooperate in every way possible toward converting into steel and concrete the plans that are now on paper," said Director Robert Kingery of the state department of public works. "The legal machinery is set up for handling this job either at Washington or at Springfield. State highway department engineers are already engaged on the surveys."

Byrd Favors Plan.

Commissioner Homer Byrd, chairman of the county board road and bridge committee, said he was sure the county board would aid in the plan. Maj. George Quinlan, county highway superintendent, added that he was "enthusiastic over the proposal for a cooperative plan for moving mass traffic in Chicago."

Ald. William A. Rowan (10th), chairman of the council committee on recommendations for federal, public works, said he considered the elevated highway system as the most helpful program ever advanced for Chicago's improvement. He added that his committee will help in its realization.

State Representative Arthur M. Kaindl, member of the house roads and bridges committee, declared that he wanted to take an active part in this scheme to relieve unemployment and to relieve the city of a traffic congestion costly in lives and in economic losses from delays.

Oscar Hewitt, city commissioner of public works, after hearing a description of the elevated highways, made the statement that he was "not sure wide surface level streets are desirable" for traffic relief.

"I'm impressed," he said, "by the fact that seventy per cent of the causes of traffic accidents would be physically impossible on the elevated highways. And I'm impressed by the fact that twelve per cent of the traffic deaths in 1932 occurred on two of our widest streets, Western and Ashland avenues."

Not a Dissenting Note.

The resolution, adopted without a dissenting vote from any of the sixty-five public officials and civic leaders at the luncheon, pointed out that the success of the proposal to employ thousands of jobless on the project this winter now rests with Gov. Horner, Mayor Kelly, President Emmett Whelan of the county board, and with Secretary of Interior Ickes as administrator of public works funds.

At the close of the meeting Ald. John A. Masson (49th), who acted as chairman, said that a formal petition to the government will await the outcome of legislation pending at Springfield to use more gasoline tax revenue for charity.

"Before we ask the government for a loan," said the alderman, who is also chairman of the council committee that prepared the traffic survey, "we must know how much gasoline tax revenue will be available as security for the loan and how much can be pledged for this purpose by the state, the city and the county."

The main speaker at the luncheon was Dr. Miller McClintock, head of the Harvard university traffic research bureau, who was employed by the city for two years on what is described by engineers as the most comprehensive study of a metropolitan street problem ever undertaken.

Maximum for Labor.

"Of particular significance at this time," he said, "is the fact that the construction suggested in this study would return a maximum of jobs per total investment. Almost every dollar would deliver one hundred cents in wages or materials. By building in existing street rights of way there would be a minimum of investment in property acquisition and damages."

"Also of particular significance at this time is the fact that the elevated highways will add additional traffic capacity to Chicago's transportation system at 15.5 per cent of the cost of surface street widening for the same capacity. Public traffic facilities should be spent economically whether it is 'easy money' or revenue from the gasoline excise."

"And a third point of primary importance is that the improvement is within reach of the public's pocketbook, that it can be built without a penny of new taxes or additional taxes."

Total Cost Put at $100,000,000.

The complete program calls for the construction in the next twenty or twenty-five years of 160 miles of elevated highway at a cost estimated at $100,000,000. This might be compared with $135,000,000 spent by the board of local improvements in the sixteen years from 1915 to 1931 on ninety-nine miles of street widening. When completed, the system would put every section of Chicago within one mile of one of these fast and safe traffic facilities.

For initial construction the program calls for fifteen miles of elevated highway, one west, one northwest, and another southwest from the loop, with a fourth project to link Indianapolis boulevard with Lake Shore drive, north of Jackson park. The cost is estimated at less than $10,000,000.

"With such wide recognition of its merits," said Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, in closing the meeting, "our public officials can win permanent recognition by carrying out these plans."

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system. If you have a pale face, swollen tongue, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results. Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 50c and 60c.

RED NEWSPAPER HERE UNDER U. S. INVESTIGATION

Espouses the Communist Cause in America.

Allegedly subversive articles in three foreign language newspapers of communist sympathies have recently come under scrutiny of the United States bureau of investigation here and in Washington, it was learned yesterday.

The newspapers in question, it was learned, are Vilnis, a Lithuanian daily published on South Halsted street; the Morning Freiheit, a Yiddish daily published here and in New York; and Trybuna Robotnicza, Polish semi-weekly published in Detroit.

While Maxim Litvinov, soviet commissar for foreign affairs, is en route to Washington to confer with President Roosevelt regarding American recognition of the soviet regime, these and eastern publications of similar persuasion have continued to advocate overthrow of the American political system, it is charged.

Attack the New Deal.

While the President and his advisers have been taking of the need for practical means of communication between 160,000,000 Russians and 120,000,000 Americans, these newspapers have been attacking the Roosevelt "new deal" as a betrayal of the masses and denouncing the President as a tool of capitalists, it is declared.

Several leaders of the Jewish, Polish, and Lithuanian groups in Chicago, viewing the publications as treasonable, have forwarded marked copies to J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the bureau of investigation, and to Melvin Purvis, Chicago bureau chief, in belief that the publications should be barred from the mails.

Thus far, it was said, there has been no response from the federal agents. Charges have been made that most of the foreign language publications espousing the communist cause in the United States are subsidized by the Comintern, or Third Internationale, the propaganda wing of the soviet government. Direct evidence of such activity was adduced from the financial statement of the Comintern for 1932, which showed $750,000 spent for subsidizing papers, without disclosing to which countries the money went.

Charged with Wrecking Bank.

Vilnis, which in English means "the Surge," is described as the most virulent of the Chicago sheets espousing communism. The editor, V. A. Andrus, is charged with having wrecked the Universal State bank by spreading false rumors of its condition and was arrested in August, 1932, for spreading similar rumors concerning the Kellogg Building and Loan association.

Andrus was indicted under the state law prohibiting publication of such rumors, but escaped trial when his attorney won a motion to quash before Judge James J. Connelley. The immigration service had taken steps to deport him as an undesirable alien, but dropped the plan upon his discharge in Criminal court.

A commentary on the question of soviet commercial credit and good faith has just been produced by the American Vigilant Intelligence federation, an organization combating bolshevism. The association declares that the British government, which has diplomatic relations with Russia, has been compelled to adopt a form letter system to cover the complaints of British creditors of the soviet union.

Excerpts from a letter, which the federation declares is the form used by the British foreign office, are as follows:

"The under-secretary of state for foreign affairs presents his compliments and is directed by Sir John Simon to state that, as he announced in parliament on the 19th of July last, it is the intention of his majesty's government to make it clear, in the course of commercial negotiations with the soviet government, that they maintain and assert British claims against that government; that the negotiation of a permanent treaty with the soviet government must be accompanied by satisfactory settlement of these claims; and that any commercial agreement made pending a final disposal of the question must be regarded as being of a temporary and transitional character.

"The secretary of state has the utmost sympathy with the many British claimants who have failed to obtain redress from the soviet government and will continue to press for a settlement of their claims at any favorable opportunity. He is not in a position, however, to make any forecast as to when such a settlement will prove possible, and although he realizes the magnitude of the interests involved in the case of Russo-Asiatic Consolidated, Limited, he cannot undertake to accord preferential treatment to any particular claim or category of claims.

EDITOR OF MOSCOW PAPER IS EXPELLED BY COMMUNIST PARTY

MOSCOW, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Under the brand of a "Trotskyist and Opportunist," A. Maimin, editor of the Moscow Daily Economic Life and a member of the collegium of the commissariat of finance, has been expelled from the communist party.

This action was taken after Maimin had undergone the party "cleansing" now in progress throughout the soviet union. The Moscow Daily Economic Life is the chief economic organ of the soviet government.

Maimin, who is one of the most prominent victims of the "cleansing" process so far, was charged with having attracted "hostile and strange elements to the work of his newspaper, which interfered with the policies of its financial committee and the publishing council."

Final proof of his hostility was cited in the fact that he was found to be the son of a former merchant.

$210,000 IN TAXES OWED; RECEIVERS WARNED BY JUDGE

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday were $257,219, making a total of $84,331,885 collected since enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act began on April 28. The day's collections of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for the last four years follow:

Nov. 3.....	$ 16,450	$ 83,828
Uncollected	16,709,770	44,560,273
	1930	1931.
Nov. 3.....	$ 76,993	$ 228,426

The day's collections of 1931 personal property taxes totaled $41,195.

Chief Justice Dennis J. Normoyle of the Circuit court yesterday ordered twenty receivers to file reports on their failure to pay $210,000 in delinquent taxes on thirty properties under their control. Judge Normoyle indicated that the receivers would be removed if they did not give satisfactory explanations for the tax arrears.

This is the beginning of the end of blacklisting with "about" taxes," Judge Normoyle told them, "and if you receivers do not wish to comply with the order on taxes, there are plenty who will."

County Judge Jarecki has ruled that receivers must apply 15 per cent of their net incomes from properties to the payment of overdue taxes. The twenty receivers summoned yesterday were given one week to file reports, which will list the taxes due and the receivers' and attorneys' fees. The receivers are: Former Alderman Irving Schreiber, John E. Hartnett, Milton Wohl, James B. Kaine, Fred Kramer, J. W. Wool, Charles Keller, Herbert Woods, George Kappas, Walter Hagen, William Warneke, C. Shottwell, Edward Tudor, George Koff, Louis Kahn, Urban Foerster, Martin Sadler, Theodore Rezman, H. Rosenberg, and Howard Horwitz.

ATTORNEY HINTS H. F. M'CORMICK MAY SETTLE SUIT

New York, Nov. 3.—[Special.]—Henry Uterhart, counsel for Mrs. Rhoda Tanner Doubleday in her $1,500,000 breach of promise action against Harold F. McCormick of Chicago, said today there might be negotiations for a settlement out of court.

John P. Wilson of Chicago, counsel for Mr. McCormick, is in New York. Mr. Uterhart asserted, adding that the question of a settlement has not been discussed by the attorneys for the two sides since before the case was started. Mr. Uterhart's Chicago colleague in Mrs. Doubleday's case, Henry K. Uterhart, conferred with him last night. "I shall be open to offers," Mr. Uterhart said today. He has had no offers so far, he said, and no intimation that a settlement will be reached immediately.

The Chicago attorneys are not here by prearrangement, Mr. Uterhart said. A cash settlement of at least $250,000 is expected by Mr. Uterhart. He said Mrs. Doubleday has in her possession 100 or more letters, which he described as "classic," written to her by Mr. McCormick.

MOSCOW ORDERS U. S. REDS OUT TO GREET LITVINOV

Commissar Due in N. Y. on Bolshevik Birthday.

BY DONALD DAY.

RIGA, Latvia, Nov. 3.—Maxim Litvinov, soviet Russian commissar of foreign affairs, will receive an uproarious welcome at New York on Nov. 7, plans of the politbureau of the communist party at Moscow are not subjected to interference by American authorities.

The politbureau at two days of meetings at the Moscow Kremlin before the commissar's departure ordered him to embark on the Berengaria because that ship arrives at New York on Nov. 7, the sixteenth anniversary of the bolshevik revolution.

Orders Reds to Demonstrate.

The politbureau also ordered the New York Reds to stage a demonstrative welcome for the representative of the world's first proletarian state, who is en route to Washington to open negotiations with the world's largest capitalist power, the United States in exchange for credits.

Litvinov's instructions, which also were formulated at the session of the politbureau, gives him authority to recognize in principle Russia's debt to the United States in exchange for credits.

Concerning propaganda, however, Moscow refuses to interfere with the activities of either the third internationale or the subsidiary Red Star Union internationale, alleging that these are independent bodies outside the jurisdiction and control of the soviet government.

Says Capitalists Plot War.

"It is possible that the negotiations which Litvinov will conduct in Washington will end with de jure recognition of the soviet government," a copy of the report of the politbureau's decisions said. "But there is no greater mistake, however, than to draw from this the conclusion that we can now decrease our anti-war propaganda."

Dangerous forces still are working to bring about war against the soviet government, and these forces are strengthening at a time when the crisis of the entire capitalist system is becoming more acute every day. The forces of the capitalist countries are concentrating on war as the only way out of the crisis.

"In view of these circumstances, American recognition will strengthen the efforts of the soviet government to maintain peace, and Moscow will more effectively work in this direction if supported by the international proletarian and all the oppressed.

Urges Proletarian Revolution.

"Peace cannot finally be achieved as long as capitalist states are in a position either to recognize or not recognize the soviet government. Only international victory by proletarian revolution and brotherly union of soviet republics on a world scale will free humanity from the scourge of war."

According to documents in possession of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE both the third internationale and the Red trade union internationale are regularly issuing instructions to subsidiaries in the United States to sabotage President Roosevelt's program, hinder recovery efforts by every possible means and bring about armed clashes between workers and authorities in order to hasten the development of class war.

Each of these documents bears the official authorization of Glavlit. According to the soviet encyclopedia Glavlit—chief literary department—is a branch of the soviet commissariat of education, which edits and censors all publications in Russia, and its O. K. makes these instructions official soviet government documents. This is considered incontrovertible proof that both the third internationale and the Red Star Union internationale are directly under soviet government control.

ESTIMATES CITY MUST CUT 1934 COSTS 5½ MILLION

Mayor Gets Figures from Controller.

The city must make a reduction of $5,510,233 in its 1934 appropriations for operating expenses below the present level if it is to stay within its anticipated revenue, City Controller Upham reported yesterday to Mayor Kelly.

Mr. Upham informed the mayor that as a result of the balance of $2,400,000 out of the 1933 corporate fund appropriations the deficit which the city will incur because of the 25 per cent cut in real estate assessments recently announced by Assessor Jacobs will be only $14,851. To this, however, must be added a deficit of $2,105,565 as of Jan. 1, 1933.

In arriving at these figures the controller estimated the assessed value of taxable property in Chicago as $2,623,113,877 for 1932, 1933, and 1934. He estimated that the loss and cost of tax collections will be 10 per cent for the 1932 levy and only 9 per cent for the levies of the next two years.

$31,492,734 in Tax Revenue.

According to Controller Upham's estimate the city will have $31,492,734 in taxes available for appropriation in the 1934 corporate fund budget, from which operating expenses are paid. In addition, he estimated, there will be $13,000,000 in miscellaneous revenue, principally fees and licenses. From this must be subtracted the deficit on Jan. 1, 1934, of $2,119,918, leaving a total of $42,373,816 for 1934 expenditures. The 1933 appropriations from the corporate fund were $47,883,051.

In his communication to the controller pointed out that in the six and a half months since Mayor Kelly took office the city has paid nine months' salary to its employees, a total of $33,854,637. When Mayor Kelly took office on April 13 city salary arrears extended five and a half months back to Nov. 1, 1932. Those arrears have been cleared up and employees have been paid up to Aug. 1, leaving them only three months behind.

County Employees Are Paid.

County employees got their pay yesterday for the first half of August, about $360,000. The money was received by County Treasurer McDonough in penalties on delinquent taxes. At the same time payments of pensions to mothers with dependent children and to the blind, and payments to jurors who served during February were made, a total of $278,000.

Cash is also available from the same source to pay $146,000 to judges and clerks who served in the June judicial election. They will not get the money until Nov. 11 or 12, however, because their 15,000 pay checks have not been prepared.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

ELEVEN CENT MILK

The price of milk in Chicago has been advanced 10 per cent, from 10 to 11 cents a quart, by order of the secretary of agriculture in Washington. A number of aldermen have urged their constituents to boycott the large dairy companies in protest and to buy milk instead from those cash and carry stores which are offering milk at 8 cents. Mayor Kelly has advised against a boycott, but has entered a vigorous protest against the method pursued by the bureaucrats in fixing the price without an adequate public hearing in Chicago at which consumers and independent dairymen might have expressed their opinions regarding the increase.

The mayor is right and the aldermen are wrong. There is already too much fomented discontent in this country without organizing hostilities on a new front. A boycott is born of anger and can be continued only if resentments are continually inflamed. Emotional appeals to consumers can only exacerbate existing irritations, encourage farmers to believe they are being persecuted and further the economic disorganization of the country.

The boycott is always a dangerous and clumsy weapon, and in this instance the aldermen should be able to see that it is also a superfluous one. It is altogether certain that with the price of bottled milk in Chicago at 11 cents some families will live with less milk and others will turn to such substitutes as powdered and canned milk. The aldermen aim to establish a price which the consumers can afford to pay. The consumers do not have to organize to demonstrate what they can pay. The consumption of fluid milk will register their capacity to buy and therefore the error, if any, of the government's price fixing venture far more effectively than any boycott ever will.

While the boycott is to be condemned, there is a lesson in the proposal which the bureaucrats at Washington may not be shrewd enough to grasp unless it is pointed out to them. The members of the city council know their constituents. The aldermen do not undertake to recommend a boycott if they did not know that the people generally are exasperated and looking for leadership in protest. There are fewer than 20,000 farmers supplying the Chicago market with milk, but there are more than 800,000 families in Chicago. Prof. Tugwell may regard these figures as unimportant, but they ought to have some meaning for Mr. Farley.

ENGINEERS AND PUBLIC PROJECTS.

Comment was made the other day upon the suggestion of the western editor of Electrical World, Mr. Frank Innes, that the engineering profession needs a creed like the Hippocratic oath of the medical profession. Such a creed, said Mr. Innes, would bind every engineer vigorously to fight against, and to make every effort to oppose, the fallacies of uneconomic projects of any kind. To the failure of the engineer as an individual to make himself heard Mr. Innes ascribes the staggering waste of funds on economically unsound public projects, and, being himself an electrical engineer, he illustrated his appeal from the field of hydro-electric development, more particularly the egregious case of the Tennessee river project.

"Before the Tennessee valley authority was organized," he says, "the United States government had spent 43 million dollars at Muscle Shoals, and 106 million dollars more has since been assigned for work in the valley. Thus about 150 million dollars has been spent and is authorized to be spent. What are we going to get for it? Hydro-electric development in the Tennessee valley may be regarded in two aspects. One is of the complete scheme which includes 149 plants of varying size and is estimated by U. S. army engineers to cost one billion one hundred million dollars and to develop 3 million kw. of firm power. This is, God forbid, an investment of $267 per kw. It is not probable that complete development of the valley will ever be achieved and we can dismiss these fantastic figures except as they indicate the prodigality of politicians with the people's money. But the second aspect of the development must be regarded more seriously. This contemplates an outlay of 250 million dollars for 900,000 kw. of firm power, a cost of $280 per kw., and 106 million dollars of this 250 million has already been allotted. We are on our way to the $280 per kw. of investment."

Yet, says Mr. Innes, a modern power house for generation of electricity by steam can be built under existing conditions for about one-quarter of the cost per kw. which the government is to spend in the Tennessee valley. In Atlanta, Ga., there is now a 60,000 kw. steam plant costing $70 per kw. to build, as compared to the government's proposed $280. Then are to be considered the possibilities of reduced costs through improvements in steam generation, which now has an efficiency of only about 30 per cent, whereas generation of electricity from water power has already reached 95 per cent. Mr. Innes prophesies that, "At Boulder Dam, in the Tennessee valley, on the Columbia river, in western Nebraska, in Wyoming, on the St. Lawrence river, or wherever the United States government has invested or does invest immense sums of money in hydro-electric power projects, ten years from now these plants will be admittedly operating at a loss, unable to pay out their investments, or will be standing idle and unused as monuments to the fact that the engineers did not stand up and tell their story when, or rather before, the investments were made."

Mr. Innes' discussion of the social and political aspects of his subject is also suggestive, as when he refers to the fact that the steam plant gives employment to many more men than the hydro-electric plant and where he emphasizes the evils inherent in the extension of public enterprise controlled by politics. These are questions of first rate moment to the welfare of the American people and Mr. Innes appeals to the engineering fraternity to direct its knowledge and influence to their correct solution.

COL. HOWE'S CORRESPONDENCE DEPARTMENT.

Col. Louis McHenry Howe of the President's secretariat, specializing in broadcasting, has given the public an outline of what the government is prepared to do for consumers. Col. Howe tells the people that any finding an extra charge in any article he has been accustomed to buy for less should procure a blank at the postoffice, state the facts, and mail his complaint. Thereupon he starts department machinery which, as the colonel says, will move automatically and unceasingly from retailer to jobber to manufacturer and back and forth again until a precise reason has been given for the increase.

No matter how small the article or where the purchaser or how little the increase in price, a complaint will require an explanation satisfactory to everybody to clear the retailer of the charge of chiseling. Col. Howe describes a government machinery working inexorably and unflinchingly in each case. The citizen has only to discover that he is charged ten cents more than a former price for a toothbrush, can opener, pair of shoes, a hat, a pork chop, a pie tin, a broom, or any imaginable article, and then make his complaint. Investigators will do the rest.

Inasmuch as it is the present main policy of the government to raise commodity prices, it would seem, if this policy succeeds, that every citizen will find increase in the amount needed to make his purchases. In each case he is invited to make a complaint. It is not only the farmer who alleges that everything he is to buy runs him with its new costs but all consumers have been taught to expect that their money will not get them what they are accustomed to receive.

If Col. Howe's invitation is widely accepted the consequences should be a veritable convulsion of investigation. It is difficult to see what anybody in or out of the government could be doing then except asking and answering questions. The colonel's scheme would indicate the need of ten people handling inquiries to every consumer receiving an answer. This country may find itself composed soon of not more than twelve private citizens in any community of 5,000 inhabitants and all the others engaged in some government activity connected with the lives of the twelve. Presently the United States will be hard pressed to find a citizenship interested in anything but public works.

Editorial of the Day

LICENSED NEWSPAPERS.

(New York Times.)

Prof. Lindsay Rogers, who is conducting for the recovery administrator the negotiations for a newspaper code, makes light of the provision under NRA for licensing the press. He declares that it is of little consequence whether such a regulation is included or excluded, since in either case the first amendment of the constitution of the United States, forbidding congress to pass any law "abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press," must prevail. Prof. Rogers is reported as saying that "no responsible or intelligent person has ever thought of the possibility of newspapers being brought under the licensing provisions of the act."

If so, why not strike them out altogether? This is what is demanded by representatives of newspapers, who raise two objections to this feature of the proposed code. One is that the very idea of licensing is intolerable. The power to license is a power to direct or restrict or suppress. In the second place, there would always be danger that some bureaucrat, swelling with the arrogance of his brief authority, might proceed to censor or to punish a newspaper that had expressed views distasteful to the authorities. He could at least forbid the use of the blue eagle, thus tacitly inviting a boycott. He could bring some proceeding in a lower court from which it would take a long time to carry an appeal to the Supreme court. At such uncertainties and restraints have no place in the American conception of freedom of the press.

The question is of real and general public importance, because there is already a wide suspicion that the press is not now free to speak its honest thought. A common expression is that the administration has largely succeeded in "muzzling" American newspapers. As evidence, the fact is pointed to that nearly every one of them from the first has given hearty and unstinted support to the President's recovery plans. But this has been wholly spontaneous. In it there has been no hint of censorship, open or implied. The course of the newspapers has been dictated by their own sense of public spirit. There has been no muzzling. The press has been free to print what it conceived to be truly in the national interest. Right there lies the crucial test of newspaper censoring or licensing. A policy may be voluntarily and gladly adopted which no government, or governmental underling, would have a right to impose. It is because they perceive and set upon this important difference that the owners and editors of newspapers have been opposing, and will continue to oppose, anything in the newspaper code which even appears to give to the government a semblance of power to dictate to the press what it shall print and what it shall not.

THE REAL REASON.

"What's happened, George?" she asked her husband who had got out to investigate. "Puncture," he answered briefly. "You ought to have been on the lookout for this," she grumbled. "You remember the guide book informed you that there was a fork in the road."—Tid-Bits.

WHAT FLAVOR, PLEASE!

A city girl visiting her uncle on the farm was watching a cow chewing her cud. "Pretty fine cow, that," said her uncle as he came by. "Yes," said the girl, "but doesn't it cost a lot to keep her in chewing gum?"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

LISSEN, GOVERNMENT! THERE'S A COCKROACH IN OUR KITCHEN.

(Takes Visions United States as Landlord of Housing Projects on Huge Scale.)—W. G. N.

It would be a real pleasure to live in one of the new flat buildings the government is going to put up. Not only because the rent would be cheaper (no one could object to that) but it would give anybody quite a kick to call up on the long distance telephone and say: "Hello, U. S. All right, give me the war department. Hello, war department? Well, send the army over to fix up our bathroom fixtures. The hot water tap froze up last night. Or would that be the navy department? All right, connect me with the navy."

Or it might be a job for the agricultural department. "Hello! Is this the secretary of agriculture? No? Well, anyhow, one of my window boxes—you know, the one that had geraniums in it—fell off the ledge last night and I'd like to have you send somebody up to fix it. All right, and, by the way, tell your switchboard to give me the judicial department. The window box fell on the head of one of the neighbors and he's sore and says he's going to have me arrested."

Yes, indeed, it would certainly be a fine thing to have the United States as a landlord. Suppose it came around springtime and we wanted new wallpaper. Easy! "Hello, United States! I want to talk to the interior department about some interior decorating, wallpaper and paint. Just a little job, but we're pretty fussy. You don't suppose the secretary of the interior could come over himself and do the job, do you? No? Well, I didn't think he could. What about the postmaster general? No? Well, just so you pick out some pretty wallpaper and put it up smooth I don't care. It isn't my house, anyhow; it's the government's. But if you want to keep a good tenant the United States had better do this thing right. I'm telling you!"

And when it came time to pay the month's rent! That would be splendid! I'd say to the collector: "So you want the rent for June (December or May, or whatever month it was)? Are you the secretary of the treasury?" Not that I would expect the secretary of the treasury to come around personally every month and get my fifteen dollars rent money, because, the United States owing so many flat buildings, he would hardly have time.

Nor would I imagine the President of the United States would call for the money, although as head of the government he would in reality be our landlord. But at least I would hold off paying until the President got interested enough to call me up and say that if I didn't come across with that rent money within two weeks he would cut off the water and the electricity.

And if I paid no attention to that he might order out the marines. Oh, I'd love to have him order out the marines. We are a very quiet, unostentatious family, but it would give us quite a thrill to have the neighbors all craning their heads out the windows to see the United States marines mounting guard in front of our door. And maybe I could make our landlord (that's the government) send over some of the artillery and the marine band. That's almost too much to expect, but when you're renting a flat from the U. S. and have the government for a landlord you ought to get something out of it.

BOUND IN CALF.

I have written a sonnet

To buy me a bonnet,
And traded a ballad for shoes;
And when on my uppers
I've sung for my suppers,
For such is the slave of the Muse.

But late I was paid for my verse and my chaff
Two little green dollars and one shining half!

Said I: "Dollars may fall,
I'll have nothing at all,
I will put this in oil stock and steel;
Yet investments should grow,
Buy a cow—it may 'low',
But no pigs in a Pegasus deal."

Well, my two and a half
Bought one little red calf.

Now, her style is so neat,
With her four rhythmic feet,
She's the mother (I hope) of a line.
I go wooing the "Moos"
Through the fresh morning dew—
In short, she's a poem in kind!

In sale or in barter
I never was smarter,
Sweet bucolic volume, I laugh—
Let public grow deaf,
I'll cherish my heifer,
My poems are bound up in calf!

JANET NORRIS BANGS.

NEW YORK SOCIETY gave a scavenger party a few nights ago. To them there is something hilariously funny in going around and picking up garbage buckets and dumping it in a wagon. Society has a strange sense of humor, or else I have. Speaking in a scavenger way, one of us is rotten. The only thing I ever heard about scavengers that was at all lifelike was the conversation between two scavengers, one of whom said: "Do you know how kind folks them new people is up on the top floor?" And the other scavenger said: "Nope, but I guess they're nice people; they got pretty swell swill."

"WELL, ESTHER, you'll have to take it on the chin like the rest of us."—Testimony of Mrs. Busby referring to her talk with Mr. Traylor. Which is a grand slogan for all of us to repeat to ourselves these days: "Well, Esther (or John or Cuthbert or Reginald or Millicent, or whatever name we bear), take it on the chin like the rest of us."

MILK is going up in price just as whiskey comes back. There's a thorn to every rose. And I had looked forward so eagerly to a nice milk punch.

TAKING STOCK OF COLDS.

THIS is the season in which preparations should be made against winter diseases. Health—individual and collective—is at its very best in the summer months. About the middle of September the disease vacation begins. From the standpoint of prevalence and the loss of time occasioned the worst of these is the common cold. Experience teaches that colds have a far deeper in just the season we are now in. Later they appear to be less troublesome for a month or so, then they begin to come again. Nor is there much letup until the late spring.

Physicians are very much in disagreement as to measures which build resistance to colds. It is wise to avoid excess in eating and drinking and prevent constipation, also to remain in the open air and sunshine as much as possible. Dust and dusty places should be avoided. There is some reason for thinking it wise to avoid people who are very subject to colds. All those who have had more acute attacks of coryza a year should be under suspicion. It is wise to avoid crowded, crowded cars, and assembling places in so far as that is possible. It is not certain that exposing oneself to sunlight or to light therapy is almost to the dermatitis point is a preventive measure of value, but it can do great harm and it may do good. The same applies to the use of cod liver oil, vitamin, and other vitamin D preparations. Many have themselves vaccinated against colds at this season of the year, and their experience gives them faith in the method.

March is the month for meningitis, and the building for prevalence at that period begins in the autumn. The fact that the encephalitis of this year has so many meningitis features increases apprehension as to conditions next March. The very best measure of prevention against meningitis is the epidemic of cowdria. When the disease is epidemic in character the outbreaks are prone to occur in the method.

UNPAID WAGES.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have worked for a firm for six months, and at the time of leaving last January they owed me $39 back pay. A week later this firm went into receivership and later declared themselves bankrupt. 2. However, this same firm is now operating full force under the same name. 3. Is there any possible chance of collecting any of this back pay? 4. If I quit of my own accord can I collect? 5. If I'm fired can I collect? F. M.

1. We assume that you mean that they are a partnership rather than a corporation. 2. There is no legal objection to an individual for a group of individuals doing business as a firm. Engaging in business after bankruptcy. 3. Not if your claim has been scheduled in the bankruptcy and the proceedings have been carried through to a discharge. 4. These facts would not affect your rights.

FATHER MAY CLAIM CHILD.

Oak Park, Ill., Nov. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In April, 1932, my wife died, leaving me with a daughter then one year old. Immediately following this event my mother-in-law, who works for a living, hired a girl and took the baby, with my consent, but with the stipulation that it was not to be permanent. I have recently remarried and desire to regain my daughter. 1. Is there any way in which my mother-in-law can prevent me from taking her? 2. Has she any legal claim because of having the child in her possession? I have sent her $20 each month as long as she had the baby.

1. In our opinion she has no legal right to hold the child, but if she claims such right you should not take the child by violence. If you cannot obtain custody without a breach of the peace, you should institute habeas corpus proceedings. 2. No.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

HELSINGFORS, Finland.—Now officially engaged in the liquor business through the organization of its alcohol monopoly, the Finnish government has decided to protect its home market more thoroughly. The government has enlarged the appropriation for the coast guard from $375,000 to $455,000. Since its authorization in 1929 the coast guards have been waging a winning fight against the Baltic alcohol smugglers, who for the last 15 years have been attempting to satisfy the Finnish thirst with cheap, raw commercial alcohol produced in Germany, Poland, and Czechoslovakia.

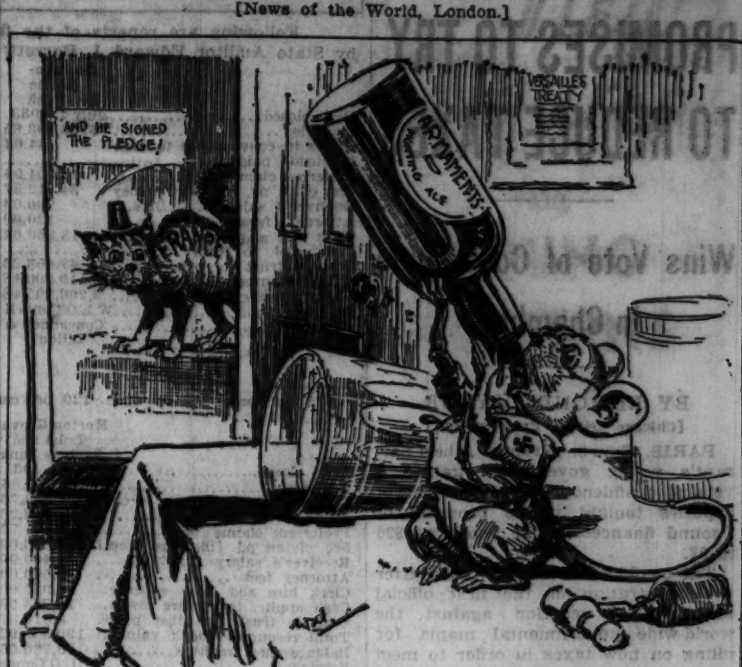

The first step of the coast guard was to establish an efficient intelligence service in the chief German ports where alcohol laden ships were cleared for the Finnish and Bohemia gulfs. The records show that in 1930 the smugglers handled 5,000,000 quarts of spirits. Of this, the coast guard captured 400,000 quarts. In 1931 5,000,000 quarts appeared off the Finnish coast and 600,000 were captured. In 1932 the turnover of the smugglers had decreased to 3,000,000 quarts, of which 600,000 quarts were confiscated. Capt. Valno Miettinen, commander of the coast guard, estimates the smugglers' cargoes this year will not amount to more than 2,500,000 quarts, of which 300,000 quarts had been seized up to Oct. 1.

Although ten of the 500 men in the Finnish coast guard have been killed in the last three years in clashes with smugglers, service in this branch is popular and there is a waiting list. The government pays members of the coast guard a bonus of 10 cents for every quart confiscated and the limit of this bonus has just been increased from $500 to $1,000 on a single large capture. The Czechoslovak steamer Dalborg, loaded with 71,000 quarts of alcohol, was captured recently. It was the largest prize of the year. Miettinen reports there are nine big rum smuggling ships anchored off the Finnish coast. Six are flying the British flag and two the Czechoslovakian banner. The ninth vessel is alleged to hail from Panama. The average from 300 to 400 tons and their cargoes approximate 100,000 quarts each. The cargoes are regularly replenished by supply ships from Kiel, Germany, the Danish Free State, and Gdynia, Poland. The capture of the Dalborg and the refusal of the Czech government to protect the owners has resulted in other ships applying for British registry. As a result, the entire rum fleet in the Finnish gulf is expected to fly the Union Jack soon.

Capt. Miettinen says negotiations with the British government on this evasion of the Helsingfors convention have failed. Under the convention signed between Finland and all coun-

IN THE FRONT RANK.

Chicago, Oct. 30.—Once again The Tribune has shown its courageous spirit in leading the fight against the minority against the bureaucratic and tyrannical methods of the national administration. Believing that you will be interested in knowing that there are many firms and individuals who are heartily in favor of your courageous stand and who, at the present, can lend only their moral support for your efforts in their behalf, we are writing this letter.

Smaller firms, such as ourselves, have no alternative but to sign the unconstitutional code and comply therewith. Fortunately, however, there are those such as you who are not afraid to speak their minds publicly and through the newspapers.

The writer has been a reader of your paper continuously since he started reading papers and the stand you have taken on the prohibition question and now on the latest tyrannical and bigoted question has made me a leading reader and supporter of The Chicago Tribune. I only hope that it will not take as long to repair the damage which this act will inevitably do as it did to repair the damage done by the 18th amendment.

It is true that there are a few good points in this act, but the bad points so outweigh the former that the legislation must be altered considerably, if not stricken from the statute books in its entirety.

THE WAY THE WIND BLOWS.

Stockton, Ill., Oct. 27.—Approving of the movement initiated by The Chicago Tribune to secure the continuance of A Century of Progress, the Stockton Community club at their weekly luncheon yesterday passed a resolution expressing the desire of the people of this city and community to have the Fair extended another year.

The statement was made that Chicago is for it in 1934 for business reasons, but is uncertain about outside support, and so this is a straw to show the wind blows.

JOBS.

Chicago, Oct. 27.—Loud beating of tom-toms in Washington over the statement that several thousand persons have found employment in recent months. An investigation might show that many of the recently employed are individuals who have evolved new and bizarre ways of spending public money and now are attached to bureau salary rolls.

CLUB GUIDES BAD BOYS INTO PATH OF CITIZENSHIP

Tough District Changed by Settlement.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

The Red, White and Blue club, is making good citizens in a neighborhood known for years for its tough boys. The club, located at 1333 Wade street, is one of the 100 private welfare agencies to share in the $4,000,000 Community fund for Allied Charities which is to be launched within a few days.

Mrs. Janina Adamczyk, superintendent, explained yesterday that the transformation of wayward boys into good citizens is being accomplished by shifting the responsibility of the club activities upon the shoulders of its members. "Even the worst rascal," she added, "will do the best he knows how when he finds that his duty is to help teach the younger children."

Swarms of Children Play.

Children, swarms of them, were playing in Wade street at dusk last evening when a reporter called. In a narrow strip of yard a pair of geese quacked. Young voices sounded up and down the intimate little street tucked in between Milwaukee avenue and Goose island.

It was difficult to believe that this neighborhood could have been the Flying Forecast

Chicago-St. Louis, Evansville, and Cincinnati—Scattered clouds.

Chicago-Detroit-Cleveland—Scattered clouds.

Chicago-Twin Cities—Partly overcast, some low clouds and snow over north portion.

Chicago-Des Moines—Increasing cloudiness, followed by low clouds and rain over extreme west.

Chicago-Kansas City—Increasing cloudiness. Route forecasts for 12 hours ending at noon:

Cleveland-New York and Cleveland-Albany via Buffalo—Broken clouds.

center of window smashing and stealing and prowling night gangs. The stuccoed club building with small window panes and red and white checked curtains has activities—clubs, athletics, discussion groups dancing, dramatics, woodwork, and crafts, games, and cooking, going on afternoon and evening. It contains a library, a gymnasium, clubrooms and a sunny large room for the youngest ones.

Upstairs a 15-year-old girl with three or four of her friends was teaching a group of forty ten and twelve year old girls the "krakowiak," national Polish dance. The older girls make the peasant costumes and one of these days when the steps are mastered the parents will see their children in the dance they knew themselves in the old country. Nearly the entire neighborhood is of Polish extraction.

Plenty of Boys Attend.

"We have a daily average of 150 youngsters, and plenty, plenty of boys," the superintendent said. "When I first came here three years ago some of the older boys in the neighborhood threatened to smash some of the windows. I said, all right, go ahead. And just to show me, one of them smashed his hand through a window. We had to take fifteen stitches in his wrist. There wasn't any more trouble."

"Many boys doing criminal things are not really criminal boys. If we teach them the right kind of fun we'll avoid most of the crime in the neighborhood. They commit depredations to get a thrill. If they have legitimate fun here at the club, they behave."

"There is a tremendous need for employment for boys of 15 and 16. Sports like basketball are splendid, for it takes up their time and makes them tired enough to go to bed when they should. But I know we could solve part of the delinquent boys' troubles if they could be given jobs. They know they know the difference between right and wrong. Their morality is not dimmed. They need something to occupy their time."

Larger Staff Needed.

But despite the willingness of the members to help, there are too many boys and girls for a regular staff of two persons to oversee, and two other helpers are to be added soon to lift the burden. The club is operated on a budget of $5,000 and a staff that has been cut two-thirds. The budget formerly was $7,000.

"If we don't get aid from the Community fund," Mrs. Adamczyk said, "I don't know what we'll do. Just shut up shop, I'm afraid. But this neighborhood of railroads and congestion conditions would be a lot worse if it weren't for the proper recreation the neighborhood children get here."

A group of interested women govern the club and aid in giving benefits and contributions during the year. Mrs. Thomas R. Gowenlock is president and Mrs. George Rasmussen, treasurer.

KILLED BY FALL.

John Silva, 30 years, 5135 North Milwaukee avenue, was killed yesterday when he fell from the second floor at his home to a concrete pavement. He was putting in storm windows when the accident occurred.

ALDERMEN SEEK TO OUST BUILDING CODE COMMITTEE

The council committee on building and zoning yesterday recommended to the city council the discharge of the citizens' committee which has worked on a revision of the city building code for more than four years without producing a completed code.

The council committee adopted the recommendation of a subcommittee on the building code, headed by Ald. Frank J. Corr (17th). The subcommittee criticized the citizens' committee for what it deemed excessive expenditures, and suggested the appointment of a commission of five to complete the revision.

The citizens' committee is headed by Oscar W. Rosenthal, contractor and proprietor of a World's Fair concession. It has about 100 members, mostly architects, engineers, and contractors, and was appointed by Christoph P. Paschen, former building commissioner, who is now under conviction for income tax frauds.

Since its appointment on June 5, 1929, Ald. Corr reported, the committee has contracted obligations of $54,988, of which $21,000 is still unpaid. Other bills for shorthand reports of its meetings are still to be submitted.

"We believe the amount expended is unreasonable and if expenditures continue they will be far out of proportion to the value of the work done," the subcommittee reported. "Ample time has been allowed the committee, and its delays are inexcusable."

From time to time the citizens' committee has submitted to the aldermen various sections of the code on which it has finished work. At such hearings, however, the code has appeared. Chairman Rosenthal has invited them to take up their objections with his committee and a second revision, frequently prolonged, has then been started.

The subcommittee headed by Ald. Corr recommended that the proposed new building code commission of five consist of one engineer, one architect, one contractor, and the head of some city department, all to be designated by Mayor Kelly, with the city building commissioner completing the commission.

AUTO INJURIES FATAL TO QUAKER OATS OFFICIAL

Chauncey A. Bowman, vice president of the Quaker Oats company, died yesterday in St. Luke's hospital of injuries incurred on Thursday night when he was struck by a truck at Dearborn and Van Buren streets. He was 64 years old.

Mr. Bowman was walking to the Illinois Central station to take the train for his home at 5300 Hyde Park boulevard when he was struck by a truck belonging to the 59th Shore Fuel company. The truck driver, Fred Scott, 37 years old, 7110 Ellis avenue, was not held because witnesses said the accident was unavoidable.

Mr. Bowman had been with the Quaker Oats company for 45 years and had been vice president in charge of sales for 12 years. He is survived by his widow, Ella, and two daughters, Mrs. Hazel Ward of Sterling, Ill., and Mrs. Marjory Black of Western Springs.

motor toll to $23 for the year. The other victims:

Myron G. Solon, 6 years old, 1449 North Spaulding avenue. Killed by a truck while playing in an alley in the rear of 3157 Le Moine street. The driver, Peter Guido, 327 Pierce avenue, took the boy to a doctor's office, where he was pronounced dead.

S. C. Smith, 35 years old, 519 North Third avenue, Maywood. Died in the Westlake hospital, Melrose Park, of injuries incurred when he was struck at Lake street and Second avenue by a car driven by Frank Jones, a Negro, 54 years old, of 120 East 60th street. Jones was held.

Casper Lewandowski, 45 years old, 139 East 118th place. Killed by an automobile at 130th street and Cottage Grove avenue. The driver did not stop after the accident.

Eben Gill, 78 years old, 2043 North Keeler avenue. Fatally injured by a truck as he stepped off a safety island at Tripp and Fullerton avenues. Charles Moelius, the truck driver, was not held.

Unidentified man, about 50 years old. Died in the county hospital of a skull fracture incurred when he was struck while crossing Oriole avenue at Addison street. Irving Park police held the driver, Felix Stocker, 15 years old.

Maurois Does Grand Job of Edwardian Era

Sees Subject as Detached Contemporary.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.
"The Edwardian Era," by Andre Maurois. [Appleton.]

WHAT ANDRE MAUROIS did so brilliantly for the Victorian era in "Disraeli" he has done as brilliantly for the Edwardian era in "The Edwardian Era." It is not a pageant of a period of pageantry, written not with the often popular modern scorn of the grand gesture of the day, but with an understanding of, and in the spirit of, the dignity which characterized an era. It is not M. Maurois' wish and he does not make it his province to look upon the period with the inverted field glasses which many historians of the day have chosen to view the past.

The Edwardian era is neither belittled nor exaggerated in M. Maurois' pages. It is set down as if the author had himself been a contemporary, but with the skilled detachment of an observer rather than as a participant in its pageantry.

With a finely turned wit, but never with either of wit's harshnesses—satire and irony—M. Maurois paints the panorama of a period with the foreground adorned by the sensitivity and superbly keen characterizations of the men who, always with the aid of the British people and their special psychology, created the period. No history is made alone by its great men. The temper of a people can be swayed, like a skyscraper in a sixty mile gale, by its men of power, but rarely is a national temperament actually overturned even by a Napoleon. The history of the world is not only the history of great men, but the story of the people who first made and then delivered themselves into the power of the great.

M. Maurois, it seems to me, in both "Disraeli" and "The Edwardian Era" has chronicled the temper of the people with as great skill as he has chronicled the growth of individual power. He understands peculiarly the peculiarities, the rightness and the wrongnesses, the fundamental strength and the fundamental weakness of the English.

The great men who people the pages of "The Edwardian Era" are pictured with supreme artistry. The two who share the immediate forefront of the great panorama are uncle and nephew, the uncle in his maturity still treated by his mother, Queen Victoria, as a schoolboy, refused by her the right even of seeing state papers, destined to be a king but swaddled as a baby long years after he might have been apprenticed to his work. The nephew, Queen Victoria's "dear grandson," not only king but emperor in his young manhood, harassed by a passion to show off, to dress up, to dominate, to prove to the world that a withered arm was no handicap to practical brutality. The jealous hatred of the nephew for his uncle, the tolerant dislike of the uncle toward his nephew. In that relationship and its infinite concentric ripples in diplomacy M. Maurois gives the book its secondary important aspect.

War between Germany and England had its far reaching causes, as it had its immediate ones in 1914, and M. Maurois either tacitly or with explicitness sketches many of those causes in "The Edwardian Era."

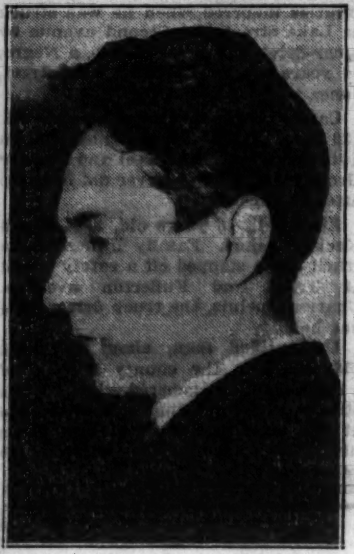

Not alone of Kaiser Wilhelm but of the czar, Salisbury, Lloyd George, Viscount Grey, Campbell Bannerman, Asquith, Chamberlain, Balfour, and others does M. Maurois make lifelike portraits. Of them all the portrait of the Kaiser is the most memorable, even more vivid than that of the playboy prince of Wales, later the sagacious King Edward.

Lewes' Diary Available to

Author of Eliot Works

The unpublished diary of George Lewes, the great love of George Eliot's life, was put at the disposal of Anna T. Kitcher for the first biography of that much misinterpreted man. George Lewes and George Eliot. [Day.]

PROVOCATIVE

In a recent letter from London Frank Swinnerton mentioned a provocative volume called "Literature in My Time," by Compton Mackenzie. The book, it is predicted, will annoy highbrows.

English Pens Busy Depicting Future Things

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—More books about the future! The first of these, a serious but ironic novel of a time not very far ahead, is by Joan Glag, who wrote a similar novel called "Tomorrow's Yesterday." That book, published about a year ago, dealt with the world of the talkies and a great advertising campaign. It was grim, and it was packed with ideas; hard, vigorous, and scornful.

Now Mr. Glag has written another such novel, which is called "The New Pleasure," and which deals with the effects of a scientific discovery. The discovery is that of a powder which enables all who sniff it to recover mankind's lost sense of smell. The powder is not a drug. But those who sniff lose all taste for cigarette smoking; beer drinking, and other habits; and at the same time they become acutely aware of less agreeable scents than those from which they derive such pleasure.

The result in Europe is a great sanitary cleanup, the ruin of some trades, and the immense increase in others, a new movement "back to the land," and a general improvement in taste. The community becomes happy and healthy, and the inventor in due course is canonized.

"The New Pleasure" has no love story, but is a tale of the triumph of a trio of eager men over all forces opposed to them. It takes us into newspaper offices and big business, parliament and the advertising world; and with all these places it deals briefly, pungently, and with vigor. Mr. Glag is nothing if not vigorous. But he has unusual knowledge. When not writing novels he is an expert on the subjects of architecture and furnishing, as to which he has written much. The result is full of power, and those Londoners who are now reading "The New Pleasure" with relish and respect.

Another book, this time entirely fantastic, which in spite of its title has nothing to do with Chicago, and which deals with England in the future, is "Chicago Don," by C. E. Bechhofer Roberts. Mr. Roberts was the writer of that novel about Charles Dickens which made many people so indignant a short time ago. He has been living for some time in a quiet Surrey village, and it is the quietness of his life, no doubt, that has led him to imagine what would happen if a gunman came to England.

Don, a new Quixote, always in trouble because his knowledge of English life has been gained from the talkies, lands with an empty revolver, tries vainly to get a drink and some ammunition, rescues a girl from—as he thinks—a couple of bandits who prove to be her brothers, is rooked at cards, and has many other embarrassing adventures before he is safely taken to France by air.

The book is full of glorious slang, and, introduced to English readers by praise from Sinclair Lewis, is causing a great deal of laughter.

Finds Race in Rare Moment of Transition.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
"Adventures of Ideas," by Alfred North Whitehead. [Macmillan.]

WHAT is needed in the western world today as never before is the philosophic outlook, the ability to see the future that is immanent in the present, the relationships and correlations of the emerging ideas that move mankind, the iron necessities of humanity, and yet the field of freedom that is provided in the heart of nature.

Such an outlook is provided by Prof. Whitehead, fellow of Trinity college, University of Cambridge, and professor of philosophy at Harvard university, in his latest book, which is a history of the human race from the point of view of its changing ideas. Prof. Whitehead is regarded by a widening circle of readers, professional philosophers as well as laymen, as the greatest living philosopher. In her "Autobiography of Alice B. Toklas," Gertrude Stein refers to him as one of the three greatest minds of the world today.

Mankind's whole adventure. Prof. Whitehead finds, in the search for new perceptions. Once arrived at a perfection, such as that of the upper strata of Greek life during its golden age, the seeds of decay begin to sprout. There is something missing. That something in Greek life, instinctive in Plato but never expressed in the political field, was the essence of rights of human beings. The Platonic generalities became particularized in the Christian and other religions, and mankind marched forward despite such evil associates as the inquisition.

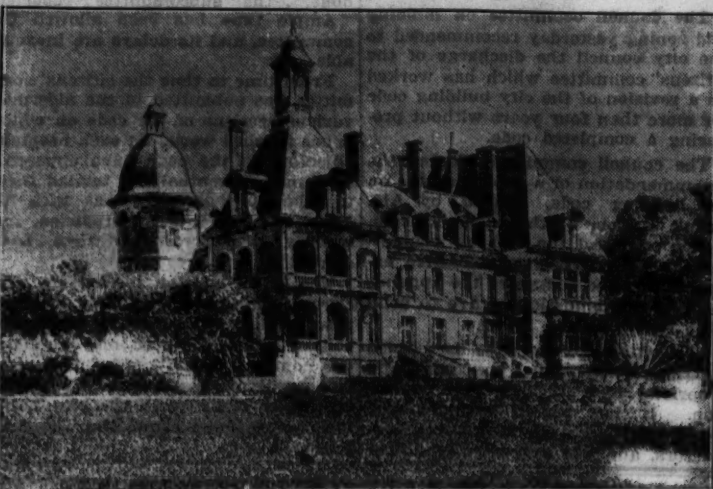

Unless we adopt Mr. Whitehead's thesis and go back to the Nile valley for the dawn of the Platonic ideas we find a time order of 2,600 years intervening before human slavery was abolished. The tempo of change is now increasing. The age of science has speeded up the emergence of ideas. Time is two ways. Past and future are indistinguishable. The only reality is the present event bearing in its impress the persuasion of the divine immanence. That is man's choice, at least. There is something precious and beautiful at the heart of the universe, including man.

Just now Prof. Whitehead finds a peculiar need for what he calls "forefront" in the business world. Mankind, he says, is now at one of its rare moments of shifting its outlook. The mere compulsion of tradition has lost its force. The religious spirit is always there, however disguised, making for order.

"The well marked transition from one age into another," he writes, "can always be traced to some analogous to Steam and Democracy, and if we prefer it to some analogous to Barbarians and Christians. Senseless agencies and formulated aspirations cooperate in the work of driving mankind from its old anchorage. Sometimes it is the period of change in an age of hope, sometimes it is an age of despair. When mankind has slipped its cables, sometimes it is bent on the discovery of a new world and sometimes it is haunted by the dim sound of the breakers dashing on the rocks ahead. The fall of the Roman empire occurred in a prolonged age of despair: Steam and Democracy belong to an age of hope."

Birthplace of "Edwardian Era"

In the great library of this chateau in the Dordogne, France, was written much of Andre Maurois' brilliant literary pageant, "The Edwardian Era." Essenders, the chateau is called, and it is the country place of Mme. Maurois' family. This photograph was sent to the literary editor recently by a close friend who was a week-end visitor there.

Far Eastern Front, by Edgar Snow [Smith & Haas], gives clear and brief narratives of actual happenings in Japan, China, and Manchuria.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Pilgrim of the Apocalypse, by Horace Gregory [Viking], is a critical study of D. H. Lawrence.

My Life as German and Jew, by Jacob Wasserman [Coward-McCann], published twelve years ago in Germany, has just been published in this country and England.

SHORT STORIES.

Love Among the Haystacks and Other Pieces, by D. H. Lawrence [Viking], contains a novella, a short story, and two autobiographical sketches.

change. There is no perfection, not even in heaven. Perfection is static and dull. God may be expressed in a multitude of ways, in art, in the human body, and in social life. What is important is the integrating factor, the dominance of the event by the higher levels of thought. One may find Browning's "Paracelsus" here in his driving wisdom.

Prof. Whitehead is a mathematician and psychologist as well as a philosopher. It is well to bring some preparation to this book, for it assumes a familiarity with many basic scientific concepts as well as with the language of philosophy. But even the casual reader can hardly escape a new vision of the emotions and purposes which drive mankind forward. It will help to understand the real forces of today.

Mrs. Siddons, Noted Actress of England, Subject of Biography

Naomi Royde-Smith in "Portrait of Mrs. Siddons" (Viking Press) has produced a picture of the theater and society of England a century ago with the great tragic actress in the foreground. The structure of the book is artistic, the four divisions being called: Materials for a Portrait; The Background; Cloudy Symbols; and The Sister.

Blocking in her canvas with interesting details of the life and times, the author makes Mrs. Siddons stand out with clarity and grace. One sees this genius of the British theater as a modest, hard working, family loving creature, who acted because she had to earn a living. Painted by the greatest artists of her day: Gainsborough, Reynolds, Lawrence and Stuart, she was nevertheless not in the last conscious of her rare beauty. Married at 18, she was the mother of two children soon after 20, and all through her life she shouldered all the responsibilities, her husband, apparently, being both a mediocre actor and a poor provider.

It was an inner fire burning through her sweet personality that made her a magnetic tragedienne and a romantic figure in the history of the English stage. It was this quality that every generation has found in the time, as a boy, he made his first sketch of her until the last days of his life. "Portrait of Mrs. Siddons" will interest students of Georgian England.

An "Anecdote" Was An Unpublished Tale

Even among the ancient Greeks there were two kinds of stories—those given out publicly and those known only privately. The latter kind was called "anecdotes" literally meaning "not published." The word was formed by combining a, "not," and eido, "given out." From this source came our English anecdote, which originally retained the Greek meaning, "unpublished narrative." But tales of interesting times or people are so much sought after that now they are frequently given out for publication and the word anecdote has lost its original meaning.

There are thousands of such stories about the origins of English words in

Margaret Sinclair to Be Bride of Andrew B. Harper

Parents Announce Her Engagement at Party; 'Diamond Lil' Dance to Be Gay Affair Tonight.

BY JUDITH CASS.

LAST night at a family dinner Mr. and Mrs. William Jennings Sinclair of 2350 Lincoln Park west announced the engagement of their only daughter, Margaret, to Andrew B. Harper Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew B. Harper of Grosse Pointe, Mich. The fortunate young man—and all of Margaret's friends, especially her Junior League sisters, consider that he is a specially fortunate one to have won Margaret—and his parents are here for the week-end and were present at last night's announcement party. And tonight young Mr. Harper will be at the dinner party Miss Sinclair is giving for a dozen of her friends before the "Diamond Lil" party at the Drake.

Miss Sinclair, who has been the efficient and capable executive secretary of the Junior League for several years, went first to the Chicago Latin School for Girls and then to DePaul University. Mr. Harper went to Exeter, N.H., and then to Princeton, graduating from there in 1929. No plans for the marriage have been made.

"Diamond Lil" Guests to Wear Togs of '90s.

The "Diamond Lil" party tonight gives promise of being one of the gayest and most colorful of the season, for although costumes of the gay nineties are not obligatory they are in order. The 25 young women who comprise the committee in charge and their husbands and their numerous dinner guests all are going to be "dressed up," so even if no one else is it will be a picturesque party.

Mrs. George Jaeger Jr., who is chairman of the committee and who is entertaining 24 at dinner at her residence at 1320 North State street before the dance, has been building her flower garden a hat for at least two weeks and it is not one of the rarest and most amusing sights there tonight we miss our guess. Her sister, Miss Barbara Douglas, who is here at the Ambassador for several weeks, is to be a real Miss West girl with a white satin dress fairly dripping with black sequins, a huge black velvet hat with white plumes and a red feather boa.

Pink dust ruffles will be the highlight of Mrs. Jaeger's costume. She is scheduled to start at 9:30 o'clock and to end—well, there is no hour scheduled for the finish. Mrs. Robert McKenna, who is ticket chairman, and Mr. McKenna have an out of town guest for the affair, a classmate of Mr. McKenna's at Princeton, Lewis Herzog of New York. Eugene Swigart has five friends from Cincinnati here for the party.

Numerous Others to Have Dinner Parties.

Among others who will have dinner parties before the dance are the John Roots, the John George Silverthornes, the John Beales, the Roger Whites, Miss Nancy McNulty, the Stern Chapmans, the Ralph Chensers, the John John F. Wilsons, the Wilbur C. Smiths, the Botsford Youngs, the John Galleries, the Leonard Princes, the Charles C. Daweses, Miss Helen Bell, William Humphries, the Owen Wests, and Mr. and Mrs. William K. Meyers.

Some of the debutantes, including Miss Charlotte Hubbard, Miss Roslyn Paine, Miss Eleanor Janney, Miss Lucy Harrison, Miss Kean Hughes, Miss Virginia Thatcher, Miss Barbara Lawrence, Miss Frances Campbell, Miss Marjorie Street, and Miss Helen Johnson will sell cigars.

About 200 of Miss Jean Wilhelm's friends will dine and dance tonight at the Casino as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Codrhy Jr., at a party they are giving for their debutante niece, Mrs. Cudahy and Miss Wilhelm will be the only two in the receiving line at what is sure to be one of the gayest parties of the season for the debutante crowd.

Teams Announced for Hunter Trials.

Mrs. Howard Linn, Laurence H. Armour and Donald D. Douglas will compose one team that will compete in the hunter trials to be held tomorrow at the Onwentsia Hunt club in Millburn. The junior Joseph T. Bowers and James Simpson Jr. will make up another team; Mr. and Mrs. John E. Hughes and Daggett Harvey another; Mrs. Merrill Hubbard, Thomas Leiter and Roger Hyatt will team up; the J. Andrews Kings and Mr. Douglas will ride together; Mr. Simpson Jr. also will ride with Mrs. Seymour White and Miss Eleanor Wheeler; Mrs. Edward H. Bennett, Noble B. Judah and Thomas Furness will make up a team; Mr. Armour, Mr. Simpson Jr. and Austin H. Niblack will ride together; and Mrs. William R. O'Quinn, Miss Elizabeth Chase, and J. H. Allen will team up. Among the other riders will be Prince Michael Cantacuzene, John P. Kellogg, David Pope, Charles N. Steele, Mrs. Benjamin Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Prentice Porter, Miss Betty Mead, Mrs. William H. Mitchell, and Mrs. Donald M. Ryerson.

The trials are to start at 11 o'clock and a barbecue luncheon is to be served at noon, after which the trials will be continued. Parking space may be obtained at the gate.

Marjorie Street's Debut Party Tomorrow.

Miss Jeanne Street and her sister, Miss Katharine Street, are presenting their younger sister, Miss Marjorie Street, to society at a reception and tea between 4 and 7 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the apartment their mother, Mrs. Harry L. Street, has taken for the winter at 1245 Astor street. Only the friends of the three sisters have been invited to the party. Assisting Miss Marjorie will be nine of her best friends, among them several of her sister debutantes of this season. The group includes Miss Helen Fulton, Miss Lucy Trumbull, Miss Lucy Jane Hedberg, Miss Eleanor Janney, Miss Virginia Ashcraft, Miss Kean Hughes, Miss Gretchen O'Quinn, Miss Jeanette Schreiner, and Miss Barbara Lawrence.

Mrs. Horace E. Newcomet and her daughter, Miss Marion Newcomet,

Another Mae West

Miss Virginia Thatcher, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. William Thatcher, will be a very youthful and not very curving Mae West at the North Avenue Day Nursery benefit supper dance tonight at the Drake. She and several other debutantes are to sell cigars.

Dinner Ensemble? Here's Recipe

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Fashion recipe for a dinner ensemble.

First, a sleek black dress, severe and clinging as to ahouette. . . . top it with one of the new house coats or jackets of sequins, gold or silver cloth or metal brocade, tucked into the high neckline a chiffon ascot scarf . . . on your head, one of the new cocktail hats that are nothing more or less than mere scraps of net, lace, sequins, or brocade, completed with a fluttering wisp of veiling.

The house coats or jackets are breath taking. Quite the swankiest things that have arrived in a decade. Short, snappy affairs reach the waistline, with butterfly sleeves covering the arms to the elbow. Others can be made of the new glittering stuff by the yard . . . you can sew or make one in a day if you are possessed of nimble and knowing fingers.

Lengths of incredibly easy to manage gold and silver cloths, are available. One collection boasts some gold and silver metal prints that is just as fascinating as it sounds, some molten gold cloth and some silver that looks like the moonpath on the water on a dark summer night . . . any would make some spectacular short or long jacket that will practically shine on forever.

The new chiffon ascot scarfs are knockouts. They are a yard wide, nearly two yards long, and the color combines are marvelous of contrast. For instance, a pale green is used with apricot yellow and tangerine pink, or cocoa brown with jade green and vermillion, or deep blue with lemon and orange. They are huge, but you tie them casually in a loose double knot and tuck them under the silver or golden lapels of your house coat and the result is flattering, unusual, and very much the swankiest swathed neckline of the season.

Good Morning!

"All the companies are making spy pictures," said the publicity man complacently at the preview, "but we got ours out first."

"Yes, 'After Tonight' is a spy drama."

The action occurs during the world war and Constance Bennett mat-harris as a member of the Russian secret service whose fate it is to fall in love—and into the power of an Austrian intelligence department officer (Mr. Roland).

Her activities proceed with many romantic interludes and considerable suspense for the observer, who has loved her from the start, and hates to think of what a firing squad is apt to do to her. But the scenario writer is only foolish. There comes a blatantly happy ending dialogue of which we are promptly jumped on by the censor board. [That passed Mae West.]

The heroine meets her hero in a railroad station leading her little niece by the hand.

"Young" says the hero.

"I wish I were a mine—and you're" replies the heroine. Whereat the censors blushed mightily and reached for the shears. . . .

Miss Bennett does a beautiful job as the fair operative. Never, never have I seen her look so lovely! She sings [herself] and dances gracefully—with a fan, albeit she is fully clothed. No show is complete without a fan dance of sorts these days, it seems.

Mr. Roland is far less glib than he is to be. In one or two of the love scenes is really charming. Other roles are well enough handled.

"After Tonight" hasn't much in the way of story originality to offer, but it stacks up as a reasonably interesting and suspenseful program.

Good Ship Sunbeam to Sail Tonight on Terpsichorean Cruise

"To Rome or Greece or gay Venice . . . to Cairo's streets entrancing . . . the Sunbeam tonight will you intrigue with a voyage replete with dancing." The gangplank is out and the good ship S. S. Sunbeam . . . completely filling the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel . . . is ready to set sail tonight with one of the largest groups of merry-makers any ship has ever taken aboard.

The party, one of two annual affairs given by the Sunbeam league, has been styled a Mediterranean cruise with dancing on shipboard. The music and entertainment will be the best ever and the sick and crippled children dependent on the Sunbeam league will receive the benefits.

Some of those who will have large parties of friends with them aboard the boat are Mrs. Otto L. Mast, the general chairman; Mr. and Mrs. John R. Dewson, Dr. and Mrs. James R. Wolfenden, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Stevens, Mrs. D. Mark Cunningham, Mrs. Allan M. Clement, Mrs. Vail R. Bucklin, Mrs. Charles H. Worcester, Mrs. Joseph Schreiner, and Mrs. Lennox Haldemann.

MRS. LOUIS E. YAGER tells it on herself. She was introduced by Charles Cadman, the American composer, to the audience at an Illinois—house program, and after the introduction three Indian singers were to sing his "Land of the Sky Blue Water." Mrs. Yager told her audience that when Mr. Cadman left Pittsburgh he went to live on a plantation among the Indians. At this point Silver-tonque, one of the singers, became annoyed and reticent. He had to be urged to sing, and the trouble, it was finally ascertained, was that Mrs. Yager had said "plantation" instead of "reservation." He thought Mrs. Yager was confused as to his race.

A CHARMING, dark-eyed young Chicago matron was taken in hand by a jokester friend who spoke Swedish and taught some Swedish expressions before she and her husband visited that country recently. The friend said that when they got outside of the large cities, they would have difficulty in finding people who spoke English, so it would be helpful at least to be able to say, "Give us a room and bath."

The young matron faithfully practiced the Swedish words taught her and was pleased, when they arrived at a little inn off the beaten track, that she remembered them. The room clerk looked astounded when she addressed him in Swedish, however, then grinned, and asked her in English if she knew what she had said.

"I asked for a room and bath," she answered.

"Madam, you asked, 'Don't you think I have beautiful big brown eyes?'" the clerk explained.

Mrs. J. Ogden Armour Buys Dr. A. D. Bevan's Estate in Lake Forest

Mrs. J. Ogden Armour yesterday bought a twelve acre site in Lake Forest on which she says she'll build "a comfortable home for my old age where there'll be plenty of flowers, lots of comfortable chairs and plenty of room for my grandchildren."

She purchased the property of Dr. Arthur Dean Bevan, famous surgeon, at 255 North Green Bay road, directly opposite the Onwentsia Country club and just across the road and a little south of the Edward F. Swift estate.

She intends to wreck the old Bevan residence and erect her third home in the Lake Forest area.

"I'm going to build a comfortable English house of brick or stone," said Mrs. Armour. "It's going to be very comfortable throughout, with just the things I want in it and around it. It'll not be a big house, planned for a lot of entertaining, but'll have plenty of room for my grandchildren and for me when, perhaps, I use a wheeled chair."

The property just bought is on the east side of Green Bay road and extends through to Western avenue. The price was not disclosed. John Griffith, Inc., of Lake Forest was broker. Mrs. Armour said that David Adler would be architect of her new home and that work probably would start in the spring.

THIRD AND LAST

By NORVAL RICHARDSON

SYNOPSIS.

Shelia, known as "Bun" O'Reilly, an American, makes a comfortable living abroad by helping fellow countrymen out of difficulties. Fred Crawford, a Paris newspaper man, is her friend and confidant. Bun agrees to help James B. Finlay, an elderly, wealthy American, and his young wife, Helene. He wants no publicity. He had met Helene after the war at Biarritz. He had installed her family, the Belandres, in a villa on the Riviera at Grasse. Her brother, Ferns, he had brought to America. No trace can be found of Helene and her parents since the last time she returned to visit them. Bun's suspicions are aroused by Finlay's niece, Mrs. Graymer. A recent newspaper picture showing Helene standing with a tall woman in a group at Biarritz is the only one Bun has seen. That same night Finlay is murdered. Bun's apartment is broken into, her maid, Liberté, bound, and the money Finlay had given her as an advance payment stolen. Finlay's son, Robert, arrives from America. His uniqueness to his father and his desire for secrecy puzzles Bun. In Biarritz the photographer who took the group picture identifies the tall woman as the Countess Vernadon, who has a villa at Grasse. Bun motors to Cannes. There she meets the real Robert Finlay. The other was an impostor. Bun is attracted to him, but believes he is in love with Helene. He wants her to continue the quest with him. Mrs. Graymer appears at the hotel. That night Bun and Robert call on Countess Vernadon at her dreary villa. She denies knowing Helene. As they are leaving they see a woman fall from a window. Back at the hotel Bun sees Mrs. Graymer drop a note surreptitiously to Robert. Next day Mrs. Graymer is found dead. Fred Crawford arrives at Cannes. Liberté had been watching Mrs. Graymer's room and is now held by the police.

INSTALLMENT XXX.

TRAIL.

Bun finally settled down and told Crawford of her meeting with Finlay, their two trips to Grasse, and all the details connected with their visits. Then she went on to recount the incidents connected with Mrs. Graymer's death.

After the director had met her in the hall and told her what had happened she rushed up to her room. Liberté was there—still in ignorance of what had happened. When told her first reaction was one of satisfaction; it was the logical end of all such vile creatures. Her next suggestion was that Bun should put in a claim for the two hundred thousand francs which would surely be found on her—at least half of it. Her incredible plans had been interrupted by the arrival of Finlay, who came in looking as if he had been struck on the head. He said there was no doubt that Mrs. Graymer had been murdered, and in some details exactly as his father had been.

She had been shot through the head and was found lying near the window. The doctors said she must have been dead at least two hours, which would show the crime had taken place about half past three while she and Finlay were at Grasse. A preliminary examination by the local police had shown the possibility of her room being entered from the balcony. This would mean that the murderer had got into an adjoining room and climbed across balconies until he had reached hers. Or from the balcony below.

Bun stopped at this point and stared at Crawford. "That is where the waiter would like to incriminate Liberté."

Crawford burst into laughter. "Can you see Liberté playing the part of human fly and doing a trapeze act on the outside of the hotel?"

"I can see her doing anything the moment I demand it. I haven't seen him since, except for a moment last night. He came here and suggested that I go back to Paris at once."

"Good advice. Why didn't you accept?"

"And leave him here alone in this revolting situation! Besides, I'm still on the case. He wants me to see the Stréts men with him when he tells them of our visits to Grasse."

Crawford began his customary gesture of rumpling his hair. Then he looked about the room. "Where do you write?"

"I don't. But there's paper and ink if you're looking for it."

He chose a piece of paper, a book for pad, and sat down again with pencil poised.

"Now—let's go into this thing from the very beginning. Just think aloud. I'll ask questions if I think they're necessary. It looks very much as if it's up to me to run this case down. You've got lots of strings, but you don't know how to tie them together. I've wangled it out of my Stréts friend that they're on the track of the first Robert Finlay. If they're right—and they're pretty likely to be—he's not French, and he hasn't been in France very long. They've traced some one they think is he as arriving from America about a month ago. Something to do with a passport. Anyway, they're on his trail—thanks to you."

"How me?"

"Well, I thought it best to tell them on the quiet about your visit to him at the hotel. It may come out in the end. Better to have them prepared for it. I didn't know they would use it as the main clue. You see, he left the hotel the day before the real Robert Finlay arrived."

Bun clasped her hands quickly. "You do think this last one is the real one, Fred?"

He stopped and looked at her severely. "Don't you?"

"Yes. But do you—do they?"

"His papers were in order. He's known at the embassy. There's nothing to worry about there."

"That's all you know about it. He is the explanation of everything."

"What are you driving at now?"

Bun looked down. It was an effort to say it, but she drove herself on deliberately. "He's in love with his step-mother."

Crawford stared and then whistled. "Does he admit it?"

"Of course not. Men don't admit things like that; they don't have to."

"Or imagine it."

"And he doesn't really want to find out anything about her; at least he doesn't want to. He's made a sort of shrine which he wants to keep her in and it's just breaking his heart to be forced by loyalty to his father to do anything that will show her up as being, well, something he doesn't want her to be."

"Not hit upon them—just intuitively sensed them."

Crawford's face cleared. "If that's all you've done I shan't be so worried. Only please don't stuff my brain full of what you intuitively sense. I want facts. You've got enough of them to stick to. Now, where was I? O, yes. When the first Robert Finlay cleared out from the hotel he said he was going to the country to be quiet for a few days—some friends in Senlis—"

"That's where Mrs. Graymer went?"

"I know that. Don't rush me. At any rate he said he was going there and left that as his forwarding address. When the second Finlay arrived and the matter was put into the hands of the Stréts, those friends at Senlis were the first people they looked up. They were Mrs. Graymer's friends and she had spent the night with them when Father Finlay was killed, but they themselves did not know either Finlay, father or son. This brought the Stréts back to finding out where he had gone from the hotel. It doesn't seem to be any trick at all for them to dig out of the thousands of taxis in Paris just the one they're looking for. By the end of the day they had the one that had taken Finlay the first away from the hotel and deposited him—and his baggage—well, where do you suppose?"

"At the entrance of your apartment house."

Crawford held up a hand. "Don't jump at conclusions. After he'd paid the taxi driver and got his things into the hall he asked the concierge which floor his friends lived on and gave a name that belonged to no one in the building. Apparently very much troubled over the mistake in address, he called another taxi and drove away. This meant finding the second taxi. Easy again. This one carried him to the Quai d'Orsay station. And from there you'd think he'd vanished; wouldn't you? That's where you come in again and meet me. I gave them the Biarritz tip. You were right. He was there. But it wasn't Mrs. Graymer with him. That was just a case of your intuitive sense working backwards. It has been proved that she was in Paris."

"Then who was the woman?"

"We don't know yet—for certain. We think it was the woman whose photograph you were running down."

"Maybe. At any rate, Biarritz proved a lost scent. Finlay the first disappeared from them without leaving any tracks until you came on the scene again."

"Where this time?"

"Here. Fred."

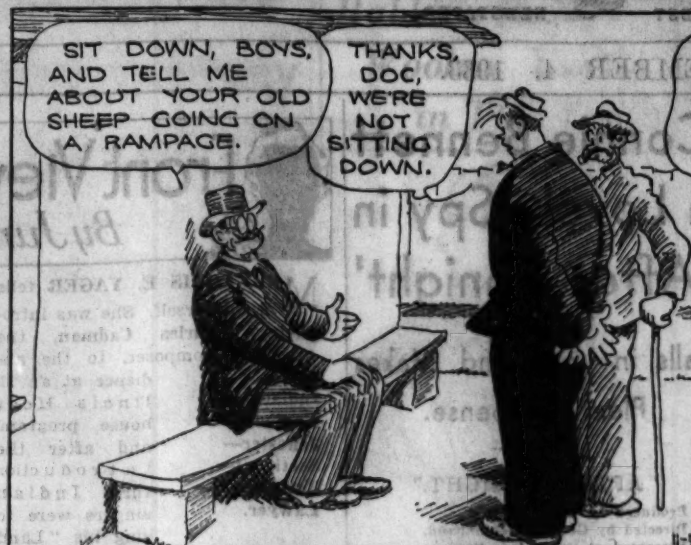

Crawford tried to be patient. "Didn't you say yourself he was trailing you?"

"I thought so—yes."

"Then wouldn't he have followed you here? You're the key to the whole situation as far as he's concerned. Where you go—he goes, on the quiet. I'll bet he knows all about you. I gave them the Biarritz tip. Who knows but what he opened the door to let you in there!"

"And the Countess Vernadon?"

Crawford nodded. "Of course. But more important still—the woman who jumped out of the window."

Columbus, O., Nov. 3.—Followers of Ohio State's scarlet-clad football troops are so enraptured at the recent antics of Coach Sam Willaman that 25,000 of them have decided to drape themselves around the big horseshoe bowl on the campus tomorrow afternoon to see the Buckeyes battle Indiana.

Secret practice sessions. Mysterious lineups. Stories of phantom-like Ohio back field combinations. These have aroused such a curiosity and a thirst for knowledge about the Buckeyes that the boys in the counting room will be busy much later than they had anticipated on the night of the Indiana game.

Arrive Too Late for Practice. Michigan snapped the championship hopes of the Buckeyes two weeks ago. And when the Hoosiers arrived here early tonight—too late to engage in a practice session—it was really hard to tell whether they were coming or going.

The figures on yardage gained by Indiana against Minnesota, Notre Dame and Northwestern this year look surprisingly like the gains of Alice in Wonderland and the red queen when they decided to go some place, but made a hasty journey to nowhere by joggling three steps forward, then four steps back.

Tonight Coach Willaman is fretting about his Buckeyes being outwitted by the Hoosiers. "From tackle to tackle the Indiana boys average 106 pounds to the man," says Willaman. "The average of our Buckeye boys from tackle to tackle is only 195 pounds."

Governors to Attend. The game will be staged amid all the pomp and splendor of a championship struggle. The governors of Ohio and Indiana will be among the spectators. Gov. and Mrs. Paul V. McNutt of Indiana will occupy a box on the east side of the stadium, while Gov. White of Ohio and his daughter, Miss Mary Louise White, will be seated on the west side.

The return of Carl Cramer to the Ohio State back field has cheered the Buckeye rooters. They expect to see him do a lot of running, over, past, and between Indiana men during the afternoon.

Veller Ready for Action. The Hoosiers were just as cheerful about Don Veller's return to their own back field and are quite confident he will do much more running than Cramer will. Veller was muscled up a bit when the Indiana eleven tied Minnesota—muscled up so badly, in fact, that he wasn't able to play against Notre Dame or Northwestern—but he will be at his best against Ohio, so the stories go.

Some of the Ohio rooters seem to think that John Kabealo can punt the Buckeyes to victory over the Hoosiers. Quite a few came to the conclusion after he averaged 41 yards on 18 attempts against Northwestern that he is the greatest kicker ever developed here.

This theory was blasted a few hours later by a statistician who dug up the figures to show that Chick Harley from Chicago, who put Ohio State on the football map and who had a lot to do with providing the Buckeyes with their big stadium, averaged pretty close to 45 yards during his senior year here.

IOWA FACES STATE RIVAL

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 2.—[Special.]—Western conference championships may be won or lost tomorrow, but to a good many thousand football fans in the state of Iowa the only important question to be settled is the gridiron supremacy of the University of Iowa and Iowa State college.

The two teams will meet after a 13 year lapse in football relations in a game which will have all of what it takes to make a good neighborhood scrap in addition to a tradition of rivalry which dates back nearly 40 years.

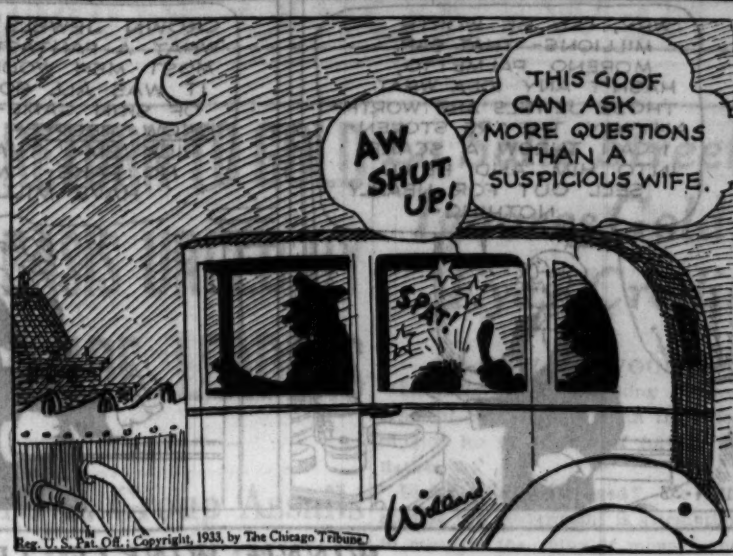

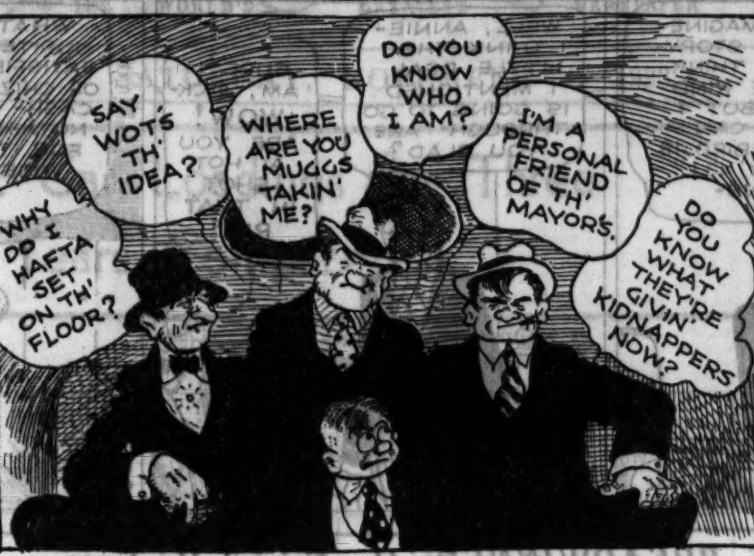

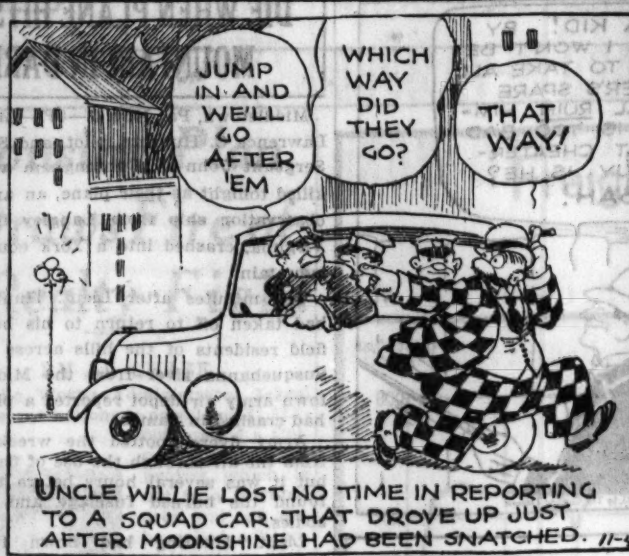

Fisticuffs Mark Encounters. The series between the two state institutions started in 1894, but was discontinued in 1920 when officials of the schools believed that rivalry was getting out of hand. Fisticuffs on the playing field and in the stands marked the last few encounters.

During the 13 years since the teams last met most of the personal bitterness between the student bodies has died out, but all the natural rivalry between the two state schools is still present. It is certain that whichever team loses the game will not deem its 1933 football season a success.

If the game measures up to the traditional standards, records will not be an important factor. On paper, however, the Hawkeyes appear to have the edge. The State university team will have a weight advantage and has met stiffer competition than the Cyclones. Probable lineup:

MOON MULLINS—MOON STRUCK

Senn Battles Lane Today at Soldiers' Field

A couple of homecoming games, wherein two teams will be making their last determined bids for sectional championships in the Chicago Public High School league, head today's schedule of prep games in the Chicago district. The contests will bring together Senn and Lane Tech at Soldiers' Field and Harrison Tech and Austin at Mills stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue.

Victories by Senn and Harrison Tech will assure them of at least ties for sectional titles. Senn has won two of its three north section contests, while Harrison Tech is undefeated and will be seeking its third consecutive triumph. Their rivals in the sections have suffered one or more defeats. It will be Senn's last sectional game.

Morgan Park Battles Fenger. Interest also centers on the Morgan Park-Fenger game which will be played at Shewbridge field and the Bowen-Lindblom contest scheduled at White City stadium. Morgan Park, defending champion, will be playing its last south section game. A victory will give it at least a tie for the title.

Lindblom, on top in the central section standings since the defeat of Englewood, will be after its third straight victory. Lindblom has been unscathed on league competition thus far.

St. Ignatius, tied with St. Mel and Fenwick in the west division of the Chicago Catholic High School league, will oppose St. Michael at St. Philip field. Van Buren and Albany streets. St. Ignatius will attempt to score its fourth consecutive triumph. In an other league game Loyola and St. George will clash on the latter's field in Evanston.

St. John's Meets Morton. St. John's Military academy of Delafield, Wis., will appear at the Oak Park stadium, meeting Morton High school of Cicero. St. John's is undefeated thus far this season, winning four consecutive games. The colorful St. John's band will perform between halves.

LAKE FOREST (66). SULLIVAN (0).

LEGION MATES TO RECEIVE BODY OF FRANK SMITH

Members of the Middle post of the American Legion this morning will meet the train bearing the body of Frank M. Smith, sportsman, war veteran and former newspaper man, and drupe an American flag over the casket. Mr. Smith died in Toronto Thursday night at a wrestling show in which Jim Browning, who he managed, appeared.

The body will arrive at 8:10 o'clock over the Canadian National railway at Dearborn street station. It is accompanied by Browning, whom Smith piloted to a position as claimant of the world's heavyweight wrestling championship.

Smith, a former sports editor of THE TRIBUNE, retired from newspaper work several years ago to go east and enter the promotion of wrestling. He distinguished himself in the world war, from which he emerged with the rank of first lieutenant.

Arrangements for the funeral had not been completed yesterday.

Purple Faces Minnesota in Test Today

Gophers have had a man in this position under 200. Starting with Carl Lidberg in 1922, Minnesota has had a full back dynasty that brought out such immortals as Herb Joesting, Bronko Nagurski, and Jack Manera. The last two are now teammates on the Chicago Bears professional team.

Tackles Are Big.

The heaviest linemen are the tackles, Dick Smith and George Svendsen. Smith, who prepated at Rockford High school, weighs 220 and Svendsen 200. There will be an old timer at end well remembered at Northwestern. His name is Bob Tenner and he is the young man who caught Lund's forward pass to defeat the Wildcats last year.

Northwestern's chief reliance is in its line. It has been outwitted against every opponent, but since the Iowa game it has more than held its own. Coach Hanley calls it the best little line in the conference. Statistics help to bear him out. Indiana, for instance, showed a net loss of one yard for its afternoon's work from scrimmage. Manske and Jens have proved as competent a pair of ends as the Big Ten has showed this fall. Kawaal, 176 pound guard, is said to be the line's spark plug.

The Purple backs thus far have displayed no particular skill. Augustson, who has convinced Hanley he can hang on to punts, has drawn the safety assignment. Sullivan will start at left half instead of Leeper. Cruise will be at right half and Duval at full. Duval hurt his ankle Thursday night, but it is expected he will be able to play.

WESLEYAN BEATS ST. AMBROSE ON PASSES, 20 TO 0

Mount Pleasant, Ia., Nov. 3.—[Special.]—Iowa Wesleyan wrecked St. Ambrose's hopes of an Iowa conference football title today. The score was 20 to 0.

Wesleyan scored once in the first quarter and twice in the fourth, although the Saints led in first downs, 12 to 8. In the opening period an intercepted pass by Hilton deep in St. Ambrose territory started a Tiger drive, Patterson going over. The two touchdowns in the final quarter were the result of passes, Zillmer and Hilton scoring. Mick kicked the two extra points.

It's Big Chance for Wisconsin, Chicago Today

have won handily in the four matches since.

Individual heroes have marked the rivalry. Back in 1899 the teams met in a post-season game to settle the championship of the west, and the Maroons, pitting Walter Kennedy and Clarence Herschberger against the great kicking Pat O'Dea, emerged with the title. The late Walter Eckersall was a particular nemesis to Wisconsin, accounting almost single handed for Chicago victories in 1903, 1904 and 1905. In 1913 and 1920 Allan Davey of Wisconsin stole the show, scoring the winning points in the last few minutes of both games.

The series culminates today, since the teams are not scheduled for 1934 and no plans for a meeting in 1935 have been made.

Chicago Backs Fester.

Ball carrying heroes in today's game are likely to be either the two captains, Pete Zimmer and Hal Smith, or two 190 pound sophomores, Jay Berwanger of Chicago and Karl Schueleke of Wisconsin. Schueleke tipped the Purdue line for an average gain of 5 yards last week. Zimmer averaged 4 yards against Michigan this year, and last year raced through the entire Wisconsin team but fell in the clear exhausted after a 40 yard gain.

Chicago appears to have a faster back field, suited for end sweeps and off-tackle plays, while Wisconsin apparently has a more rugged line, plus a pair of line smashers who will aim for the center of the unsteady Maroon forwards. The Badgers have superior reserves and an edge in kicking, while the passing is about equal.

Against Purdue, Wisconsin made a better stand than Chicago. The Badgers made more yardage and more first downs than the Maroons did, and marched once to the Bollersmaker 40 yard line, whereas Chicago was never closer than 35 yards from a touchdown. Maroon followers claim their team is now ready to kick, but the Madison adherents are saying the same thing, so that breathings of victory are emanating from both sides.

Black Horse Troop Polo Tourney Starts Tonight

The Black Horse troop indoor polo tournament will open tonight at the Chicago Riding club. Two games will be played. The 122d Field artillery squad will meet the Black Horse troop in the first game and the All Stars will oppose the Chicago Riding club.

'Illini Fight' Carries Hopes of Team Today

varied for many seasons. But if Illinois scores, band and students will lose a spontaneous confusion of sound. Michigan, as you know, has not been beaten or tied in 14 games and it has been scored upon only three times since its last defeat.

Illinois went through its final drills this afternoon as calmly as if it were the pre-game favorite. Tonight, the boys are about off from the excitement of the revelry on the campus and are safely quartered at the Champaign Country club.

Changes Are Unlikely.

The announced changes in the Illini lineup, which place the sophomore tackles, Antilla and Galtbreath, in the line instead of Gragg and Cummings, may not materialize. It is suspected that Zupke wishes to play upon his veterans' feelings, for their weight may be needed to halt Michigan's rushing attack. In any event, all four certainly will have a chance to test the charges of Reggeal, Heston, and Everhardus.

Les Lindberg, the most phlegmatic player in the Illinois back field, probably will start, for his kicking this week has been the best of any man on the squad. Lindberg can, unless badly grazed, hold his own with Reggeal, the Michigan ace. If he does the battle will be half won.

Whether Illinois scores may depend on Jack Beynon, who not only directs the Illini attack but also throws the passes. "To beat Michigan," they added, "score first and Michigan's waiting game must change to meet the situation."

Zupke Loses If He Wins.

"Get the first touchdown," was the last word of the assistant coaches. "To beat Michigan," they added, "score first and Michigan's waiting game must change to meet the situation."

If Illinois wins the victory will cost Zupke $100. No money will be paid more cheerfully. At the windup of last night's fish fry Zupke volunteered to be host to the gang next Wednesday. "I'll even give the party if Illinois ties Michigan," Zupke added. "But if we lose it's a Dutch treat, not a Dutchman's."

DE PAUL SEEKS SIXTH VICTORY AT HOMECOMING

A crowd of 20,000 homecomers is expected to watch De Paul university's undefeated football team seek its sixth victory today in a game with South Dakota university at Wrigley field.

Since De Paul will be at a weight disadvantage, the north siders are prepared to launch a surprise aerial attack. Thus Bill Hayes is scheduled to start at left half back in place of Eddie O'Brien. Hayes is a talented passer and kicker. Capt. Marty Stadler, right half back; Johnny Cella, quarter back, and Jim Condon complete the De Paul backfield.

The De Paul squad is in excellent physical condition with the exception of Fred Brainard, who suffered a cracked rib after scoring a touchdowns against Western State last week. Andy Delaney was nominated to play Brainard's end position, with Kraus at the other flank.

The line will consist of Barsick and Clancy, tackles; Schuster and Sexton, guards, and Gonsky, center. South Dakota's principal threats include O'Connor, a highly touted kicker, and Freiburg, a fleet back. The Dakotans arrived yesterday and expect to tackle a tough defense, as De Paul has yielded only one touchdown this season.

Probable lineup:

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Washington, D. C., Nov. 3.—Freight carloadings in the week ended Oct. 28 declined by 13,808 cars from the preceding week to strike a total of 636,574 cars, the American Railway Association announced today.

Despite the seasonal decrease from the week before, the association said, the week's total loadings represented an increase of 19,390 above the same week of last year. It was, however, 103,589 cars under the corresponding week of 1931.

A slowing down in the movement of miscellaneous freight and ore accounted for most of the recession from the preceding week, but the drop was substantially less than occurred at this time last year. The week-to-week drop of nearly 14,000 cars in the week ended Oct. 28, compared with a decrease of about 35,000 cars in the corresponding period of last year.

Comparison More Favorable.

Because of the larger decline experienced in the like 1932 period, the comparison with last year was more favorable than recorded for the week of Oct. 21. Total loadings for the last week were 2.1 per cent less than in the seven day period ended Oct. 21, but were 3.1 per cent above the 1932 level. In the previous week loadings were only 1.3 per cent above those of the corresponding 1932 period.

Miscellaneous freight loading for the week of Oct. 28 totaled 233,539 cars, a decrease of 5,964 cars below the preceding week, but 7,356 cars above the corresponding week in 1932. It was, however, a decrease of 22,554 cars under the corresponding week in 1931.

Loading of merchandise less than carload lot freight totaled 171,422 cars, a decrease of 1,668 cars below the preceding week, 5,736 cars above the corresponding week last year, and 42,917 cars below the same week two years ago.

Grain and grain products loading for the week totaled 20,018 cars, an increase of 1,522 cars above the preceding week, but 1,844 cars below the corresponding week last year, and 11,457 cars below the same week in 1931.

In the western districts alone grain and grain products loading for the week ended Oct. 28 totaled 19,214 cars, a decrease of 1,344 cars below the same week last year.

Coal loading amounted to 130,438 cars, an increase of 2,121 cars above the preceding week, and 1,337 cars above the corresponding week in 1932, but 10,830 cars below the same week in 1931.

Coke loadings amounted to 6,339 cars, a decrease of 114 cars under the preceding week, but 1,780 cars above the same week last year, and 1,053 cars above the same week two years ago.

Live stock loading amounted to 22,130 cars, a decrease of 1,561 cars below the preceding week, 1,485 cars below the same week last year, and 6,800 cars below the same week two years ago.

BRITISH SHIPS
RIVALS UNITE TO RUN SUPERLINER

LONDON, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The great British liner "534," now a steel skeleton on the Clydebank docks, will play the Atlantic under the joint control of the historic British rivals, the Cunard and White Star lines, according to a working agreement expected to be announced when parliament reassembles next week.

The "534," a giant steel framework, is the embryo of what its sponsors have said will be a superliner—costing something like $25,000,000—of 72,000 tons, the largest and fastest afloat.

Work on it was suspended more than a year ago because of financial prospects. About $9,000,000 has already been spent on the liner, and at least $12,000,000 more will be required. A government loan has been suggested, but authorities insist that the two ship lines agree to cooperate before aid is given.

Shipping circles heard a report that Cunard and White Star will amalgamate by means of a new operating company, but it was learned that an "agreement" is under consideration rather than a full merger.

Treasury Bills Are Sold

at Average Rate of 0.24%

Washington, D. C., Nov. 3.—Acting Secretary of the Treasury Acheson announced today that the Nov. 1 offer of 91 day treasury bills was largely oversubscribed. Applications totaled $181,015,000, of which $75,095,000 was accepted. The average rate bid for the issue was about 0.24 per cent. Except for one bid of $25,000 at 0.375, the accepted bids ranged in price from 0.145, equivalent to a rate of about 0.30 per cent, to 0.037, equivalent to about 0.35 per cent.

Housing Plan
Draws Fire of

BY AL CHASE.

Public Works Administrator Ickes' two recent actions in promising $1,333,000 toward a Chicago housing project which is not in a blighted area and can not be called a "slum reclamation project," and his later announcement that Uncle Sam will enter the housing field in a big way, stirred local realty and mortgage men yesterday.

Criticism was heard from both property owners and real estate brokers who declared that it was not logical to start the housing ball rolling with a loan to help build a new apartment building with rents considerably above the pocketbooks of residents of the neighborhood.

Milo B. French, secretary of the First Englewood Bond and Mortgage Corporation, did more than grumble, however. He sent a letter to Mr. Ickes in which he said that whoever figures the contemplated Chicago housing project is going to pay dividends "must have had a shot in the arm."

Denies Chance of Profit.

"In the Chicago daily newspapers this week appeared an article stating Chicago Gets $1,333,000 for Housing Plan," and that it is the intention of the Harms Park Housing Corporation to erect 420 apartments of 3, 4, and 5 rooms with an average monthly rental of $9.50 a room," Mr. French wrote.

This article further states that the dividends of this corporation are limited to 4 1/2 per cent and that all earnings over that figure must be used to reduce rentals.

"This property when completed will absorb $1,333,000," Mr. French wrote. "It is impossible to rent buildings already built for $9.50 a room and pay operating expenses and the outrageous unjust high taxes and then figure on having any earnings. So how can you expect to build a new apartment building and make it pay?"

Says Facts Are Available.

"For your information, I believe that banks, insurance companies, reorganization committees, trustees, and reputable realtors can give you plenty of facts and figures showing there is hardly an apartment property in Chicago today earning enough to pay operating expenses and taxes."

"We have got enough apartments in Chicago now and we do not need any more until our present vacancies are absorbed," Mr. French wrote. "The situation adjusted so that once more insurance companies, banks, and private individuals can feel safe in making a first mortgage on Chicago real estate."

It is my thought that if the government instead of going into the real estate business, should loan on properties for the purpose of modernizing them and paying the taxes, we would all be better off and the loans would be self-liquidating and would pay themselves off long before thirty years."

Meanwhile George W. Blomgreen, a realtor, started suit against the owners of the property at the northeast corner of Western and Berteau avenues, where the Harms Park Housing Corporation contemplates building the apartments Mr. French objects to.

He said he was given an exclusive option to sell the property and that later it was sold by another broker.

NORMAN H. DAVIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 3.—Norman H. Davis, representative of the United States in the international disarmament conference, will be invited to act as chairman of the group seeking a reorganization of the Kreuger & Toll, Swedish match and international capital properties if the conference is postponed indefinitely.

Mr. Davis will first be asked to represent American interests in the general reorganization contemplated, but, in view of his wide experience in dealing with representatives of every nation, he will be asked to be the impartial head of the reconstruction efforts of all the national groups involved.

Work has been in progress at Stockholm and elsewhere for weeks. The international plan is the concern of the international match industry intact, which would be impossible if the special interests of each class of security holders of each of the three former Kreuger companies were pressed independently.

National Life
Fate Will Be Known Soon

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The fate of 112,000 policyholders of the National Life Insurance Company of the U. S. A., which was placed in receivership on Oct. 17, will probably be known in the next few days.

Patrick J. Lucey, receiver, said yesterday that the audit and appraisal of the assets will be completed early next week.

Negotiations for reorganization or reinsurance of the company's $197,000,000 of insurance are being temporarily held up pending completion of the audit. Superior Court Judge William J. Lindsey has set Nov. 14 as the deadline for submission of reinsurance bids, with an extension of time possible if needed.

Capital, Reserves Impaired.
The company's capital and reserves are considerably impaired by the decline in the value of assets, particularly real estate and bank stocks.

Until a few months ago the two principal executives were paying themselves salaries of more than $80,000 a year each, but these were cut to $12,000 a year by Ernest Palmer, superintendent of insurance.

Terms of the reinsurance contract will depend on the findings of Receiver Lucey's audit. Supt. Palmer has indicated that a temporary loan on policies will be necessary, but he is confident that in the long run policyholders will not suffer loss.

Receiving New Premiums.

The company is still receiving new premiums at the rate of $15,000 to $20,000 daily, Receiver Lucey said. Under instructions from Supt. Palmer these new receipts are being segregated for the benefit of the paying policyholders. In the event of failure of the negotiations, these funds will be returned to the remitters in full.

FIRST NATIONAL
SELLING TO RFC

Directors of the First National bank met yesterday, but no announcement was made following the meeting concerning the reported plans for the sale of preferred stock to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The bank's stock was firm yesterday at 70 to 72, or 18 points above its low quotation last week. If the bank does sell stock to the RFC it is not likely to be as much as the $25,000,000 reported in La Salle street. Nor are other changes in the capital structure contemplated.

Rumors that the Northern Trust company would shortly offer additional stock to its present shareholders were said to be without foundation. Fred A. Casanovi, vice president, said that he knew of no such plans. The gross capital structure of the institution is now in excess of 15 millions, of which 3 millions is in capital, 6 millions in surplus, and the balance in reserves and undivided profits. Deposits are close to 130 millions.

TREASURY SELLS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Washington, D. C., Nov. 3.—Allocation of the Oct. 15 cash offering of 4 1/2 per cent treasury bonds of 1942-45 exceeded $500,000,000, it was revealed at the treasury today.

The treasury's statement of that date showed that $519,312,201 in the new bonds were issued Nov. 1, of which $20,841,550 were exchanges for Fourth Liberty 4 1/2s. Officials said that a considerable volume of the cash subscriptions would appear on subsequent treasury statements. It was expected that the allocation would be announced later.

OPERATING INCOMES
OF CLASS 1 RAILWAYS
SHOW BIG INCREASES

Net railway operating income of the 149 class 1 railroads of the country for the first nine months of 1933 totaled $849,973,377, a decided gain over the corresponding period of 1932, when the total was $397,332,444.

The return on the property investment for the 1933 period was 1.78 per cent, compared with a return of 1.03 per cent in the 1932 period. These figures were derived from reports of the railroads to the bureau of railway economics at Washington.

Gross operating revenues for the period totaled $2,238,093,370, compared with $2,237,623,354 in the first nine months of 1932, a decline of 1.7 per cent. Operating expenses for the first nine months of 1933 totaled $1,655,718,465, compared with $1,831,750,281 in 1932, a decline of 9.1 per cent.

In the first nine months of this year the class I roads paid $206,153,616 in taxes, compared with $216,944,448 for the same period of last year. For September alone the tax bill of the class I roads was $21,746,668.

At the end of the nine month period thirty-four class I roads failed to earn expenses and taxes. Of these eight were in the eastern district, seven in the southern, and nineteen in the west.

The roads reporting had a total net operating income of $60,936,370 for September, compared with $48,947,045 in September, 1932. Gross revenues stood at $292,147,176, compared with $269,632,670 in September, 1932.

DOLLAR HOLDS IN NARROW RANGE;
CLOSES HIGHER

New York, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The dollar fluctuated more narrowly in foreign exchange dealings today than it had in several days, and despite another substantial rise in the Washington gold price, actually ended the day a little higher in relation to gold currencies.

The French franc was up a trifle in terms of the dollar in the earlier trading, but at the finish was off 0.1 1/2 of a cent at 66 1/2 cents. The pound sterling got up a cent at one time, duplicating the September high of $4.85 1/2, but it closed at $4.84 1/2, off 1/4 of a cent.

Dutch guilders closed at $2.50, off .05 of a cent, and Swiss francs at 30 cents, off .10 of a cent. The Canadian dollar advanced to a new high for the year at 96.68 cents, but closed at 96.50, off .18 of a cent.

In terms of the French franc, the dollar closed at 64.59 cents, although up 21 cents, indicated a price of 64.46 cents.

TO PAY FOR GOLD
PUT ON MARKET

New York, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The first offering of Reconstruction Finance Corporation notes issued in payment for newly mined gold was being made today by the discount house of Salomon Brothers & Hutzler.

It consisted of $12,134,744 of notes due on Feb. 1, 1934, priced at a discount of three-eighths of 1 per cent. Gold sellers obtain the notes from the RFC at a discount of one-quarter of 1 per cent.

The notes are part of an authorized amount of $100,000,000 of bearer obligations of the RFC and fully and unconditionally guaranteed by the United States government. They are tax exempt except for surtaxes, estate inheritance and gift taxes.

Bendix Aviation Earns

26 Cents a Share in Quarter

Bendix Aviation corporation net profit for the quarter ended Sept. 30 was $546,980, equal to 26 cents a share, compared with net profit of $816,849 in the preceding quarter and net loss of $219,180 in the third quarter last year. For nine months net profit amounted to $1,086,367, equal to 52 cents a share, compared with net loss of $267,807 in the same period last year.

U. S. Standing
Buying Abroad

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 3.—(Special.)—America is out on her own in her foreign gold purchasing program with no protecting alliances to forestall a possible world wide currency depreciation war, high government officials admitted today.

Meanwhile, American gold buying abroad had forced the English pound sterling up to $4.85 1/2, close to its old gold standard par with the dollar in the world money markets today.

Government experts walked anxiously to see the English pound would attempt any retaliation in an effort to maintain the advantages which a depreciated currency has given her in world trade.

No Nations Protest.

The White House said that no protests had been received from any foreign nation on the government's gold action abroad. The statement was taken as a tacit admission that the bid for British cooperation made by federal reserve officials earlier in the week had come to naught.

This impression was borne out later when the reserve officials, required by law to know of any foreign alliance entered into by the reserve system, admitted that they know of no foreign agreements.

Domestically the gold purchasing arrangement seemed on the verge of at least partial success. For the second consecutive day commodity and security prices advanced as the gold value of the dollar was pushed down. Proponents of the new gold theory regarded this fact as especially significant because it is believed that the New York Federal Reserve bank, acting for the government, has only been buying foreign gold for the past two days.

Will Make No Reports.

Secrecy and official ignorance continued to cloak the dealings of the New York Reserve bank, now sole arbitrator of the dollar's gold value on foreign exchanges. Officials of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, whose agent the New York bank is, again today insisted that they knew nothing of the transaction.

The White House announced that facts on the gold dealings, which may involve millions of dollars, will never be made public.

Doubt Buying in England.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—(AP)—With $200,000 of gold in the market reportedly taken by the usual continental sources at 132 shillings and 1 penny an ounce (equivalent to $32.11), the American gold policy remained as much of a mystery as ever today. Bullion brokers failed to observe any indication of America inquiring into this market.

Buy Gold in France.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Prof. on gold purchases for resale to the United States today, bankers said, as the exchange remained indifferent to American plans. It was learned that ten million francs of gold had been purchased by an American account, but the Bank of France called the transaction unimportant.

Retail Sales of Men's

Clothes Rise in Last Week

New York, Nov. 3.—Retail sales of men's clothing rose substantially in many sections of the country in the last week, says the New York Wool Top exchange service. Mill operations have slackened noticeably, as is usually the case at this time of year, and "plants that had been running on two shifts for months are now working on a one shift basis." In some instances, notably mills that make fancy materials, production is being maintained at 80 hours a week.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Investment interest was still attracted by the administration's currency policy today, with the result that United States government securities lost further ground before attracting support in the bond market.

At the close of the day, the price of government bonds was approximately 3 points below the high of the year.

Treasury issues of all maturities were included in the recession as traders and investors withdrew bids and left the price structure in a vulnerable condition. Trading in the federal list was the most active in some time.

The largest breaks occurred in Treasury 4 1/2% 40s and 5 1/2% 40s. Losses ranged from 3/32 to 2 1/2 points.

Other classes decline. Domestic corporation bonds and foreign loans moved irregularly lower.

In the latter group, French government and municipal loans finished 3/8 up to 2 1/2 points off, while United Kingdom issues and Swiss government 5 1/2% lost ground fractionally.

Dutch East Indies loans were unchanged to 3 points down. The German government issues showed fractional variations.

Utility bonds showed the best average strength in the domestic corporation group with many issues advancing a point or more.

The trend in railroad bonds was not clear as a number of issues were bid up a point or two while as many others were down the same amounts.

In the case of individual roads whose bonds were active, their obligations frequently failed to rise in unison.

Stock Rise Aids Some. The late lift in the stock market helped to bring gains of 1 to 2 points over a considerable part of the semi-speculative division, including some loans of the Baltimore and Ohio, Allegheny corporation, Erie, New York Central, International, and Western Union.

Transfers increased considerably, totaling about $14,000,000 compared with $11,100,000 on Thursday.

Texas City Terminal Railway.

Investors' Guide: I would appreciate any information in regard to Texas City Terminal Railway company bonds.

Answer: Texas City Terminal Railway company owns and operates facilities and a 6.3 mile road connecting Texas City with six railroads. It owns docks and wharves for ocean-going vessels, 31 miles of track for switching and terminal purposes, warehouses, grain elevator, etc. It is controlled jointly by Missouri-Kansas-Texas, New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Railway company, and the Atchafalaya, Topeka and Santa Fe.

Only 94 per cent of charges was earned in 1932. In 1931 charges were earned 1.23 times. For the six years through 1932 the average earnings ratios, not a very large margin of coverage.

Current assets at the close of 1932 totaled $255,000 and current liabilities were $255,000.

The $1,025,000 6s, due 1941, are secured by a first lien on all properties of the company. The income and maintenance commission placed a valuation of $4,501,000 on the property on June 30, 1931, and additions since then have totaled $849,000.

The bonds are speculative.

Ohio Copper.
Investors' Guide: What can you tell me of Ohio Copper?—N. S.

Answer: Ohio Copper company of Utah owns about 120 acres of mining ground in Utah. Major pumping operations were suspended in March, 1931, and all operations were suspended November, 1931, reflecting the results of the downward course of the price of copper. Development work also was suspended.

From 1927 through 1930 production cost per pound of copper fluctuated from a low of 10 1/2 cents a pound to a high of 14 cents a pound. Obviously profitable operations have not been possible with copper selling on a thin market at a price ranging from 8 to 9 1/2 cents a pound.

The company has not operated profitably for the last six years. Loss in 1932 (when operations were suspended) was $107,000, against loss of $141,000 in 1931, $118,000 in 1930, and $41,000 in 1929.

Current assets at the close of 1932, including cash of only $507, were $16,000, while current liabilities were $55,000. There were also outstanding $179,000 matured and unpaid first mortgage bonds. It was reported that the bonds are held by investors friendly to the company.

The $321,000 shares of $1 par stock are purely speculative.

COTTONSEED OIL.
NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil closed steady today at 23 1/2 cents per pound, with scattered covers and local buying promoted by the firms of stocks and grains, with very little help.

Sales were in 10 contracts. Bleachable cottonseed oil, December closed at 4 1/2 cents, January, 4 1/2 cents; March, 4 1/2 cents; May, 4 1/2 cents.

Senate Quiz Leader Asks
Deals Be Announced.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 3.—(AP)—

Chairman Fletcher of the senate stock market investigation committee said today he was studying means to prevent disclosure of corporate stock transactions to the disadvantage of the public and the public.

In disclosing his move the Florida senator said he was not in a position to make a statement until he had received the report of the committee on the disclosure of stock transactions to the disadvantage of the public.

Fletcher said the problem presented many difficulties because of the question of federal jurisdiction, but he expressed the belief that it might be met through control of the stock exchange.

One suggestion which has been made to the committee chairman along this line is that directors of companies listing their securities on the exchange be required to publish transactions in those stocks.

In this way Fletcher explained, the public would be at least know when the directors of a corporation were selling its stock and in most cases it probably would prevent "unloading."

"I think we can get some control over that," he added. "It is desirable and it may be possible to work it out although where the corporation is not doing an interstate business we may have to leave it to the states."

Evidence before this committee showed that Wiggins, who was chairman of the finance committee of the New York stock exchange, sold his stock two or three weeks before the directors voted not to declare the dividend in June last year. A few days later, Dahl's stock held by the bank as collateral on the loan was sold also, as was developed.

Wants Stronger Securities Act.

Fletcher said he also was considering legislation to strengthen the securities act by permitting the federal trade commission to pass on the merits of proposed stock and bond issues.

"The commission should not have the power to guarantee the issues," Fletcher said. "But to pass on whether they are justified by the facts presented. For instance, the public should be warned to be careful in putting their money in investment trusts."

Some of them issue stock to the public merely to permit them to associate with other people's money. They give the public the idea they are investments, when they are purely speculative from start to finish."

The investigation was in recess to date until after the elections in New York Tuesday because Ferdinand B. Ford, the committee counsel, is running for district attorney there.

When it resumes, Harry F. Sinclair, wealthy oil man, and Arthur Cullen, stock and grain trader, will be summoned to tell of the operations of a $25,000,000 pool in the stock of Sinclair Consolidated Oil corporation, in which they and others, including Wiggins, made more than $12,000,000.

CUTTEN NOT YET CALLED.

Arthur W. Cutten had last night that as yet he has not been notified to appear before the committee in Washington next week to testify on the part he played in the pool operations in Sinclair Oil stock.

"All I know about it is what I read in the newspapers," the Chicago operator declared.

BROKERS PLAN
U. S. REGULATION

Thaddeus R. Benson, president, and Sidney J. Barry, secretary, of the Chicago Association of Stock Exchange Firms, will return this morning from New York where they conferred with officials of the similar organization there on plans for setting up a national organization of security dealers. The lack of organization in the field has worked to the detriment of brokers in recent legislation, particularly the federal securities act and the NRA code of the brokers, it is asserted.

The proposed association would work along nonpartisan lines with the general purpose of forestalling political regulation of the business.

MEATWORKERS HOGS MORE PLANS U. S. FARM PLANS

Prices Rise 5 to 10 Cents with Cool Spell.

Plans to peg prices for farm products, which are getting serious consideration in Washington, failed to excite the live stock trade yesterday. A sudden cold wave sweeping in from the northwest, however, provided a fillip to trading in hogs, and some mild gains were marked up in the early part of the session.

But trading was not very satisfactory for either buyers or sellers. Packers were willing to work conservatively around steady prices, carrying limited orders at the slight upturn. Sellers made a determined stand for higher prices and a dead lock threatened for a time in mid-session.

The bulk of the good grades of hogs were finally worked off at an advance of 5 to 10 cents that appeared to be "forced." Packing grades received little support and sold weak to 10 cents lower.

Average Advances 5 Cents.

Some hogs were held off later, when scattered selling indicated that the early gains in good kinds had been completely rubbed out. The top and general average prices showed 5 cents advance at 14.50 and 14.05, respectively, but these prices still are 15 to 25 cents under the closing quotations of last week.

Supplies are running heavier. Packing houses at the 11 leading markets this week have slaughtered 18 per cent more hogs than a week ago and 22 per cent more than during the same period in 1932.

The movement of other live stock this week has been smaller. Cattle receipts at seven markets for the five days at 15,000 show a decrease of 16,000, compared with a week ago.

The sheep receipts for the week at seven points are 24 per cent under a week ago and 34 per cent under the three year average of corresponding weeks.

Cattle Hold About Steady.

Trading in cattle dragged through the first half of yesterday's session at steady prices, but lived up later and a fair clearance was made on the light run of 1,000 head. Yearling heifers averaging 800 pounds topped the market at $5. No steers sold over $5.75, the bulk of the scant supply bringing $4 to $5.35.

All classes of steers are closing lower than a week ago, declines in the various weights ranging from 10 to 35 cents, with medium and heavy stock off most. Packing grades, extreme top at $4.50 was paid for heifers, and is the lowest for any week since March, 1932.

The first 37 lambs of the week appeared in the market yesterday, when light receipts drove prices up mostly 25 cents. Both natives and westerns reached this line. Only 7,000 head arrived at Chicago.
